Police Quell Student Riot In Algeria

Cultural Center Sacked In Protest Against French

ALGIERS (AP) — French infantrymen and riot police Friday night finally battled down hotheaded students who turned a peaceful Armistice Day into a bloody riot against President Charles de Gaulle's Algerian policy.

The students sacked the U.S. cultural center, wrecked buses, smashed windows, shouted "Algeria is French" and stoned police who intervened with tear gas.

They object to De Gaulle's plan to make this rebellion-torn North African territory an "Algerian Algeria." Although the rioters were formally disclaimed by the cooler-headed Front for French Algeria, which represents the diehard European settlers, they fought enthusiastically.

About 50 persons — rioters, police and soldiers — staggered away from the day's battlefields to get patched up in aid stations.

Called To Help

Soldiers were called in to help cordon off an area of five square city blocks when the rioting broke out at sundown after an afternoon lull. The students holed up in two narrow streets leading off the main street, and defied police tear gas bombs.

The riot sent nervous ripples through the government in Paris, where De Gaulle and Premier Michel Debre conferred Friday morning. Tight security precautions were clamped on Paris. Police were out in force. More than 1,200 persons were arrested during the day — and released later — for failing to "move on" at police orders.

Security troops patrolled downtown Paris. A police helicopter circled overhead to forestall demonstrations like those in Algiers.

In Oran, west of Algiers, about 50,000 persons gathered at a downtown plaza to shout "Algeria is French!" Riot police expertly channeled the crowds from the main streets without violence.

Involves Thousands

The pitched battles in Algiers involved thousands of students, although individual skirmishes were usually limited to a few hundred at a time. Most appeared to be teen-agers.

Long after sundown the student rock-throwing dwindled and the young men, showing no fear of arrest, walked up to the soldiers and police they had been stoning and engaged them in debate.

"De Gaulle is letting us down," shouted one youth.

After about half an hour of this, the students began to straggle home. None was arrested although earlier during the fighting four or five had been hauled off to police headquarters.

Nixon Arrives For Vacation

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon, looking as if he'd shaken off all his campaign worries, arrived at Miami International Airport with his family Friday to spend at least a week relaxing in the sun.

He would make no comment on his defeat in Tuesday's election except to say he knew nothing of the Republican National Committee's plans to seek a vote recount in 11 states.

However, he chatted cheerfully with several University of Miami students who were among the crowd of several hundred which greeted the Nixons. He inquired about the university's football team and asked if it had faced the University of Florida yet.

He distributed a number of autographs as aides and policemen helped him to force his way through the throng.

He, Mrs. Nixon and their two daughters will rest at Key Biscayne, an island south of here where he has spent previous vacations.

Exodus Of GOP Administration Leaders Begins

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Information Agency chief George V. Allen, who figured in a campaign dispute over U.S. prestige abroad, led off the exodus of Eisenhower administration officials Friday.

President Eisenhower, vacationing at Augusta, Ga., accepted the resignation of the career diplomat, 57, who served in key cold war posts under both the Truman and Eisenhower administration.

Allen will take over Dec. 1 as president of the Tobacco Institute, an industry organization, at a salary believed much higher than the $21,000 a year he has been getting as director of the U.S. Information Agency.

Eisenhower, who soon will hand over the presidency to Democrat John F. Kennedy, announced he had accepted these other resignations, the first of many to come:

Robert C. Hill as ambassador to Mexico, a job he has held for four years. He is returning to New Hampshire to enter the legislature.

Wilson C. Falke, as ambassador to Ghana, one of the new African states. He will be replaced by Francis Russell, a career foreign service officer now serving as ambassador to New Zealand.

Newell Brown as Assistant Secretary of Labor for employment and manpower. He is a onetime protege of former White House aide Sherman Adams.

Eisenhower, who had glowing praise for both Allen and Hill, did not name replacements for them, and probably won't this late in his administration, which ends Jan. 20.

Arrives For Visit

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister U Nu of Burma arrived Friday for a 10-day visit.

Ike Authorizes Aide To Meet With Kennedy

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower Friday authorized his chief White House aide to meet with President-elect John F. Kennedy's representative to arrange transfer of government power to the new Democratic regime.

Gen. Wilton B. Persons, Eisenhower's aide, will meet at 11 a.m. Monday with Clark Clifford, Kennedy's liaison man, in the White House.

The President and Kennedy agreed to the preinauguration day conferences in an exchange of messages Thursday.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty reported Clifford and Persons talked by phone Friday afternoon to set up the initial meeting.

Negro Sit-Ins Denied Service

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The Rev. James Lawson, ministerial student who was dismissed from Vanderbilt University last spring for his part in sit-in demonstrations here, was denied service Friday at a chain lunch counter.

After more than four hours inside one of The Krystal lunch rooms, Lawson, two other Negro men and two Negro women walked out.

The counter was closed and the door was locked after the Negroes entered. Lawson and his associates declined to discuss the affair with newsmen except to say they just decided to leave.

Two other lunch rooms operated by the chain were closed after Negro customers entered. They were not served and no disturbances were reported.

Reaction Varied As Three Chimps Work In Factory

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Union officials took a tongue-in-cheek attitude Friday as three chimpanzees worked on a furniture factory assembly line.

Bobby, Fudgie, and Candy had to be prompted on most every move as they packed several couches for shipment.

Reactions varied among plant officials and about 120 union employes who watched the chimps at work.

"It is terrific, it is terrific," said Ben Friedman, the plant manager, who visualizes the use of chimps on assembly lines may become widespread.

"We're not worried," said Alfred Sturm, president of International Upholsterers Union Local 250.

"I can't see anything wrong with this but it is just a big joke and a publicity stunt as far as we are concerned," Sturm said.

Union workers refused to pose for photographs with the chimps. Friedman persuaded Eugene Melson, a foreman, to do so.

Melson agreed to be the supervisor as Bobby, the star performer, operated a foot pedal on a boxing machine. Bobby pressed the pedal momentarily and then jumped on top of the machine, knocking part of the bottom of a couch out of place.

Bobby picked up paper sacks containing wooden legs for the couches and placed a sack in each shipping box. He made a separate trip for each sack.

Fudgie finished zipping the cushion cover in each box. Candy closed the lids to the boxes.

Pictures of chimps were on the sides of the shipping boxes. Bold lettering read "made by the most modern methods available."

Manuel King, an animal trainer, was kept busy prompting the chimps from box to box. Each chimp kept trying to return to the bananas that were in a lunch box Bobby carried into the plant.

"There are too many distractions here today," King said.

Friedman got the idea of using chimps after watching a television show. He said the animals are intelligent and offer good possibilities as manpower for plant tasks that can never become entirely mechanized.

Army Chief To Back Laos Right-Wingers

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — An Army battalion chief announced Friday he has cast aside any loyalty to the neutralist government, rallying instead to the pro-Western right-wing corner in Laos' hot political triangle.

Maj. Bounpheun Isixiengmay, chief of the 3rd Infantry Battalion at Luang Prabang, went on the radio to say he no longer recognizes Vientiane governmental authority.

Luang Prabang, the royal capital of Laos, is to the north. The rightists are centered in the south at Savannakhet. Vientiane, where Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma heads the kingdom's neutralist government, is halfway between.

The premier went to Luang Prabang Thursday for an audience with the monarch, his half-brother King Savang Vathana.

Phouma was to stay till Sunday, but he returned here immediately when he heard a rebellion was to start in Luang Prabang.

The premier said how widely the reported rebellion spreads will not be known for a few days.

The premier has been trying to make peace with the warring Pathet Lao, a pro-Communist group headed by the premier's fugitive half-brother, Prince Souvanna Vong. The Pathet Lao have been causing trouble internally for six years.

The rightists are aligned with the West. A coup replaced their Government in August. They oppose any settlement that would bring the Pathet Lao into a compromise government.

Both disputing elements in the Army are equipped and paid by the United States, which has sent Laos some $300 million in aid since 1954.

One army faction is loyal to Phouma's neutral regime. The other supports Gen. Phoumi Nosavan and his rightist revolutionary committee. The United States withheld its money for a time in September, insisting that the premier restore some stability in his ranks.

The rightists tried to advance their cause a bit further Friday when Gen. Phoumi seized a four-engine transport plane at Savannakhet. The plane was carrying French teachers. They were taken off and a paratroop platoon went aboard to fly as reinforcement to Maj. Isixiengmay in Luang Prabang.

Gen. Ouane Rathikhone, the neutralist Army commander in chief, went with the premier to the royal capital Thursday. The general did not come back with Phouma but traveled somewhere north of the capital instead.

Actor Is Better

LONDON (AP) — Movie actor Ramon Novarro left a hospital bed Friday, well and rested from a touch of pneumonia, and literally loaded with fan mail and gifts.

"At the age of 61," he said, "having a fan club is a little embarrassing. You've got to be at least 45 to remember me."

U.S. Judge, Integration Foes Guarded

Governor Calls Special Session In Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — State and city police threw protective guards around a federal judge and segregationists Friday as they battled over the city's schools.

City police assigned a 24-hour guard here to U.S. Dist. Judge J. Skelly Wright, who ordered integration of first-grade classes in New Orleans Monday.

A new segregation law makes any federal official working to effect school integration subject to arrest by state police.

State police set up protective measures around segregation leaders involved in the clash with the federal government.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, in his second surprise move in 24 hours, called the legislature back into special session at 3 p.m. Sunday —18 hours before five Negro girls are scheduled to enter two white schools in New Orleans.

Ready For Action

Presumably, Davis issued the call so segregationist-bent lawmakers would be together, ready for whatever comes Monday.

By calling the legislature into session, Davis placed lawmakers under a section of the state constitution that makes legislative members immune from arrest when in session. The immunity does not apply to cases of breaches of the peace and felonies.

At the opening phase of the first session earlier this week, segregation leaders passed a 28-bill anti-integration package through the legislature. It gave the state broad, new power over schools.

Wright countered by issuing restraining orders on Thursday warning state officials to keep hands off New Orleans schools.

Wright's orders banned enforcement of the new segregation laws and prohibited state authorites from interfering with school integration.

Move To Oust Board

In a new development Friday, New Orleans State Rep. Edward Lebreton Jr. said a move is reportedly being made to oust the five-member New Orleans School Board.

The board regained control over schools Thursday from a newly created legislative committee and promptly authorized admission of the five Negro pupils into white schools. Their transfer was ordered by Wright in a previous decision.

In Baton Rouge, House Speaker Tom Jewell said the Sunday session will convene to make technical changes in the segregationist program. He said he didn't contemplate any new legislation.

Jewell said the meeting may have some connection with the federal court restraining orders. But, he added, he did not "foresee any plans on interposition at this time."

The key interposition bills assert Louisiana's refusal to accept as constitutional the 1954 U.S. Supreme Court ruling outlawing school segregation.

Kennedy Takes Off For Florida

HYANNIS PORT, Mass (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy took off for Palm Beach, Fla., Friday to rest and get on with the business of organizing his administration.

A crowd of several thousand people cheered the Massachusetts senator at the airport.

Kennedy — guarded by Secret Service agents since his election — broke away from the guard to walk along the airport fence and shake hands with well-wishers.

He told newsmen he wants and needs a rest, and is looking forward to the Florida sunshine.

Kennedy boarded his private plane with his expectant wife, Jacqueline, and their daughter, Caroline, 3. The plane is named for Caroline. She brought along her pet Welsh terrier, Charlie.

Mrs. Kennedy and Caroline flew with Kennedy to Washington, where she will stay. Kennedy will rejoin his wife before the baby is born. The baby is expected in about three weeks.

Kennedy's father, Joseph P. Kennedy, was at the airport to say goodby.

The president-elect told a reporter he plans to return to Hyannis Port to spend the Thanksgiving holiday.

Junta Controls South Viet Nam

President Diem Overthrown; 30 Killed In Battle

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A military revolt, avowedly aimed to depose a family dictatorship and strengthen the fight against Communist infiltration, toppled pro-Western President Ngo Dinh Diem Friday.

A rebel junta headed by paratroop Col. Nguyen Chanh Thi claimed control of South Viet Nam's government after a predawn uprising in which between 20 and 30 persons were killed and many were injured.

The junta proclaimed that it is backed by all the armed forces, bulk of which is the 120,000-man army, and appealed to the people to accept the situation calmly.

Stage Uprising

Five battalions—perhaps 3,000 men — staged the uprising that made South Viet Nam the third Asian ally and beneficiary of the United States to have its government changed violently this year.

The others are South Korea, which maintains its old ties with the West, and the Kingdom of Laos, which has turned neutralist. U.S. aid has poured to South Viet Nam at the rate of about $250 million a year.

Four elite security battalions and a U.S.-trained marine battalion struck swiftly in the darkness at 3 a.m. They seized government buildings, the National Assembly and the airport, and then moved in on the cream and white presidential palace in the heart of Saigon.

About 400 parachute troopers launched that attack.

The palace's 200 white-uniformed guards fought fiercely, but were overcome in a six-hour battle.

Armored units rumbled into the capital from Mytho, 75 miles to the south, in answer to a call from the president. Instead of rallying to Diem, however, they joined the rebels.

Thousands Watch

Fires burned in the heart of the city. Gunshots awakened the people and thousands swarmed into the streets to watch. A Vietnamese air force plane scattered leaflets urging the rebels to give up their revolt.

Paratroopers armed with grenades and submachine guns took over direction of traffic after the battle ebbed.

There was no proclamation of martial law.

No casualties were reported among the several thousand Americans living here as military or civilian advisers to this nation of 12 million.

Diem himself was reported staying on in the presidential palace, though it was not learned immediately whether he was under arrest.

OUSTED—A military revolt has toppled the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem, pro-Western head of South Viet Nam. The rebel junta backed by the nation's armed forces supposedly is trying to depose a family dictatorship and strengthen the fight against Communist infiltration. (AP Photofax).

Mother Takes Vigil At Side Of Stewardess

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP)—A smiling woman from the Bronx, N. Y., who only two days ago was making heavy-hearted plans to bury her daughter, arrived by plane Friday to hold her hand and feel its warmth of life.

"I'm going to hold to Mary's hand and stay with her every minute I'm allowed," said Mrs. John F. Schnell as she took up her vigil by the hospital bed of Mary Hawthorne, 26, victim of a car smashup—and a case of mistaken identification.

Until Thursday, Thomas Frost of Philadelphia had sat beside the same bed, believing the girl heavily swathed in bandages was his daughter, Joan Frost. Back East, Joan's body was in a sealed casket and Mrs. Schnell was prepared to bury it as her daughter, Mary.

Mary, Joan, and two other girls, all American Airline stewardesses wearing identical uniforms, having identical hairdos and carrying identical purses, were in a taxi on its way to the San Francisco airport Monday.

A car smashup killed one girl and the taxi driver, seriously injured the other three and so scattered their personal possessions that an identification mistake was made on the basis of purses and papers.

The mistake was discovered when friends of Mary Hawthorne had the casket opened in New York so a ring Mary prized, but didn't wear because of a chipped fingernail, could be placed on her finger.

"It was Mary's good luck ring," said Mrs. Schnell, standing beside her husband, Mary's stepfather.

"She hadn't been without it for five years. She felt it was a good luck charm. . . ."

Mary appeared better than her mother had expected when they met at the hospital. Mrs. Schnell grasped one hand and the stepfather the other.

"It's nice that you came," Mary managed to murmur.

Teasingly, the mother said:

"You realize you made me come all the way here, 3,000 miles by jet plane, and you know how I hate to fly."

Teacher Discharged For Whipping Girl

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Schoolteacher Earl N. Payne was fired Friday for switching an 11-year-old girl pupil with a blackboard pointer because she brought chewing gum to class.

The Board of Education fired Payne for violation of its regulations on administering corporal punishment to students.

Mrs. Lela Palms testified that her daughter, Pamela Reed, suffered two welts and other bruises on her hips. Principal Ruges Freeman told the board Payne had admitted punishing the girl.

Miss. Electors Won't Back Either Candidate

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi's unpledged presidential electors, still hoping to block the election of John F. Kennedy, agreed Friday not to cast their eight votes for either major candidate.

The electors met with Gov. Ross Barnett at the governor's mansion and discussed the national election situation and how their votes should go.

"We shall not vote for either candidate of the major parties with their present platforms," Barnett said in a statement after the closed meeting.

"At the moment the vote in two large states is so close that we still cherish the hope that we might yet succeed in the great cause for constitutional government."

Barnett referred to the undecided battle for California's votes and GOP plans for recounts and challenges in Illinois. The Republicans also plan to check votes in other states where the count was close.

If the Democrats lose Illinois and California, Kennedy's margin would drop to only 273 electoral votes—just four more than needed for election. Any Southern state then joining Mississippi in casting its electoral votes for a third man would block the election and throw it into the House of Representatives, where each state gets one vote.

Barnett's statement did not say who the Mississippi electors might support, and Sen. Earl Evans of Canton, one of the eight electors, said no names were discussed at the session.

The governor asked electors of other Southern states — some of whom are not bound by law to support the party nominee—to "reappraise their positions with the full knowledge that they have it within their power to join with us and save their people from imminent social and economic chaos."

Morton Asks Probe Made In 11 States

Nixon Says Vote Decision To Stand; Calif. In Doubt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon's press secretary and campaign manager said Friday Nixon does not intend to dispute John F. Kennedy's election to the presidency.

Their declarations, to a news conference, ran contrary to earlier word from an aide to the Republican National Committee that Nixon and GOP chairman Thruston B. Morton had jointly approved a decision that could lead to possible vote recounts in 11 states.

Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, said:

"The vice president ran the race and accepts the decision of the voters. The decision made on Tuesday stands."

Morton asked Republican leaders in 11 states to recheck the vote in their areas for possible error or fraud with a view to possible entering of recount demands.

Little To Be Done

Robert Finch, Nixon's campaign manager, said he thought little could come of the maneuver. He said it could throw the outcome into the hands of uncommitted electors or into the House of Representatives which is in the hands of Democrats.

Finch added: "Any hopes we have that the national result will be overturned by local action in the states is very slight."

Nixon was asked about the national committee action upon his arrival at Miami, Fla., for a rest. He said he knew nothing about it.

The Republican committee said it had been "literally flooded with thousands of telegrams and phone calls from every state."

Finch and Klein said Nixon and members of his staff had received hundreds of telegrams and many phone calls urging an investigation into alleged election irregularities. Finch said many of these merely repeated hearsay information.

Asked for specific instances, Finch said that in Texas it was reported that 50,000 ballots were thrown out because voters did not comply with the technicality of state law by scratching out all of the names of those they opposed for president and leaving intact the name of the man they were voting for.

Ballots Impounded

Nixon lost Texas to Kennedy by about 50,000 votes. But Finch said he had no way of knowing how many Republican votes were

Marilyn Monroe Plans Divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Marilyn Monroe, Hollywood's blonde sex symbol, has called it quits with her third husband, Pulitzer Prize playwright Arthur Miller. Her spokesman said Friday she plans to file for divorce.

Miss Monroe reportedly was ready to give up on the marriage last July, but decided to make one more try at salvaging it. However, Miller moved out on her Monday, in what was described as an amicable solution of a career conflict.

Rumors have been rife for some time that the lovely screen star and her taciturn husband were on the verge of a breakup. Only last month, Miss Monroe had occasion to deny a romantic link with French actor Yves Montand. They were co-stars in the movie, "Let's Make Love."

"They are two exciting people," her agent said of Marilyn and Montand. "Apparently this was enough to set some tongues wagging."

Montand and his wife, Academy Award winner Simone Signoret, were in the French countryside on a holiday when news of Marilyn's divorce plans reached Paris. A secretary of the actor said:

"I know they will be sorry to hear about this, since they knew both Marilyn and Mr. Miller together in Hollywood."

Friends here insisted no third person is involved in the split between Miss Monroe and Miller. A close friend of Miller declared:

"They have separated, but it is not an embittered estrangement. There is no bitterness on either side."

Reaction Varied As Three Chimps Work In Factory

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Union officials took a tongue-in-cheek attitude Friday as three chimpanzees worked on a furniture factory assembly line.

Bobby, Fudgie, and Candy had to be prompted on most every move as they packed several couches for shipment.

Reactions varied among plant officials and about 120 union employes who watched the chimps at work.

"It is terrific, it is terrific," said Ben Friedman, the plant manager, who visualizes the use of chimps on assembly lines may become widespread.

"We're not worried," said Alfred Sturm, president of International Upholsterers Union Local 250.

"I can't see anything wrong with this but it is just a big joke and a publicity stunt as far as we are concerned," Sturm said.

Union workers refused to pose for photographs with the chimps. Friedman persuaded Eugene Melson, a foreman, to do so.

Melson agreed to be the supervisor as Bobby, the star performer, operated a foot pedal on a boxing machine. Bobby pressed the pedal momentarily and then jumped on top of the machine, knocking part of the bottom of a couch out of place.

Bobby picked up paper sacks containing wooden legs for the couches and placed a sack in each shipping box. He made a separate trip for each sack.

Fudgie finished zipping the cushion cover in each box. Candy closed the lids to the boxes.

Pictures of chimps were on the sides of the shipping boxes. Bold lettering read "made by the most modern methods available."

Manuel King, an animal trainer, was kept busy prompting the chimps from box to box. Each chimp kept trying to return to the bananas that were in a lunch box Bobby carried into the plant.

"There are too many distractions here today," King said.

Friedman got the idea of using chimps after watching a television show. He said the animals are intelligent and offer good possibilities as manpower for plant tasks that can never become entirely mechanized.

U.S. Judge, Integration Foes Guarded

Governor Calls Special Session In Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — State and city police threw protective guards around a federal judge and segregationists Friday as they battled over the city's schools.

City police assigned a 24-hour guard here to U.S. Dist. Judge J. Skelly Wright, who ordered integration of first-grade classes in New Orleans Monday.

A new segregation law makes any federal official working to effect school integration subject to arrest by state police.

State police set up protective measures around segregation leaders involved in the clash with the federal government.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, in his second surprise move in 24 hours, called the legislature back into special session at 3 p.m. Sunday —18 hours before five Negro girls are scheduled to enter two white schools in New Orleans.

Ready For Action

Presumably, Davis issued the call so segregationist-bent lawmakers would be together, ready for whatever comes Monday.

By calling the legislature into session, Davis placed lawmakers under a section of the state constitution that makes legislative members immune from arrest when in session. The immunity does not apply to cases of breaches of the peace and felonies.

At the opening phase of the first session earlier this week, segregation leaders passed a 28-bill anti-integration package through the legislature. It gave the state broad, new power over schools.

Wright countered by issuing restraining orders on Thursday warning state officials to keep hands off New Orleans schools.

Wright's orders banned enforcement of the new segregation laws and prohibited state authorites from interfering with school integration.

Move To Oust Board

In a new development Friday, New Orleans State Rep. Edward Lebreton Jr. said a move is reportedly being made to oust the five-member New Orleans School Board.

The board regained control over schools Thursday from a newly created legislative committee and promptly authorized admission of the five Negro pupils into white schools. Their transfer was ordered by Wright in a previous decision.

In Baton Rouge, House Speaker Tom Jewell said the Sunday session will convene to make technical changes in the segregationist program. He said he didn't contemplate any new legislation.

Jewell said the meeting may have some connection with the federal court restraining orders. But, he added, he did not "foresee any plans on interposition at this time."

The key interposition bills assert Louisiana's refusal to accept as constitutional the 1954 U.S. Supreme Court ruling outlawing school segregation.

Kennedy Takes Off For Florida

HYANNIS PORT, Mass (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy took off for Palm Beach, Fla., Friday to rest and get on with the business of organizing his administration.

A crowd of several thousand people cheered the Massachusetts senator at the airport.

Kennedy — guarded by Secret Service agents since his election — broke away from the guard to walk along the airport fence and shake hands with well-wishers.

He told newsmen he wants and needs a rest, and is looking forward to the Florida sunshine.

Kennedy boarded his private plane with his expectant wife, Jacqueline, and their daughter, Caroline, 3. The plane is named for Caroline. She brought along her pet Welsh terrier, Charlie.

Mrs. Kennedy and Caroline flew with Kennedy to Washington, where she will stay. Kennedy will rejoin his wife before the baby is born. The baby is expected in about three weeks.

Kennedy's father, Joseph P. Kennedy, was at the airport to say goodby.

The president-elect told a reporter he plans to return to Hyannis Port to spend the Thanksgiving holiday.

Junta Controls South Viet Nam

President Diem Overthrown; 30 Killed In Battle

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A military revolt, avowedly aimed to depose a family dictatorship and strengthen the fight against Communist infiltration, toppled pro-Western President Ngo Dinh Diem Friday.

A rebel junta headed by paratroop Col. Nguyen Chanh Thi claimed control of South Viet Nam's government after a predawn uprising in which between 20 and 30 persons were killed and many were injured.

The junta proclaimed that it is backed by all the armed forces, bulk of which is the 120,000-man army, and appealed to the people to accept the situation calmly.

OUSTED—A military revolt has toppled the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem, pro-Western head of South Viet Nam. The rebel junta backed by the nation's armed forces supposedly is trying to depose a family dictatorship and strengthen the fight against Communist infiltration. (AP Photofax).

Stage Uprising

Five battalions—perhaps 3,000 men — staged the uprising that made South Viet Nam the third Asian ally and beneficiary of the United States to have its government changed violently this year.

The others are South Korea, which maintains its old ties with the West, and the Kingdom of Laos, which has turned neutralist. U.S. aid has poured to South Viet Nam at the rate of about $250 million a year.

Four elite security battalions and a U.S.-trained marine battalion struck swiftly in the darkness at 3 a.m. They seized government buildings, the National Assembly and the airport, and then moved in on the cream and white presidential palace in the heart of Saigon.

About 400 parachute troopers launched that attack.

The palace's 200 white-uniformed guards fought fiercely, but were overcome in a six-hour battle.

Armored units rumbled into the capital from Mytho, 75 miles to the south, in answer to a call from the president. Instead of rallying to Diem, however, they joined the rebels.

Thousands Watch

Fires burned in the heart of the city. Gunshots awakened the people and thousands swarmed into the streets to watch. A Vietnamese air force plane scattered leaflets urging the rebels to give up their revolt.

Paratroopers armed with grenades and submachine guns took over direction of traffic after the battle ebbed.

There was no proclamation of martial law.

No casualties were reported among the several thousand Americans living here as military or civilian advisers to this nation of 12 million.

Diem himself was reported staying on in the presidential palace, though it was not learned immediately whether he was under arrest.

Teacher Discharged For Whipping Girl

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Schoolteacher Earl N. Payne was fired Friday for switching an 11-year-old girl pupil with a blackboard pointer because she brought chewing gum to class.

The Board of Education fired Payne for violation of its regulations on administering corporal punishment to students.

Mrs. Lela Palms testified that her daughter, Pamela Reed, suffered two welts and other bruises on her hips. Principal Ruges Freeman told the board Payne had admitted punishing the girl.

Mother Takes Vigil At Side Of Stewardess

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP)—A smiling woman from the Bronx, N. Y., who only two days ago was making heavy-hearted plans to bury her daughter, arrived by plane Friday to hold her hand and feel its warmth of life.

"I'm going to hold to Mary's hand and stay with her every minute I'm allowed," said Mrs. John F. Schnell as she took up her vigil by the hospital bed of Mary Hawthorne, 26, victim of a car smashup—and a case of mistaken identification.

Until Thursday, Thomas Frost of Philadelphia had sat beside the same bed, believing the girl heavily swathed in bandages was his daughter, Joan Frost. Back East, Joan's body was in a sealed casket and Mrs. Schnell was prepared to bury it as her daughter, Mary.

Mary, Joan, and two other girls, all American Airline stewardesses wearing identical uniforms, having identical hairdos and carrying identical purses, were in a taxi on its way to the San Francisco airport Monday.

A car smashup killed one girl and the taxi driver, seriously injured the other three and so scattered their personal possessions that an identification mistake was made on the basis of purses and papers.

The mistake was discovered when friends of Mary Hawthorne had the casket opened in New York so a ring Mary prized, but didn't wear because of a chipped fingernail, could be placed on her finger.

"It was Mary's good luck ring," said Mrs. Schnell, standing beside her husband, Mary's stepfather.

"She hadn't been without it for five years. She felt it was a good luck charm. . . ."

Mary appeared better than her mother had expected when they met at the hospital. Mrs. Schnell grasped one hand and the stepfather the other.

"It's nice that you came," Mary managed to murmur.

Teasingly, the mother said:

"You realize you made me come all the way here, 3,000 miles by jet plane, and you know how I hate to fly."

Miss. Electors Won't Back Either Candidate

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi's unpledged presidential electors, still hoping to block the election of John F. Kennedy, agreed Friday not to cast their eight votes for either major candidate.

The electors met with Gov. Ross Barnett at the governor's mansion and discussed the national election situation and how their votes should go.

"We shall not vote for either candidate of the major parties with their present platforms," Barnett said in a statement after the closed meeting.

"At the moment the vote in two large states is so close that we still cherish the hope that we might yet succeed in the great cause for constitutional government."

Barnett referred to the undecided battle for California's votes and GOP plans for recounts and challenges in Illinois. The Republicans also plan to check votes in other states where the count was close.

If the Democrats lose Illinois and California, Kennedy's margin would drop to only 273 electoral votes—just four more than needed for election. Any Southern state then joining Mississippi in casting its electoral votes for a third man would block the election and throw it into the House of Representatives, where each state gets one vote.

Barnett's statement did not say who the Mississippi electors might support, and Sen. Earl Evans of Canton, one of the eight electors, said no names were discussed at the session.

The governor asked electors of other Southern states — some of whom are not bound by law to support the party nominee—to "reappraise their positions with the full knowledge that they have it within their power to join with us and save their people from imminent social and economic chaos."

Morton Asks Probe Made In 11 States

Nixon Says Vote Decision To Stand; Calif. In Doubt

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon's press secretary and campaign manager said Friday Nixon does not intend to dispute John F. Kennedy's election to the presidency.

Their declarations, to a news conference, ran contrary to earlier word from an aide to the Republican National Committee that Nixon and GOP chairman Thruston B. Morton had jointly approved a decision that could lead to possible vote recounts in 11 states.

Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, said:

"The vice president ran the race and accepts the decision of the voters. The decision made on Tuesday stands."

Morton asked Republican leaders in 11 states to recheck the vote in their areas for possible error or fraud with a view to possible entering of recount demands.

Little To Be Done

Robert Finch, Nixon's campaign manager, said he thought little could come of the maneuver. He said it could throw the outcome into the hands of uncommitted electors or into the House of Representatives which is in the hands of Democrats.

Finch added: "Any hopes we have that the national result will be overturned by local action in the states is very slight."

Nixon was asked about the national committee action upon his arrival at Miami, Fla., for a rest. He said he knew nothing about it.

The Republican committee said it had been "literally flooded with thousands of telegrams and phone calls from every state."

Finch and Klein said Nixon and members of his staff had received hundreds of telegrams and many phone calls urging an investigation into alleged election irregularities. Finch said many of these merely repeated hearsay information.

Asked for specific instances, Finch said that in Texas it was reported that 50,000 ballots were thrown out because voters did not comply with the technicality of state law by scratching out all of the names of those they opposed for president and leaving intact the name of the man they were voting for.

Ballots Impounded

Nixon lost Texas to Kennedy by about 50,000 votes. But Finch said he had no way of knowing how many Republican votes were

Marilyn Monroe Plans Divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Marilyn Monroe, Hollywood's blonde sex symbol, has called it quits with her third husband, Pulitzer Prize playwright Arthur Miller. Her spokesman said Friday she plans to file for divorce.

Miss Monroe reportedly was ready to give up on the marriage last July, but decided to make one more try at salvaging it. However, Miller moved out on her Monday, in what was described as an amicable solution of a career conflict.

Rumors have been rife for some time that the lovely screen star and her taciturn husband were on the verge of a breakup. Only last month, Miss Monroe had occasion to deny a romantic link with French actor Yves Montand. They were co-stars in the movie, "Let's Make Love."

"They are two exciting people," her agent said of Marilyn and Montand. "Apparently this was enough to set some tongues wagging."

Montand and his wife, Academy Award winner Simone Signoret, were in the French countryside on a holiday when news of Marilyn's divorce plans reached Paris. A secretary of the actor said:

"I know they will be sorry to hear about this, since they knew both Marilyn and Mr. Miller together in Hollywood."

Friends here insisted no third person is involved in the split between Miss Monroe and Miller. A close friend of Miller declared:

"They have separated, but it is not an embittered estrangement. There is no bitterness on either side."

U.S. Hopes To Ward Off Reds In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported seeking rapid restoration of political stability in South Viet Nam Friday to head off any danger of Communist intervention.

The State Department, which called for a return to public order and security in South Viet Nam, also watched with concern a new military-political flareup in Laos, another Southeast Asian country.

In Laos, a three-way division was deepened when any Army infantry battalion commander went on the radio to announce he is siding with a pro-Western faction and no longer recognizes the neutralist government. The third element in Laos' tangled political skein is the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebel group.

Both Laos and South Viet Nam are dependent on the United States for military and economic aid.

U.S. policy for years has been directed toward strengthening them and other Southeast Asian countries against pressures and threats from their Communist neighbors, Red China and North Viet Nam.

Thus, the United States has a heavy stake in the outcome of the internal struggles.

U.S. embassy officials in Saigon are understood to have been in touch both with the leaders of the paratroop batallions which reportedly overthrew President Ngo Dinh Diem in a pre-dawn uprising, and with Diem representatives.

It was understood these officials were pressing the U.S. line set forth in a State Department statement here.

"With regard to the reports of the coup d'etat in Saigon," the State Department said, "we sincerely hope that the situation will soon be stabilized and public order and security restored.

"While it appears clear that the present action is not Communist-inspired, we are naturally concerned at any instability in a free nation bordering on Communist-held territory."

Beyond this, press officer William Blair declined any comment saying "the situation in Viet Nam is not clear."

Four Rescued From Potomac

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four residents of the Washington area were rescued from the chilly waters of the Potomac River above the Morgantown Bridge Thursday night.

They were forced into the water when their disabled boat swamped. A patrol boat of the Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commission rescued them 25 minutes later.

The two men and two women were spotted by flares which the owner of the boat, Henry Corbin, 35, of Washington set off.

Corbin, who operates a real estate firm in Rockville, Md., identified the others who were rescued as Vincent Sica, 24, of McLean, Va., and Marie Vance and Kay Fields, both of Washington.

Man Kills Self After Shooting At Policeman

BALTIMORE (AP)—Police reported a Baltimore County man killed himself Friday after first firing a shot at an officer who was attempting to stave off the suicide.

The victim, Eugene G. Evans Jr., 34, was found dead on the floor of a bedroom in his home. A bullet from a .22 caliber rifle penetrated his right temple, police said.

Moments earlier, a shot from the rifle had been fired through a glass partition in the locked door to the bedroom. Pieces of shattered glass struck Patrolman William Robertson, who was outside pleading with the man not to take his own life.

"Half-A-Loaf" Plea Is Made By Unemployed

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP)—A jut-jawed throng of jobless have unfurled a new "half-a-loaf" flag on the labor front—lower wages.

Striving mightily to lift themselves by their own economic bootstraps, some 600 to 700 unemployed men and women jammed into the Virginia Theater Thursday to listen to the plan borne in the desperate mind of one of their own — a 57-year-old unemployed steelworker.

Their plant, the once-bustling Ackermann plant of the Wheeling Steel Corp., had shut down months ago, been sold to a broker and now faces a piecemeal end on the auction block Monday.

But, spurred by the broker's vague promise that there was a possibility the plant could yet be salvaged if the new owner were not forced to compete with steel wages, Thomas M. Elliott, who has not cashed a paycheck in months, began reciting his idea:

"Better to work for $1.50 an hour and work than be unemployed at $3 an hour and starve."

It caught on. Friends in the same fix talked it over. More people were called to add their opinion. Then it really mushroomed.

The roaring climax came at the theater meeting.

A committee of their own kind was commissioned to take their story to the nation. They hoped that somewhere, some place, there was an industry ready to leap at the opportunity to move into a ready-made plant with a ready-made crew of skilled workers who were willing to work at reduced wages.

There were some hecklers at first, but they were shouted down with a vengance. Half a loaf sounded good to a hungry man and some had their children with them.

Indian Glad Kennedy Won

BALTIMORE (AP) — An Indian newspaperman said Friday he and most of his countrymen are glad Sen. John F. Kennedy won the presidential election.

Ponneri Loganathan, chief subeditor of The Mail in Madras, India, also said the election provided some lessons for India.

"We are struggling to mold a united nation out of peoples speaking many languages and holding various religious beliefs," Loganathan said in article for The Evening Sun.

"We take pride in the fact that in the State of Parliament election predominantly Hindu constituencies often elect Moslems or Christians.

"But the Indian nation would have come of age when a Moslem or Christian has no difficulty in being elected Prime Minister or President of India."

Pressman Says Potomac River Compact Illegal

BALTIMORE (AP) — An attorney for Southern Maryland watermen said Friday ratification of a new Potomac River Compact with Virginia in Tuesday's election was illegal because the referendum was not properly advertised.

Attorney Hyman A. Pressman called on Gov. Tawes to refrain from issuing a proclamation declaring the question adopted by Maryland voters.

"The purported ratification by the voters was unconstitutional, illegal and of no effect for the reason that the publication thereof was utterly deficient," said Pressman. He represents the St. Mary's County Watermen's Association and the Charles County Watermen's Association, two groups which opposed the proposed compact.

The compact, which would create a bi-state agency to regulate the Potomac fishery, was petitioned onto the ballot by Southern Maryland watermen.

Unofficial returns gave the proposal a safe margin of some 33,000 votes.

Pressman claimed Maryland law calls for such referenda to be published at least once in two or more newspapers within the counties and in all daily newspapers in Baltimore City.

The attorney said the text of the proposed compact was published only in the Baltimore Sun of Oct. 5. "Obviously, someone has goofed," he said in his letter to Tawes.

Pressman called for republication of the proposal for a vote to be taken in the 1962 general election.

Pressman's letter to the governor was mailed Friday night.

Advertisement of constitutional amendments and other referenda are the responsibility of the secretary of state's office. Secretary of State Thomas B. Finan said Friday night he had not heard of Pressman's letter but would check it out.

Pressman did not say what steps he would take if Tawes declines to withhold a proclamation declaring the compact proposal ratified. He clearly implied court action, however.

The new setup for regulation of the Potomac had been expected to go into operation after returns from Tuesday's election are ratified and Congress has approved the 1958 treaty.

The compact, designed to restore peace and promote development of the Potomac, had become a campaign issue between Republicans and Democrats, with the GOP leadership opposed and the Democratic state administration and candidates favoring it. Among those opposed were Maryland's two U.S. senators, J. Glenn Beall and John Marshall Butler.

The pact is an effort to settle differences between Maryland and Virginia which have existed since 1785, when Maryland gave Virginia equal fishing rights in the Potomac in return for free passage of Maryland ships through the Virginia capes.

The new treaty was worked out after Virginia had filed suit in the Supreme Court challenging an act of the 1957 Maryland Legislature which attempted to abrograte, without Virginia's consent, the 1785 compact.

thrown out. He said that it is his understanding that ballots had been impounded in 13 counties in New Mexico, which Kennedy carried by a small margin.

Finch said he had been urged by telephone and wires to "check into vote frauds in Philadelphia." But he said no one had come forward with any evidence to support fraud claims.

P-1 — ADD MORTON ASKS ....

The Democratic high command showed no alarm, Chairman Henry M. Jackson remarking at Seattle, Wash., that the Republican action "appears to be based merely on the fact that they've lost a close election." He also said it appears to be "a fishing expedition on a grand scale."

The Republican complaints demanded recounts and investigations of purported vote frauds in Tuesday's presidential election, Morton said. He also reported the vice president's office was receiving "thousands of telegrams and calls."

Morton announced that as a result of the requests, he was asking state and county Republican chairmen in 11 states "to take any necessary action to determine specific complaints and file them with the local U.S. attorney's offices so that we can proceed with the investigation of these reports."

Morton listed the 11 states, which have a total of 161 electoral votes, in alphabetical order in his formal statement. In an earlier talk with a reporter the chairman had laid special stress on Illinois and Texas.

The other nine: Delaware, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and South Carolina.

U.S. Hopes To Ward Off Reds In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States was reported seeking rapid restoration of political stability in South Viet Nam Friday to head off any danger of Communist intervention.

The State Department, which called for a return to public order and security in South Viet Nam, also watched with concern a new military-political flareup in Laos, another Southeast Asian country.

In Laos, a three-way division was deepened when any Army infantry battalion commander went on the radio to announce he is siding with a pro-Western faction and no longer recognizes the neutralist government. The third element in Laos' tangled political skein is the pro-Communist Pathet Lao rebel group.

Both Laos and South Viet Nam are dependent on the United States for military and economic aid.

U.S. policy for years has been directed toward strengthening them and other Southeast Asian countries against pressures and threats from their Communist neighbors, Red China and North Viet Nam.

Thus, the United States has a heavy stake in the outcome of the internal struggles.

U.S. embassy officials in Saigon are understood to have been in touch both with the leaders of the paratroop batallions which reportedly overthrew President Ngo Dinh Diem in a pre-dawn uprising, and with Diem representatives.

It was understood these officials were pressing the U.S. line set forth in a State Department statement here.

"With regard to the reports of the coup d'etat in Saigon," the State Department said, "we sincerely hope that the situation will soon be stabilized and public order and security restored.

"While it appears clear that the present action is not Communist-inspired, we are naturally concerned at any instability in a free nation bordering on Communist-held territory."

Beyond this, press officer William Blair declined any comment saying "the situation in Viet Nam is not clear."

Four Rescued From Potomac

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four residents of the Washington area were rescued from the chilly waters of the Potomac River above the Morgantown Bridge Thursday night.

They were forced into the water when their disabled boat swamped. A patrol boat of the Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commission rescued them 25 minutes later.

The two men and two women were spotted by flares which the owner of the boat, Henry Corbin, 35, of Washington set off.

Corbin, who operates a real estate firm in Rockville, Md., identified the others who were rescued as Vincent Sica, 24, of McLean, Va., and Marie Vance and Kay Fields, both of Washington.

Man Kills Self After Shooting At Policeman

BALTIMORE (AP)—Police reported a Baltimore County man killed himself Friday after first firing a shot at an officer who was attempting to stave off the suicide.

The victim, Eugene G. Evans Jr., 34, was found dead on the floor of a bedroom in his home. A bullet from a .22 caliber rifle penetrated his right temple, police said.

Moments earlier, a shot from the rifle had been fired through a glass partition in the locked door to the bedroom. Pieces of shattered glass struck Patrolman William Robertson, who was outside pleading with the man not to take his own life.

"Half-A-Loaf" Plea Is Made By Unemployed

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP)—A jut-jawed throng of jobless have unfurled a new "half-a-loaf" flag on the labor front—lower wages.

Striving mightily to lift themselves by their own economic bootstraps, some 600 to 700 unemployed men and women jammed into the Virginia Theater Thursday to listen to the plan borne in the desperate mind of one of their own — a 57-year-old unemployed steelworker.

Their plant, the once-bustling Ackermann plant of the Wheeling Steel Corp., had shut down months ago, been sold to a broker and now faces a piecemeal end on the auction block Monday.

But, spurred by the broker's vague promise that there was a possibility the plant could yet be salvaged if the new owner were not forced to compete with steel wages, Thomas M. Elliott, who has not cashed a paycheck in months, began reciting his idea:

"Better to work for $1.50 an hour and work than be unemployed at $3 an hour and starve."

It caught on. Friends in the same fix talked it over. More people were called to add their opinion. Then it really mushroomed.

The roaring climax came at the theater meeting.

A committee of their own kind was commissioned to take their story to the nation. They hoped that somewhere, some place, there was an industry ready to leap at the opportunity to move into a ready-made plant with a ready-made crew of skilled workers who were willing to work at reduced wages.

There were some hecklers at first, but they were shouted down with a vengance. Half a loaf sounded good to a hungry man and some had their children with them.

Indian Glad Kennedy Won

BALTIMORE (AP) — An Indian newspaperman said Friday he and most of his countrymen are glad Sen. John F. Kennedy won the presidential election.

Ponneri Loganathan, chief sub-editor of The Mail in Madras, India, also said the election provided some lessons for India.

"We are struggling to mold a united nation out of peoples speaking many languages and holding various religious beliefs," Loganathan said in article for The Evening Sun.

"We take pride in the fact that in the State of Parliament election predominantly Hindu constituencies often elect Moslems or Christians.

"But the Indian nation would have come of age when a Moslem or Christian has no difficulty in being elected Prime Minister or President of India."

Pressman Says Potomac River Compact Illegal

BALTIMORE (AP) — An attorney for Southern Maryland watermen said Friday ratification of a new Potomac River Compact with Virginia in Tuesday's election was illegal because the referendum was not properly advertised.

Attorney Hyman A. Pressman called on Gov. Tawes to refrain from issuing a proclamation declaring the question adopted by Maryland voters.

"The purported ratification by the voters was unconstitutional, illegal and of no effect for the reason that the publication thereof was utterly deficient," said Pressman. He represents the St. Mary's County Watermen's Association and the Charles County Watermen's Association, two groups which opposed the proposed compact.

The compact, which would create a bi-state agency to regulate the Potomac fishery, was petitioned onto the ballot by Southern Maryland watermen.

Unofficial returns gave the proposal a safe margin of some 33,000 votes.

Pressman claimed Maryland law calls for such referenda to be published at least once in two or more newspapers within the counties and in all daily newspapers in Baltimore City.

The attorney said the text of the proposed compact was published only in the Baltimore Sun of Oct. 5. "Obviously, someone has goofed," he said in his letter to Tawes.

Pressman called for republication of the proposal for a vote to be taken in the 1962 general election.

Pressman's letter to the governor was mailed Friday night.

Advertisement of constitutional amendments and other referenda are the responsibility of the secretary of state's office. Secretary of State Thomas B. Finan said Friday night he had not heard of Pressman's letter but would check it out.

Pressman did not say what steps he would take if Tawes declines to withhold a proclamation declaring the compact proposal ratified. He clearly implied court action, however.

The new setup for regulation of the Potomac had been expected to go into operation after returns from Tuesday's election are ratified and Congress has approved the 1958 treaty.

The compact, designed to restore peace and promote development of the Potomac, had become a campaign issue between Republicans and Democrats, with the GOP leadership opposed and the Democratic state administration and candidates favoring it. Among those opposed were Maryland's two U.S. senators, J. Glenn Beall and John Marshall Butler.

The pact is an effort to settle differences between Maryland and Virginia which have existed since 1785, when Maryland gave Virginia equal fishing rights in the Potomac in return for free passage of Maryland ships through the Virginia capes.

The new treaty was worked out after Virginia had filed suit in the Supreme Court challenging an act of the 1957 Maryland Legislature which attempted to abrograte, without Virginia's consent, the 1785 compact.

thrown out. He said that it is his understanding that ballots had been impounded in 13 counties in New Mexico, which Kennedy carried by a small margin.

Finch said he had been urged by telephone and wires to "check into vote frauds in Philadelphia." But he said no one had come forward with any evidence to support fraud claims.

P-1 — ADD MORTON ASKS ....

The Democratic high command showed no alarm, Chairman Henry M. Jackson remarking at Seattle, Wash., that the Republican action "appears to be based merely on the fact that they've lost a close election." He also said it appears to be "a fishing expedition on a grand scale."

The Republican complaints demanded recounts and investigations of purported vote frauds in Tuesday's presidential election, Morton said. He also reported the vice president's office was receiving "thousands of telegrams and calls."

Morton announced that as a result of the requests, he was asking state and county Republican chairmen in 11 states "to take any necessary action to determine specific complaints and file them with the local U.S. attorney's offices so that we can proceed with the investigation of these reports."

Morton listed the 11 states, which have a total of 161 electoral votes, in alphabetical order in his formal statement. In an earlier talk with a reporter the chairman had laid special stress on Illinois and Texas.

The other nine: Delaware, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and South Carolina.

CUF Nears Campaign Goal $352,666

The County United Fund is within $16,600 of its goal and William E. Crooks, general chairman, predicted yesterday the goal will be exceeded by Thanksgiving.

An audit conducted last night reveals that $336,027.96 has been contributed to CUF to date of a goal of $352,666.

"We are well on our way to completion of this campaign," Crooks said today, adding, "it is anticipated that all areas will wrap up their goals by Thanksgiving."

A breakdown of the five large divisions of the CUF fund-raising organization reveals the following amounts and percentages of goals:

Big 7 (industries) — $120,516.82 or 105.4 per cent of the goal.

Cumberland Business—$7,993.85 or 79.9 per cent of goal.

Cumberland Classified — $45,124.94 or 86.6 per cent of goal.

Cumberland Golden Gifts—$117,294 or 97.7 per cent of goal.

County areas (all divisions)—$45,098.35 or 80.1 per cent of goal.

This amounts to $336,027.96 or 95.3 per cent of the $352,666, Crooks said.

The Central Creek area has reported $1,832 or 123.1 per cent of goal; East County (Ridgeley, Wiley Ford), $503.50 or 50.4 per cent of goal; Frostburg, $9,333.08 or 62.2 per cent of goal; Keyser, $21,873.05 or 98.5 per cent of goal; and the Tri-Towns, $11,556.72 or 69.6 per cent of goal.

A breakdown of some of the totals of the campaign show that in the Central Creek section Business and Classified combined had attained 161.8 per cent of goal; Golden Gifts, 110.1 per cent of goal; and residential, 89.2 per cent of goal.

In Frostburg, business had 23.8 per cent; classified, 92.7 per cent; Golden Gifts, 48.4 per cent and residential, 50.4 per cent.

Keyser's report listed business 148.5 per cent; classified, 97.2 per cent; and Golden Gifts, 96.3 per cent.

In the Tri-Towns, business and classified combined had 15.5 per cent and Golden Gifts, 98 per cent.

County Posts Meal Order

Notices will be posted by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners at the various county institutions concerning the payment of Social Security taxes on meals provided county employes in lieu of wages.

The Social Security program provides that in all cases where meals or other services are given workers in lieu of wages there must be payment based on the cost of the meals.

The Social Security tax on meals will amount to approximately 90 cents per worker each quarter, according to the commissioners.

Power Firm Changes Name

Stockholders of the West Penn Electric Company, parent company of the Potomac Edison Company, have authorized changing the parent firm's name to Allegheny Power System Inc.

The action will have no effect on the operations of the local electric utility company, officials said.

Originally, the name West Penn accurately described the company's location since at that time it operated primarily in the western Pennsylvania area. Today, however, the larger part of the territory is in Maryland, Ohio, Virginia and West Virginia.

Potomac Edison, West Penn Power and Monongahela Power are the three major operating companies of the Allegheny Power System.

Chaney Trailers Used To Transport Glass To Texas

The use of Cumberland-owned trailers to transport the largest plates the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company has sold to date, from the Crystal City, Mo., plant to Texas, is reported in the current issue of People, the PPG magazine.

Moving the 66 lights of half-inch plate glass to the new City National Bank building in Houston presented Texas-sized transportation problems.

Special trailer equipment not available in the west was required.

The PPG traffic department came up with the answer. Two huge trailers owned by the Chaney Transportation Company of this city with bays of 33 feet in length and sides nine feet high were located operating out of the Cumberland PPG plant.

The trailers were utilized on a load of plate glass from Cumberland to Chicago customers and then rushed to Crystal City empty in time for shipment deadline.

At Crystal City, the trailers were loaded, then driven to St. Louis and turned over to the Frisco Railway for shipment piggy back style to Dallas where the Southern Pacific took over for the haul to Houston.

The trailers delivered the gigantic plates, two in a case, in seven round trips from Crystal City to Houston. Each could carry only five cases per trip. The additional trailer space was filled with smaller lights of glass to utilize all of the van.

The Cumberland trailers were loaded with glass for shipment East when the project was over and another savings was realized.

Madalyn Rizer Heads Women's Sport Club

The Women's Sport Club elected officers and selected a Christmas project at the dinner meeting Thursday evening at the Cumberland Country Club. Mrs. Madalyn Rizer was elected president; Mrs. Mary Humbertson, vice president; Mrs. Martha McNeil, secretary, and Mrs. Hazel Keech, treasurer.

It was decided to adopt two needy families for Christmas. Mrs. Lucille Durrett, Mrs. Dorothy George and Mrs. Marjorie Kight were named in charge of the project. The club gave $25 to CUF and welcomed Mrs. Helen Carroll as a member.

A Christmas party will be held December 1 at the Ali Ghan Country Club. The committee consists of Mrs. Lona Daum, Mrs. Keech, Mrs. Mabel Pierce and Mrs. Lillian Klavuhn.

Mrs. Frances Brown offered the invocation and Mrs. Martha Gerkins conducted the meeting. The decorations were in the patriotic motif marking Veterans Day. An arrangement of red, white and blue carnations centered the table. The favors were corsages of white carnations with red, white and blue ribbons, and boxes of candy.

Cards concluded the evening. Winners in bridge were Mrs. Carroll, Mrs. Mabel Pierce and Mrs. Ann Everline: and in 500, Miss Cathleen Diehl, Mrs. Edith Shanholtz and Mrs. Marion Hubbs. First prizes were wall plaques, second, serving trays and third, desk baskets. A special award of the centerpiece was made to Mrs. Eleanor Lavin and a turkey platter to Mrs. Emma Crawford. The committee consisted of Mrs. Brown, Miss Adelaide Hession and Mrs. Esther Stevens.

Guests were Miss May Marshall, Mrs. Gwendolyn Price, Mrs. Kathryn Sowers, Mrs. Eloise Shaffer, Mrs. Mildred Spates and Mrs. Yarnall. Other members present were Mrs. Frances Aman, Mrs. Julia Brant, Mrs. Loretta Cassen, Mrs. Elizabeth Creegan, Mrs. Daum, Mrs. Durrett, Mrs. Shirley Eisenberger, Mrs. Bessie Hanks, Miss Wanda Lee Hanks, Mrs. Loretta Haas, Mrs. Agnes Hersch, Miss Elizabeth Hoover, Mrs. Betty Hughes, Mrs. Humbertson, Mrs. Glayds Head, Mrs. Sarah Kelley, Mrs. Kight, Mrs. Klavuhn, Miss Ann Lottig, Mrs. McNeil, Mrs. Virginia Matt, Mrs. Mary Miller, Mrs. Nellie Nycum, Mrs. Rizer, Mrs. Margaret Pompei, Mrs. Mary Ellen Serf, Mrs. Virginia Swach, Mrs. LaVerne Tewell, Mrs. Martha Breig and Mrs. George.

Auxiliary To Hold Tea

The annual fall tea of the Memorial Hospital Auxiliary will be held November 16 at 2 o'clock in the nurses' home, Mrs. G. Louis Spoerl, hospital chairman, announces.

A silver offering will be taken for furniture for the nurses home.

Student nurses will be guests. Mrs. John A. Cupler II is chairman for the tea.

Jayncees Report On Projects

Chairmen submitted plans and budgets for the year at the dinner meeting of the Jayncees, held Wednesday at the Cumberland Country Club. Mrs. Arthur Davis Jr., offered the invocation and Mrs. Edward Eyler presided.

The civic committee will have two baskets of food for Thanksgiving. The hospitality chairman reported an average of 12 to 15 cakes had been made by members and delivered to the County Home and Infirmary each month. A total of 155 cakes had been delivered in the past two years. The Jayncees will continue the project this year.

It was decided the December meeting will be at the club and guests will be invited to a Christmas bazaar at 8 o'clock. A social will follow and refreshments will be served. Mrs. Daniel Blackburn was welcomed as a member.

A demonstration on Christmas decorations was given by Miss Jane Ebert. It included ways to decorate packages, Christmas table novelties and a door arrangement of pine cones. Other guests welcomed were Mrs. Richard Cover, Mrs. James Ridenbaugh, Mrs. L. F. Lockard, Mrs. Leo Russavage and Mrs. Bruce Douglas.

Chapter 914 To Buy Book For Library

The four important phases of a library were discussed by Miss Mary Walsh at the meeting of the Cumberland Chapter 914, Women of the Moose, Thursday evening. She pointed out a library is a source of information, recreation, education and inspiration. Miss Walsh traced the history of the Cumberland Public Library from its beginning in 1926 on Greene Street to its present location and this past July changed to a county library, with state and federal support. She discussed the bookmobile being bought for rural districts. She also spoke of the value of first editions and specifically of "Ben Hur."

Mrs. Florence Wolf conducted the business session. Balloting was held on two applications, for membership. Reservations were taken for the Star Recorder session in Hagerstown. Due to Thanksgiving the next meeting was advanced a week. The chapter voted to purchase a book for the library, which the children need in their classes for dissecting a rabbit. A social hour followed and refreshments were served by Mrs. Betty Shipley.

Joan of Arc was burned at the stake in 1431 as a heretic and sorceress.

JUNIOR WOMAN'S CIVIC CLUB MANIKINS—A "Fashion Holiday" will be presented by the Junior Woman's Civic Club Tuesday evening at the Ali Ghan Country club, beginning at 8 o'clock. At 9 o'clock a card party will be held. Proceeds are for the charity fund of the club. Mrs. Arthur Friedland will be commentator for the show, with fashions by Peskin, including Botique accessories. Hair designs will be by Mrs. Margaret Fulton and James Rice, with makeup by Mrs. Margaret Cameron. Music will be by Peck Mills. Mrs. Bruce Douglas and Miss Angela Long are co-chairmen. Left to right modeling some of the gowns to be shown are Mrs. Ralph Sell Jr., Mrs. Edward Dove and Mrs. Kenneth Morgan.

Bridge Winners Announced

Hugo Keller, a long-time member of the Western Maryland Bridge Club, was presented a gift prior to a game Thursday evening at the Woman's Civic Club. Mr. Keller, who is retiring from the staff of the Amcelle plant of the Celanese Fibers Company, plans to move to Florida at the end of the month.

Members of the club were served a spaghetti dinner, prepared by Mr. Keller, prior to the game.

Topping the field was the team of John A. Moberly and Norman W. Taylor, who finished with a score of 194½. There were 15½ tables in play, with an average of 156 recorded. Runnersup in North-South were A. J. Feigus and Richard D. Schwab, 190½; Mrs. Joseph Knepp and Mrs. William Snyder, 180½; Mrs. Roy Drumm and Mrs. Frederick Puderbaugh, 174, and Miss Julia Jackson and Theodore W. Gray, 165½.

Top scores in East-West were Mrs. Norman W. Taylor and John R. Wilkinson, 180; S. Russ Minter and James D. Preaskorn, 177; Mrs. H. D. Harper and Mrs. Ralph Nevy, 175; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Paddleford, 173½, and Edgar J. Dawson and Irving Millenson, 168½.

The Cumberland Duplicate Bridge Club will play a game today at the Civic Club, beginning at 1 p. m.

Between 1649 and 1658, England was ruled by a commoner, Oliver Cromwell.

About one billion pounds of coffee are consumed annually in the United States.

Medical Auxiliary Will Entertain Future Nurses

Announcement of a tea the Woman's Auxiliary of the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Society will sponsor was made by Mrs. A. J. Mirkin at the luncheon meeting held at Penn Alps, Grantsville, Wednesday. It is to be held in January for the Future Nurses Club of Allegany High School, at which time Mrs. Howard Tolson will be guest speaker.

Mrs. Thomas Lewis presided. Mrs. Benedict Skitarelic introduced Mrs. Gladys S. Brooks, guest speaker. Mrs. Brooks, supervisor of nurses of Memorial Hospital, spoke on the vital part that the Future Nurses Clubs do in recruiting nurses. Mrs. Robert Brodell and Mrs. Richard Schindler were introduced as new members. The hospitality committee, headed by Mrs. William Iames and Mrs. Lewis Mould, reported that 37 doctors' wives were interested in the work of the auxiliary. Mrs. Carlton Brinsfield reported that the medical education committee had aided Dr. Gina Glick in the Poison Control Center work. She also reported a request for the medical panel for a PTA group in Midland.

Mrs. Blaine Schindler was in charge of arrangements. Others present were Mrs. Leslie Daugherty, Mrs. Iames, Mrs. Rhett Rathbone, Mrs. Tolson, Mrs. Mould, Mrs. Carlton Brinsfield, Mrs. Ralph Reiter, Mrs. Lloyd Meyers and Mrs. G. Overton Himmelwright.

Bridge Winners Are Announced

Playing East-West in the Potomac Valley Bridge Club charity master point game Tuesday evening, Mrs. H. D. Harper and Hugo Keller scored 98; Mr. and Mrs. George Bottorf, 87½; Mrs. Harvey Aaronson, Norman Taylor, 87. The average was 84.

North-South winners were Miss Julia Jackson, Mrs. B. F. Lewis, 94½; Miss Alice Stakem, Edgar J. Dawson, 92½; Mrs. Madeline Mewshaw, John R. Wilkinson, 90½.

Newcomers Plan Yule Baskets, Dinner-Dance

The Newcomers Club was the guest of the S. T. Little Company, Thursday evening. Mrs. Robert Wilkins presided at a short business session. Reports included plans for a Christmas dinner-dance. It is to be held at the Cumberland Country Club December 10. Mrs. John Sweeney is general chairman. Reservations are to be given to card captains by December 5.

A donation of $50 was voted to make up Christmas baskets. Mrs. Arthur Maness was named chairman to work with the Associated Charities. The December meeting was canceled. The next will be January 12, at the Scout house. It was announced that husbands of members are invited to an open house at Peskin's December 8 at 8 o'clock. In order to plan the evening, reservations are to be given to Mrs. Benjamin Trevalyn by December 6.

Seventeen new members were introduced. They are Mrs. Louis Spoerl Jr., from Philadelphia, whose husband is with the Spoerl Garage; Mrs. Richard Mayer, from Los Angeles; Mrs. Lawrence Kelly, Fargo, N.D.; Mrs. William Zach, Windber, Pa.; Mrs. James Gomer, St. Joseph, Mo.; Mrs. George Schroeder, Lawrence, Kans.; Mrs. Roger Dalton, Oxford, Miss.; Mrs. Edward Robinson, Fairmont, W.Va.; Mrs. Edward R. Weber, Birmingham, Ala., whose husbands are with ABL; Mrs. Edwin Cotner, Vienna, W.Va., whose husband is sales manager of Fairmont Foods; Mrs. Walter Campbell, Silver Spring, whose husband is manager of the Social Security office here; Mrs. Thomas Rentz, Columbus, Ohio, Mrs. Walter Dych, Ford City, Pa., Pittsburgh Plate Glass; Mrs. John Fink, Johnstown, Pa., sales manager of Sunset Memorial Park; Mrs. James Starr, Norristown, Pa., Allegany Instruments; Mrs. Paul Pritchard, State College, Pa., district sales manager of Fuller Brush Company; and Mrs. Thomas Seach, Pittsburgh, manager of Hallmark Card Case.

Guests were Mrs. Willetta Dodson, mother of Mrs. Schroeder; Mrs. John Royster, mother of Mrs. Maness and Debra LaPeyre, daughter of Mrs. Kay P. LaPeyre.

Robert Little Ebert welcomed the 70 Newcomers. He gave a short history of the store in the past 109 years. He presented historical plates to the women coming from the place farthest from the United States, one being Scotland and the other South America; the greatest distance in the United States, Seattle, Wash., and the mother with the youngest child, with a one-month-old daughter. A gift certificate was awarded to Mrs. Eugene Loflin. A tour was made of both floors, and refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Ebert.

Research flights indicate that much of a hurricane's tremendous energy is released within a few miles of the storm's calm eye. A hurricane discharges in a single second more power than several atomic bombs. In less than an hour, it expends more energy than 50 years' production of electricity in the United States. In a day, a hurricane can lift two billion tons of water from the ocean and hurl it back as torrential rain.

Two "C's"–Christianity And Crime–Hit New Peaks In Puzzling Parallel

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

Statistics are at an all-time high today for the two "C's"—Christianity and crime.

It's a puzzling parallel.

Measured numerically, both elements have risen simultaneously at a rate far faster than the relative growth in population, and totals last year hit new peaks—112 million church members and 1½ million serious crimes.

Why would the proportion of criminal behavior and religious affiliation both be on a sharp upcurve at the same time?

Church sources offer various clues to the puzzle, such as world tensions, greater mass concentration of people in cities, the higher rate of moving from place to place.

But they also wonder why the expending scope of churches isn't providing a counterbalance.

"If Christianity is what it claims to be it cannot escape from a tremendous sense of accountability in the light of the appalling comparative statistics," says the Seventh-day Adventist journal, the Review and Herald.

For over-all U.S. church membership, the increase has been 28 per cent since 1950, and 76 per cent since 1940. Crime, as reported by the FBI, has risen 69 per cent since 1950 and 128 per cent since 1940.

Comparatively, the population has risen only 17 per cent since 1950, and 36 per cent since 1940. Church membership now stands at 63.4 per cent of the population, 15 per cent more than 20 years ago.

Yet with a bigger share of people going to church, a bigger share also are courting a jail cell. Why the seemingly contradictory combination?

"Superficial religion" say some. "Inadequate religious education" say others. Or: "Oversized institutions," "watered-down preaching," "secular influences," "television crime." And a host of other possibilities.

"As the nation's religious curve has gone up, the nation's moral curve has gone down," writes Catholic layman John Cogley in the Commonweal.

"'Bigness', which has afflicted ecclesiastical life, may have much to do with it."

Methodist Bishop F. Gerald Ensley, of Des Moines, citing general symptoms of a slump in public morality, says "It's quite ironic" that it would come in the midst of a supposed religious upturn.

"If sackcloth and ashes are in order, repentance might well begin in the house of God," he says. "For one of the avowed aims of the church is the elevation of character."

He suggests a main source of trouble is that education is "in the grips of a humanistic philosophy," that eschews religion and lacks any firm moral anchor.

Says the Rev. Dr. Robert E. Fitch, of the Pacific School of Religion: "We live today in an age when ethics is becoming obsolete. It is superseded by science, deleted by psychology, dismissed as emotive by philosophy.

"The usual moral distinctions are simply drowned in a maudlin emotion in which we have more feeling for the murderer than for the murdered, for the adulterer than for the betrayed."

The editorial in the Review and Herald, by editor Francis D. Nichols, blames the trouble on a loss of vitality in the churches themselves, and the abandonment of any emphasis on sin.

"Today the word sin has lost that tremendous moral vividness it possessed in a day when men were instructed that the violation of the Ten Commandments was an offense against a persona, God," the editorial declares.

"The kind of religion that is preached in most of the churches lacks the vital, life-changing power that is the distinguishing mark of true Christianity."

Yes, faces are different the world over. But hearts have a common hunger. For Hope . . . Life . . . Truth.

Therefore, expressing the fervor of the citizens and churches of this brave, free land, the American Bible Society has sought for 144 years to translate and distribute the Scriptures for every nation and tribe.

Many local congregations, directly or through their denominations, are supporting this vital work. In addition, the suggested readings which appear regularly in these advertisements are provided by the American Bible Society, and reach you as another contribution of American citizens and churches to this important cause.

You see, worldwide Bible reading is the simple, practical expression of one of our fundamental convictions: The Bible IS the Book for Everyone.

Tonight—at the dinner table or in a quiet moment—millions of American homes will put that conviction into earnest, reverent, daily practice! Will yours?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Two "C's"—Christianity And Crime—Hit New Peaks In Puzzling Parallel

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

Statistics are at an all-time high today for the two "C's"—Christianity and crime.

It's a puzzling parallel.

Measured numerically, both elements have risen simultaneously at a rate far faster than the relative growth in population, and totals last year hit new peaks—112 million church members and 1½ million serious crimes.

Why would the proportion of criminal behavior and religious affiliation both be on a sharp upcurve at the same time?

Church sources offer various clues to the puzzle, such as world tensions, greater mass concentration of people in cities, the higher rate of moving from place to place.

But they also wonder why the expending scope of churches isn't providing a counterbalance.

"If Christianity is what it claims to be it cannot escape from a tremendous sense of accountability in the light of the appalling comparative statistics," says the Seventh-day Adventist journal, the Review and Herald.

For over-all U.S. church membership, the increase has been 28 per cent since 1950, and 76 per cent since 1940. Crime, as reported by the FBI, has risen 69 per cent since 1950 and 128 per cent since 1940.

Comparatively, the population has risen only 17 per cent since 1950, and 36 per cent since 1940. Church membership now stands at 63.4 per cent of the population, 15 per cent more than 20 years ago.

Yet with a bigger share of people going to church, a bigger share also are courting a jail cell. Why the seemingly contradictory combination?

"Superficial religion" say some. "Inadequate religious education" say others. Or: "Oversized institutions," "watered-down preaching," "secular influences," "television crime." And a host of other possibilities.

"As the nation's religious curve has gone up, the nation's moral curve has gone down," writes Catholic layman John Cogley in the Commonweal.

"'Bigness', which has afflicted ecclesiastical life, may have much to do with it."

Methodist Bishop F. Gerald Ensley, of Des Moines, citing general symptoms of a slump in public morality, says "It's quite ironic" that it would come in the midst of a supposed religious upturn.

"If sackcloth and ashes are in order, repentance might well begin in the house of God," he says. "For one of the avowed aims of the church is the elevation of character."

He suggests a main source of trouble is that education is "in the grips of a humanistic philosophy," that eschews religion and lacks any firm moral anchor.

Says the Rev. Dr. Robert E. Fitch, of the Pacific School of Religion: "We live today in an age when ethics is becoming obsolete. It is superseded by science, deleted by psychology, dismissed as emotive by philosophy.

"The usual moral distinctions are simply drowned in a maudlin emotion in which we have more feeling for the murderer than for the murdered, for the adulterer than for the betrayed."

The editorial in the Review and Herald, by editor Francis D. Nichols, blames the trouble on a loss of vitality in the churches themselves, and the abandonment of any emphasis on sin.

"Today the word sin has lost that tremendous moral vividness it possessed in a day when men were instructed that the violation of the Ten Commandments was an offense against a persona, God," the editorial declares.

"The kind of religion that is preached in most of the churches lacks the vital, life-changing power that is the distinguishing mark of true Christianity."

Yes, faces are different the world over. But hearts have a common hunger. For Hope . . . Life . . . Truth.

Therefore, expressing the fervor of the citizens and churches of this brave, free land, the American Bible Society has sought for 144 years to translate and distribute the Scriptures for every nation and tribe.

Many local congregations, directly or through their denominations, are supporting this vital work. In addition, the suggested readings which appear regularly in these advertisements are provided by the American Bible Society, and reach you as another contribution of American citizens and churches to this important cause.

You see, worldwide Bible reading is the simple, practical expression of one of our fundamental convictions: The Bible IS the Book for Everyone.

Tonight—at the dinner table or in a quiet moment—millions of American homes will put that conviction into earnest, reverent, daily practice! Will yours?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Garrett Ski Season Discussed

Nicholson Will Probated

The will of Somerville Nicholson Sr., who was the 63-year-old supervisor of assessments in Allegany County at the time he died suddenly October, 31, has been probated in Allegany County Orphans Court.

Mr. Nicholson left a cash bequest to his son, Somerville Nicholson Jr., Alexandria, Va., and $2,000 to the Vestry of Emmanuel Episcopal Church. All the rest of the estate was left in trust with the First National Bank and Trust Company as trustee and the net income from the trust will go to his widow, Mrs. Louise E. Nicholson.

Upon her death the trust will be dissolved and the estate will go to their son. The First National Bank and Trust Company qualified as executor under a $500 bond. The will was dated August 22, 1960.

The First National Bank and Trust Company also qualified as executor under another $500 bond of the estate of Mrs. Polly Jane Anderson, an 85-year-old former resident of 938 Gay Street, who died November 3 at a nursing home in Grantsville.

Mrs. Anderson left a cash bequest to her stepson, Harry E. Anderson, Creighton, Pa. All of the rest of the estate is to be shared equally by her stepson, four nieces, Vida Norris, Orange, Va.; Lelia Fisher, Rosie Burton and Minnie Davis, all of Allegany County, and a nephew, Howard B. Twigg, also of Allegany County. This will was dated November 28, 1956.

Two Apathetic Candidates Elected Sheriffs In W.Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Two mavericks are sheriffs-elect in West Virginia.

Both approached their jobs with downright apathy.

Mrs. Esta Dodrill became the first woman ever elected sheriff in one-time rowdy Webster County. The sheriff-elect in Clay County is Randall Exline, 23, a Monday-through-Friday bookkeeper in Washington, D.C.

The two Democrats owe their jobs to the State Supreme Court. It ruled last summer that a deputy couldn't enter the race for sheriff.

This stopped two deputies cold — Exline's father, Arnold, and Mrs. Dodrill's husband, Willard. Both were winners in the May primary.

So the names of their kin were placed on the ballot.

Young Exline did very little campaigning except a few visits on weekends. Mrs. Dodrill did absolutely no campaigning.

Furthermore, she plans to do absolutely no work at the office. Mrs. Dodrill says she has too much housework, and she's going to let Willard take care of the job he wanted.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You seem to have an awful lot to say against mothers-in-law. You probably drew a pill. I hope you'll print the other side.

My son married an empty-headed little nothing who doesn't know anything about keeping house, cooking or rearing children. When an appliance breaks it just sits there. Her vacuum cleaner isn't working, her toaster cord is frayed and she borrowed my iron every Tuesday for three months.

Her whole house looks like Fibber McGee's closet. I've seen her kids with the same jam on their faces for two days straight. When I try to tell her how to do things she runs to my son and says I'm "butting in." Am I?—OTHER SIDE

DEAR OTHER: Well, yes. However well-intentioned the criticism, it's unwelcome — and this constitutes butting in.

Of course it's difficult for a mother to sit by and watch all this, but under the circumstances, the best thing you can do is to leave her alone.

(P.S. I hate to spoil your theory, but my mother-in-law is a gem. Twenty-one years and not a single "suggestion.")

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When Jake married me, I was a widow with four children. I told him he was taking on a big load but he said he knew it and didn't care. He was wonderful to the kids and they were crazy about him.

Now, after a year, he's beginning to complain about the high cost of the kids' shoes, haircuts, the grocery bill and the dentist's charges for braces. He thinks PTA dues are a racket and I have to explain to him where every penny goes.

He makes $150 a week and manages to save a little out of every check, so it isn't as if we are terribly hard up. We own this house and don't owe anybody anything. What can I say to a man like this? — SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: Tell him that he married you with eyes wide open so now he can shut his mouth.

Of course kids' shoes cost money. Are adult's shoes free? And braces are expensive, and so are groceries and I can name a long list of other things. But what did he think marriage with a ready-made family was going to be like?

(P. S. It's no cheaper when you make your own!)

No woman should have to account for every penny and beg for a few dollars to spend as she chooses. This is a matter of personal dignity. Tell the guy he has a lot to be thankful for and to quit bellyachin'.

DEAR ANN: My boy friend gave me a bracelet for my birthday. He said it was gold. My wrist turns green every time I wear that bracelet. My girl friend says good jewelry doesn't turn the skin green, and that my boy friend gave me a cheap present. True or false? — MARIETTA

DEAR MARIETTA: False. Your body chemistry may well be to blame. Some people, because of an abundance of certain acids in the system, get green marks from a variety of metals which touch the skin.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have to write this letter or flip my lid. I boiled over when I read the attacks on you by women who don't want to pick up after their husbands. May I have a few inches of newspaper space to say something in behalf of those of us who think you are right — that picking up after a husband is part of being a decent wife.

I've known women who knock themselves out for organizations. They run to meetings, spend hours on the telephone, bake like crazy for church bazars and haul tons of rummage in their cars. But when it comes to doing something extra for their own family, they scream like wounded elk.

A women's basic satisfactions should come from her home. If these dames don't think so, why did they marry? —A REAL WIFE

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry— Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.)

LaVale Auction Set Today

Officials of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company said last night that the company has hundreds of items on hand for its auction at 11 a. m. today at the fire hall.

Already on hand, officials said, are living room suites, dining room furniture, bathroom fixtures, hand plows, pianos, corn planters, toys, knick-knacks, tools, building supplies, lamps, tables, tires, wearing apparel and other items.

Chief James Loar and George Boch have been in charge of arranging the auction.

Bradye Dolly will be the auctioneer.

Cantons are the names given to the states in the Swiss confederacy.

Garrett Ski Season Discussed

Nicholson Will Probated

The will of Somerville Nicholson Sr., who was the 63-year-old supervisor of assessments in Allegany County at the time he died suddenly October, 31, has been probated in Allegany County Orphans Court.

Mr. Nicholson left a cash bequest to his son, Somerville Nicholson Jr., Alexandria, Va., and $2,000 to the Vestry of Emmanuel Episcopal Church. All the rest of the estate was left in trust with the First National Bank and Trust Company as trustee and the net income from the trust will go to his widow, Mrs. Louise E. Nicholson.

Upon her death the trust will be dissolved and the estate will go to their son. The First National Bank and Trust Company qualified as executor under a $500 bond. The will was dated August 22, 1960.

The First National Bank and Trust Company also qualified as executor under another $500 bond of the estate of Mrs. Polly Jane Anderson, an 85-year-old former resident of 938 Gay Street, who died November 3 at a nursing home in Grantsville.

Mrs. Anderson left a cash bequest to her stepson, Harry E. Anderson, Creighton, Pa. All of the rest of the estate is to be shared equally by her stepson, four nieces, Vida Norris, Orange, Va.; Lelia Fisher, Rosie Burton and Minnie Davis, all of Allegany County, and a nephew, Howard B. Twigg, also of Allegany County. This will was dated November 28, 1956.

Two Apathetic Candidates Elected Sheriffs In W.Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Two mavericks are sheriffs-elect in West Virginia.

Both approached their jobs with downright apathy.

Mrs. Esta Dodrill became the first woman ever elected sheriff in one-time rowdy Webster County. The sheriff-elect in Clay County is Randall Exline, 23, a Monday-through-Friday bookkeeper in Washington, D.C.

The two Democrats owe their jobs to the State Supreme Court. It ruled last summer that a deputy couldn't enter the race for sheriff.

This stopped two deputies cold — Exline's father, Arnold, and Mrs. Dodrill's husband, Willard. Both were winners in the May primary.

So the names of their kin were placed on the ballot.

Young Exline did very little campaigning except a few visits on weekends. Mrs. Dodrill did absolutely no campaigning.

Furthermore, she plans to do absolutely no work at the office. Mrs. Dodrill says she has too much housework, and she's going to let Willard take care of the job he wanted.

Visitors To Entertain

A 45-minute floor show will be presented by the Minstrellaires of Knoxville, Pa., Lodge 1196, Elks, tonight in the cotillion room of Cumberland Lodge 63.

Dancing will begin at 9:30, with music by Peck Mills orchestra. The show will be at 11:15.

British Viewpoints And The Election

Seeing ourselves as others see us always has a salutary effect, provided we do not become carried away and thereby go to whatever opposite extremes the other fellow's viewpoint may take us. Some perspective on the approaching change in the national administration may therefore be gained from a sampling of representative British press comment, supplied by British Information Services.

The Conservative Daily Telegraph on election day said that neither candidate had struck any deep chords in British hearts, but both seemed able, intelligent and balanced. The editorial said that, while either might be less sensitive to British feelings than Mr. Eisenhower has been, nevertheless "it is in Britain's interests to have the United States governed by men fully aware of the facts of contemporary international life," and that "this change is to be welcomed — painful as it may be to British susceptibilities."

A slightly different point of view was expressed by the Liberal Guardian of Manchester, which said that whether the new President was to be Vice President Nixon or Senator Kennedy, "the American people are now ready to respond to a more vigorous lead than they have been given for the last eight years. The Eisenhower years were a period of lying fallow — inevitable and healthy, after the tensions and heroism of the Second World War and the Korean War."

The Conservative Yorkshire Post said that, whichever way the election should go, "even from this side of the Atlantic, one senses a brisk wind of change blowing across the westerly half-continent."

We are inclined to feel that these comments from overseas go nearer to the really basic things than did most of the pre-election comment in this country. The point is that, no matter who had won the election, a youthful and vigorous approach was to be expected, and new courses of action were sure to follow. We hope that Mr. Kennedy as President will choose the right courses in the difficult years ahead.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Urban Civilization

What the recent election has proved is that the urbanization of American life has altered the thinking, perhaps even the nature of the American. A century ago he was, in the main, a farmer, a rancher, a miner; he lived generally in an isolated farm house with his family about him, even to the third generation.

In 1860, the population of the United States was 31,513,000 compared to about 180,000,000 today. In 1860, the rural population was 25,226,000 as compared with 6,216,000 in cities; today, the figures would show a reverse ratio. Urban population was in 1959, 104,990,000; rural 68,717,000, exclusive of the military.

Ira deA. Reid at the 1960 White House Conference on Children and Youth about the urban environment:

> "It is the area of the population explosion with its high fertility, low mortality, and increasing employment of mothers. It is an area where religious affiliation is increasing, and the pursuit of pleasure is more possible than ever. This urban world was molded in part by forces which have given us the moral order of the slum, the need for bohemia in an otherwise well-ordered society, the have-to-look-happy families of our young executives, the anxious ex-urbanite, the contented though dominated small town dweller, and the 'organization child' who has learned to package his personality for sale to his 'organization parent.'"

Politically, the rural community was more homogeneous than the urban which is a multi-group community. The rural community could accept isolationism as a doctrine because it was largely isolated, integrated, intermarried, monolithic in its ideas. It is for this reason that it was possible to say that a state like Michigan was Republican and Virginia Democratic. Today, it is not possible to make such estimates because Michigan is an industrial state with a large urban population living on wages in industry which is concerned with world markets, whereas Virginia is offended by the Big City social and economic ideas of the North.

Even rural society has been changed by the automobile, radio and television so that a remote farm is close to an urban center, reads an urban newspaper and probably a New York City edited magazine.

In fact, one New York newspaper is rapidly developing monopolistic practices which may ultimately change the character of the rural press. Samuel W. Blizzard said this well:

"Rural dwellers and farmers are a minority group in a multiple-industry society where economic values are paramount and farmers are consumers, as all producers are. This fact has restructured rural society, especially for the commercial farmer as distinct from the traditional farmer, undermining the traditional Protestant and puritan ethic of work, industriousness, frugality, and thrift that was basic to the rural economy. In the modern rural community where farmers operate like businessmen everywhere, taking calculated risks and using money and credit as a means to an end, this old Protestant ethic is no longer important."

The Calvinistic ethic which was the basis of American life for nearly three centuries has been pounded hard by all sorts of modern trends and newer peoples in our city communities. It is remarkable, however, that Protestantism, in its various forms of individualistic, non-conformistic society, does survive and in the present period is making a new progress which surprises even its own leaders. Such a figure as Billy Graham and such a movement as Moral Re-Armament cannot be ignored in any appraisal of what is happening to the United States in this year 1960.

Europeans criticize the facade of the United States. All neon signs do look much alike. However, the people are not the same. There is an enormous population difference between Hamtramck and Beverly Hills, between Miami Beach and Scranton, Pa. We are the most varied people among nations and the process of assimilation is much slower than is generally assumed. Our human population is not like identical neon signs. It is this vast variety, this multi-group character of our cities which is altering political characteristics throughout the country.

Kennedy Slowed Campaign To Dull Standstill In Closing Ten Days

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — It was Jack Kennedy himself who made the decision during the closing ten days of the campaign to pull Democratic campaign punches. It was a decision that dropped the polls from a wide pro-Kennedy margin down to fractions, sent last-minute shivers through his strategists, and resulted in the closest election since the Woodrow Wilson-Charles E. Hughes race in 1916.

Just as the winning football team tries to stall the ball and take no risk of fumbles in the closing minutes of the game, Kennedy ruled that it was best to play it safe. He had read the political signs and figured he was ahead.

His instructions were to stick to the fundamental issues that had already gained yardage for the Democrats and take no last-minute gambles by injecting new issues or answering Nixon charges. This was one reason why Kennedy's last-minute vote appeal was uninspiring and repetitious.

He felt that Nixon was swinging wild and that the public realized many of his punches were landing wide. Kennedy felt that this was alienating rather than winning the independent voters which both candidates needed.

For example, Kennedy felt that Nixon's last-minute announcement, that he would send Eisenhower, Hoover and Truman to tour the Iron Curtain countries and then bring the leaders of these Iron Curtain countries to Washington, laid an egg.

Some of his supporters wanted him to point out that these same leaders of the Iron Curtain countries had been in New York City only one month before and that Eisenhower had refused to see them, let alone invite them to Washington as Nixon now proposed. But Kennedy believed the voters recognized Nixon's proposal as an election gimmick, so it was never answered.

Some Kennedy cohorts also wanted to pound home the expose of Don Nixon's $205,000 loan from Howard Hughes.

But the Presidential candidate ruled this out. His strategy was—as long as he was ahead, avoid the possibility of fumbles.

In the closing days of the campaign, however, Kennedy's political mileage slowed down to a walk; Nixon picked up dangerous momentum. It almost became another Truman-Dewey election.

Buying Obscurity

At the outset of the Michigan Senate Race, observers predicted that Sen. Pat McNamara, Democrat, just recovered from a cancer operation, was in for a tough fight. As the only AFL-CIO member in the Senate, he was running against Congressman Alvin Bentley, whose grandfather helped found General Motors and who spent a record amount of money in the Republican primary.

Early in the campaign Bentley had the Lou Harris Poll check his prospects. Harris reported that Bentley suffered from 69 per cent nonrecognition. Michigan voters did not recognize his name.

Thereafter Harris drenched Detroit and Wayne County with radio spots, TV shots, and all sorts of advertising. You could hardly tune in your TV or radio without hearing Bentley's name.

After that the GOP Congressman had Harris take another poll. This time Harris reported Bentley suffered 72 per cent nonrecognition.

In brief, Bentley was buying himself into obscurity. The votes on election night bore this out. Pat McNamara won handsomely.

Campaign Slips

Here are some of the last-minute Democrat slips, plus Republican slips the Kennedy forces passed up: after Ike's Commonwealth Club speech in San Francisco, the Democratic National Committee demanded and got the right of 30 minutes free network time to answer the President. It was worth thousands of dollars, but Kennedy forces never used it . . . Nixon kept repeating that if elected President he would veto Red China's admission to the United States. But there is no such veto. And Nixon as President could not have used it. The only veto in the UN is in the Security Council and the question of membership comes before the UN Assembly where it's decided on a straight vote with no veto possible. Most Americans didn't understand this and believed Nixon. Kennedy never corrected him . . . Nixon also seemed to believe that the Baltic states have their own presidents whom he wanted to invite to Washington. There are no presidents of the Baltic states.

Nixon Lost A Friend

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany couldn't engage in American politics, but there were times when he wanted to.

He started out as one of Nixon's best private boosters, ended up as one of his worst private critics.

The Vice President had had several conferences with the tough, much-revered leader of West Germany, and Adenauer hoped he would be elected President. He figured that Nixon would line up with Germany on all issues regarding Communism.

However, speaking in Buffalo's Polish Union Hall in an effort to win the American-Polish votes, Nixon made it clear that he favored the present borders of Poland which include a good slice of pre-war Germany — Upper Silesia and East Prussia, largely populated by Germans.

This not only did not win votes in Buffalo, which went overwhelmingly Democratic, but it made Chancellor Adenauer chew nails. From that point on he expressed private doubts regarding Nixon as President.

Preliminary Estimate Of The Next President

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

There are all too many things to be said about the breathless and historic moment when the United States chose a new course.

For instance, there is at least one decided advantage in the narrow margin by which Sen. Kennedy was elected to the Presidency. It will strengthen Kennedy's long-felt impulse to form a truly national administration. The chances are now very good indeed that at least one high post will be offered to the kind of national-minded Republican typified by Under Secretary of State Douglas Dillon.

Again, quite aside from this special bonus, one can also predict that the new Kennedy administration will set an exacting standard of human quality.

To be sure, the next Secretary of Defense is unlikely to be a president of General Motors. But the most probable candidate, the little known chairman of the Citizens for Kennedy, Byron White, is a man of brilliant intellect, strong judgment, and great moral courage, who has worn his country's uniform with valor. He has, in short, all the qualifications which Charles E. Wilson so conspicuously lacked.

Yet again, there is the election's proof of the political talent of Kennedy and all his tribe. Consider, for instance, the nationwide registration drive organized by Robert Kennedy. It was modeled on the 1952 registration drive in Massachusetts, also organized by Robert Kennedy at the age of 26. That time, 150,000 new Massachusetts Democrats were put on the rolls, and Kennedy's winning majority was half that number. This time, the new registrants were again essential.

Or consider the other great practical factor in Kennedy's victory, his choice of Lyndon B. Johnson as his running mate, which was so much criticized at first. In the outcome, Lyndon Johnson not only performed magnificently in the campaign. In addition, his presence on the ticket meant the whole difference between triumph and disaster in the South.

A truly national approach; a knack for discovering and using able men; a great political talent—these qualities of Kennedy's are revealed by the foregoing brief, disconnected notes. They are qualities of utmost value for any American President.

Yet Kennedy's possession of these qualities is only part of the answer to the central question. One still wants to know what sort of man the American people have now chosen to lead this country and the free half of the world.

This reporter's worst misjudgments have always erred on the optimistic side. That must be said as preface, because my estimate of the man we have chosen is so supremely optimistic. In brief, after nearly thirty years of political handicapping and fifteen years of fairly close observation of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, I believe he is the only new political entrant in my time who has shown the promise of becoming a President of the first rank.

One of the marks of the true masters of men is complexity, and Kennedy is indeed too complex to be neatly summed up, even on the evidence of a decade and a half. One can only record some other obvious Kennedy qualities.

His mind, then, is unusually richly furnished, and he has a sense of the moment in history that can best be compared to Theodore Roosevelt's. He detests cant, whether the fashionable, damp cant of the liberal left of the smug, self-righteous cant of the right. He observes the world, and himself as well with an odd, detached, sardonic humor. Humorous style means much to him, and he is almost too afraid of anything that is corny—this fear prevents him from showing his feelings in public, as a politician sometimes needs to do.

He has strong feelings, nonetheless. The deepest of them, I would guess, is a passionate feeling for the greatness of America, an intense sense of the high destiny of this nation.

Next to this, there are his ambition, which is fierce, and his competitiveness, which is also fierce. But his priorities are proven by the gamble he took, when he keyed his Presidential campaign to an honest description of America's real posture in the world, at a time of seemingly unshakable national complacency. No one who put personal success above everything else would have taken the gamble of challenging that complacency.

In these last years, in truth, we in America have reached a condition like the condition of Theoden, the rich old king of the Mark of Rohan, in Tolkiens' saga of "The Lord of the Rings." As he did, we have taken too much to hoping for the best without preparing for the worst.

But a fresh breeze like the clean air that roused King Theoden is blowing in America now. And one now remembers the cry at Theoden's awakening: "Hope there is still, if we can but stand unconquered."

Inside Washington

TREASURY ALARM — The Treasury Department's burglar alarm short circuited again the other day and provided a shock for U. E. Baughman, chief of the U. S. Secret Service.

About a year ago, the alarm went off accidentally, Secret Service plainclothes operatives rushed into the halls armed with everything from their own service revolvers to tommy-guns. Into the same halls rushed the Treasury's uniformed guards, also equipped with a fine array of modern-day weapons.

Baughman shuddered. He envisioned a situation in which the guards would mistake the Secret Servicemen for thieves and start a small-scale shooting war.

After that episode, Baughman issued gold-braided uniform caps to all of his men with firm instructions that they be kept handy in their offices, and put on before leaving in the event of an alarm.

So the alarm went off again and into the halls rushed the uniformed guards and the plainclothesmen — without their identifying caps. "Where are your caps?" Baughman shouted in the midst of the melee.

But he really knew. They were hanging on the pegs in the offices, right where the Secret Servicemen had left them.

Baughman is now trying to figure out a gimmick to remind his men about the caps in the next moment of emergency, which might be real.

TESTIMONIAL — Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, developer of the atomic submarine, who is either loved or hated in Washington but never ignored, is the source of a goodly number of stories. One concerns a young civilian engineer on his staff who was wearing a Phi Beta Kappa key.

Rickover spotted the key one day and remarked, "You don't have to wear that to show people you're smart. People know you must be smart or you wouldn't be working for me. Here, let me give you a note." With that, Rickover scribbled, "I think you're smart," signed it and handed it to the nonplussed young engineer.

Medical Researchers Study Ticklishness

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Tickle tests, conducted at Chicago's Michael Reese hospital, showed that women are as ticklish as men or vice versa. Some people are ultra-ticklish because they have not adapted to the stimulus or tend to be emotional. Others have no tickle reaction; they feel the sensation but have learned to control their reactions.

Babies are not ticklish at all. They respond to skin sensation only around the mouth and the first clear-cut tickle response shows up at 3½ years of age. According to Dr. Joseph G. Kepecs, Dr. Milton Robin, and Mrs. Claire Munro, it is a new experience and explains why youngsters go into gales of laughter.

Why does ticklishness exist? According to the Michael Reese team, it may have begun as a mechanism for getting rid of distracting or annoying objects, comparable to the way a horse flicks off a fly with his tail.

The relationship between tobacco and cancer got a slight boost when the following case history was reported in the New England Journal of Medicine. A 58-year-old bachelor with a large cancer of the ear consulted the surgery department of the University of Minnesota medical school.

This man had been placing snuff in the left ear daily to weekly since the age of 16. This was a local Indian custom. Several hours later he would attempt to wipe it away but was none too successful, in view of the appearance of the ear canal.

This case will not surprise physicians because they know that skin cancers have been produced by rubbing or painting tobacco tars on rabbits and mice. In addition, cancer and precancerous lesions in the mouth have been traced to chewing tobacco or using snuff.

COLD BABY FOOD

Mrs. P. H. writes: I have been criticized for feeding our 1 year old child the junior baby foods cold from the jars. Is it necessary to heat these foods?

REPLY

No, but some of the foods taste better when warmed, are more likely to be sterile, and are more easily digested.

FINGER INFECTION

L. C. B. writes: How can felons be prevented?

REPLY

I assume you refer to a medical felon and not a lawbreaker. This type of infection is discouraged by keeping the hands clean, especially the fingers. Don't injure the cuticle or the skin surrounding the nails, and dry the hands thoroughly after they have been in water.

BRONCHI AND AIR SACS

E. M. S. writes: How do bronchitis and emphysema differ?

REPLY

Bronchitis is inflammation of the bronchi, characterized by coughing. Emphysema is a chronic lung disorder in which the air sacs have lost their elasticity. Because of over-stretching, they no longer function properly. Shortness of breath results.

GOUT AND BEER

L. C. writes: Is beer bad for gout?

REPLY

Not when used in moderation. An attack of gout may follow overindulgence in alcohol—be it beer or whisky.

IODINE IN FOODS

T. W. writes: Does fish contain iodine?

REPLY

Seafood is considered rich in this substance. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for list of foods containing iron.

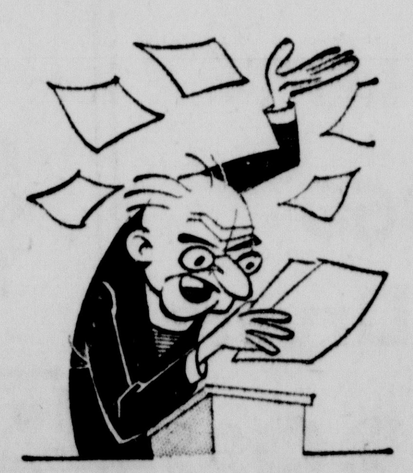
To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A well-loved minister always placed his Sunday morning sermon in his pulpit a half hour before the congregation assembled. A mischievous junior sneaked in one time and removed the last page of the manuscript.

The minister gave a fine rendering, as usual, of the sermon, till he reached the last page, which concluded, "So Adam said to Eve . . ." Turning the page, he was dismayed to discover, of course, that there simply wasn't any more. He fumbled through the script, distractedly repeating, 'So Adam said to Eve . . .," then added, very angrily and very distinctly, "Confound it, there appears to be a leaf missing!"



A young miss came home with her hat askew and lipstick smeared all over her face. "What happened to you?" demanded her mother. "It was gruesome," explained the young miss. "I was out with this French boy, and I didn't want him to know I couldn't understand a word he was saying, so I kept nodding my head."

End Of Complacency

By John Crosby

Just as the 1932 election was a defeat, final and irrevocable, of Wall Street as a dominant voice in government, this election has been a defeat, though not nearly so decisive and perhaps, also, not at all irrevocable, of Madison Avenue.

Early in his campaign, Vice President Nixon made noises indicating he'd cut loose from President Eisenhower and run his own campaign. But then Madison Avenue took control, the "everything is okay" approach (to use Gov. Stevenson's phraseology), which is essentially Madison Avenue, became the war cry—if war cry is not too stern a phrase. Still, it was such a narrow defeat and there were so many factors that Madison Avenue may live to run again, worse luck.

What is the Madison Avenue approach exactly? Well, you ask the people what they want to hear by survey and by research and then you give it to them. You send out a research team to determine what image the toothbrush should have. Then you manufacture it just as the people say. Now, not only is this a perfectly terrible way to run a government but it isn't even a very good way to make a toothbrush.

Above every other consideration—this is what you might say is the Madison Avenue prayer—one must be liked. No distressing body odors. Or—as the NBC commercial which kept interrupting the returns — no decaying teeth. The girl in that commercial kept losing the boy—but in the end she won him. Madison Avenue gave her a happy ending but it couldn't manage one for Nixon.

Foreign policy was the number one issue in this campaign and in this field alone the Madison Avenue approach has been disastrous. Sen. Kennedy in his campaign faced the fact and tried—and probably succeeded—in making the electorate face the fact that our prestige has declined. Now we must face the fact that prestige and popularity are two quite different things.

We are not likely to be loved again as a nation in our lifetime. (If we are loved again, we will have slipped to a second class power and we don't want that, do we?) Rome was not loved. Britain was not loved when she ruled the waves. But both of them were respected. Russia is not loved either but she is feared and that's not the answer either. Total terror binds your enemies into a coalition that destroyed Napoleon and destroyed Hitler and could destroy Khrushchev too.

Our foreign policies must be designed to be wise and just and enduring, not simply to be popular which they are not likely to be anyway. The Madison Avenue approach will not—to use one of Sen. Kennedy's favorite words —work. We cannot, for example, allow our assets to be seized in Cuba without stern measures—not for chauvinistic reasons, not for political popularity at home, or to defend Standard Oil's assets abroad—but simply because the seizure of assets is unlawful and an open invitation to every other dictator to seize our assets wherever they lie loose. If we want a world of law and high principle, we cannot send a Gallup research team to Buenos Aires to ask the man on the street if that's what he wants. Because it probably isn't.

Just as our foreign policy must be more inner directed than it has been under the Republicans, so much domestic policy. The election of Jack Kennedy brings to an end an era of private need (and private greed) and opens an era of public need (and I devoutly hope not public greed).

Since the end of World War II, we have been filling up the vast emptinesses in our private larders left by the austerities of the great Depression and World War II, until in John Kenneth Galbreath's phrase we have almost drowned in a surfeit of nylon seat covers and plastic doorknobs. We have now all got, I think, enough toasters. We can turn our attention to our neglected school system, our unplanned and decaying cities. The age of the megalopolis is dawning and they require more than supermarkets to make them habitable.

I can't help remembering the anecdote about the ward heeler who entered a room full of other ward heelers cheering the then little-known James J. Walker, who was running for the first time for Mayor of New York. "Jimmy Walker?" said the newcomer to one of the cheering ward heelers, "never heard of him. Will he make a good Mayor?" The other guy said: "Oh he'll make a lousy Mayor. But what a candidate! What a candidate!"

There's no longer any doubt but that John F. Kennedy is a redoubtable candidate. I think he'll be a redoubtable President too.

British Viewpoints And The Election

Seeing ourselves as others see us always has a salutary effect, provided we do not become carried away and thereby go to whatever opposite extremes the other fellow's viewpoint may take us. Some perspective on the approaching change in the national administration may therefore be gained from a sampling of representative British press comment, supplied by British Information Services.

The Conservative Daily Telegraph on election day said that neither candidate had struck any deep chords in British hearts, but both seemed able, intelligent and balanced. The editorial said that, while either might be less sensitive to British feelings than Mr. Eisenhower has been, nevertheless "it is in Britain's interests to have the United States governed by men fully aware of the facts of contemporary international life," and that "this change is to be welcomed — painful as it may be to British susceptibilities."

A slightly different point of view was expressed by the Liberal Guardian of Manchester, which said that whether the new President was to be Vice President Nixon or Senator Kennedy, "the American people are now ready to respond to a more vigorous lead than they have been given for the last eight years. The Eisenhower years were a period of lying fallow — inevitable and healthy, after the tensions and heroism of the Second World War and the Korean War."

The Conservative Yorkshire Post said that, whichever way the election should go, "even from this side of the Atlantic, one senses a brisk wind of change blowing across the westerly half-continent."

We are inclined to feel that these comments from overseas go nearer to the really basic things than did most of the pre-election comment in this country. The point is that, no matter who had won the election, a youthful and vigorous approach was to be expected, and new courses of action were sure to follow. We hope that Mr. Kennedy as President will choose the right courses in the difficult years ahead.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Urban Civilization

What the recent election has proved is that the urbanization of American life has altered the thinking, perhaps even the nature of the American. A century ago he was, in the main, a farmer, a rancher, a miner; he lived generally in an isolated farm house with his family about him, even to the third generation.

In 1860, the population of the United States was 31,513,000 compared to about 180,000,000 today. In 1860, the rural population was 25,226,000 as compared with 6,216,000 in cities; today, the figures would show a reverse ratio. Urban population was in 1959, 104,990,000; rural 68,717,000, exclusive of the military.

Ira deA. Reid at the 1960 White House Conference on Children and Youth about the urban environment:

> "It is the area of the population explosion with its high fertility, low mortality, and increasing employment of mothers. It is an area where religious affiliation is increasing, and the pursuit of pleasure is more possible than ever. This urban world was molded in part by forces which have given us the moral order of the slum, the need for bohemia in an otherwise well-ordered society, the have-to-look-happy families of our young executives, the anxious ex-urbanite, the contented though dominated small town dweller, and the 'organization child' who has learned to package his personality for sale to his 'organization parent.'"

Politically, the rural community was more homogeneous than the urban which is a multi-group community. The rural community could accept isolationism as a doctrine because it was largely isolated, integrated, intermarried, monolithic in its ideas. It is for this reason that it was possible to say that a state like Michigan was Republican and Virginia Democratic. Today, it is not possible to make such estimates because Michigan is an industrial state with a large urban population living on wages in industry which is concerned with world markets, whereas Virginia is offended by the Big City social and economic ideas of the North.

Even rural society has been changed by the automobile, radio and television so that a remote farm is close to an urban center, reads an urban newspaper and probably a New York City edited magazine.

In fact, one New York newspaper is rapidly developing monopolistic practices which may ultimately change the character of the rural press. Samuel W. Blizzard said this well:

> The Calvinistic ethic which was the basis of American life for nearly three centuries has been pounded hard by all sorts of modern trends and newer peoples in our city communities. It is remarkable, however, that Protestantism, in its various forms of individualistic, non-conformistic society, does survive and in the present period is making a new progress which surprises even its own leaders. But he really knew. They were hanging on the pegs in the offices, right where the Secret Servicemen had left them.

Baughman is now trying to figure out a gimmick to remind his men about the caps in the next moment of emergency, which might be real.

TESTIMONIAL — Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, developer of the atomic submarine, who is either loved or hated in Washington but never ignored, is the source of a goodly number of stories. One concerns a young civilian engineer on his staff who was wearing a Phi Beta Kappa key.

Rickover spotted the key one day and remarked, "You don't have to wear that to show people you're smart. People know you must be smart or you wouldn't be working for me. Here, let me give you a note." With that, Rickover scribbled, "I think you're smart," signed it and handed it to the nonplussed young engineer.

Medical Researchers Study Ticklishness

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Tickle tests, conducted at Chicago's Michael Reese hospital, showed that women are as ticklish as men or vice versa. Some people are ultra-ticklish because they have not adapted to the stimulus or tend to be emotional. Others have no tickle reaction; they feel the sensation but have learned to control their reactions.

Babies are not ticklish at all. They respond to skin sensation only around the mouth and the first clear-cut tickle response shows up at 3½ years of age. According to Dr. Joseph G. Kepecs, Dr. Milton Robin, and Mrs. Claire Munro, it is a new experience and explains why youngsters go into gales of laughter.

Why does ticklishness exist? According to the Michael Reese team, it may have begun as a mechanism for getting rid of distracting or annoying objects, comparable to the way a horse flicks off a fly with his tail.

The relationship between tobacco and cancer got a slight boost when the following case history was reported in the New England Journal of Medicine. A 58-year-old bachelor with a large cancer of the ear consulted the surgery department of the University of Minnesota medical school.

This man had been placing snuff in the left ear daily to weekly since the age of 16. This was a local Indian custom. Several hours later he would attempt to wipe it away but was none too successful, in view of the appearance of the ear canal.

This case will not surprise physicians because they know that skin cancers have been produced by rubbing or painting tobacco tars on rabbits and mice. In addition, cancer and precancerous lesions in the mouth have been traced to chewing tobacco or using snuff.

COLD BABY FOOD

Mrs. P. H. writes: I have been criticized for feeding our 1 year old child the junior baby foods cold from the jars. Is it necessary to heat these foods?

REPLY

No, but some of the foods taste better when warmed, are more likely to be sterile, and are more easily digested.

FINGER INFECTION

L. C. B. writes: How can felons be prevented?

REPLY

I assume you refer to a medical felon and not a lawbreaker. This type of infection is discouraged by keeping the hands clean, especially the fingers. Don't injure the cuticle or the skin surrounding the nails, and dry the hands thoroughly after they have been in water.

BRONCHI AND AIR SACS

E. M. S. writes: How do bronchitis and emphysema differ?

REPLY

Bronchitis is inflammation of the bronchi, characterized by coughing. Emphysema is a chronic lung disorder in which the air sacs have lost their elasticity. Because of over-stretching, they no longer function properly. Shortness of breath results.

GOUT AND BEER

L. C. writes: Is beer bad for gout?

REPLY

Not when used in moderation. An attack of gout may follow overindulgence in alcohol—be it beer or whisky.

IODINE IN FOODS

T. W. writes: Does fish contain iodine?

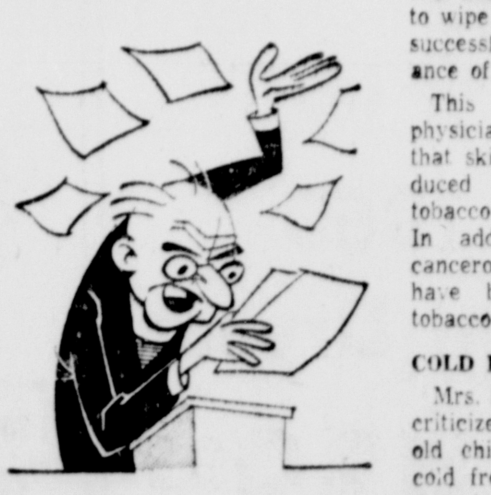
REPLY

Seafood is considered rich in this substance. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for list of foods containing iron.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf



A well-loved minister always placed his Sunday morning sermon in his pulpit a half hour before the congregation assembled. A mischievous junior sneaked in one time and removed the last page of the manuscript.

The minister gave a fine rendering, as usual, of the sermon, till he reached the last page, which concluded, "So Adam said to Eve . . ." Turning the page, he was dismayed to discover, of course, that there simply wasn't any more. He fumbled through the script, distractedly repeating, 'So Adam said to Eve . . .," then added, very angrily and very distinctly, "Confound it, there appears to be a leaf missing!"

A young miss came home with her hat askew and lipstick smeared all over her face. "What happened to you?" demanded her mother. "It was gruesome," explained the young miss. "I was out with this French boy, and I didn't want him to know I couldn't understand a word he was saying, so I kept nodding my head."

Kennedy Slowed Campaign To Dull Standstill In Closing Ten Days

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — It was Jack Kennedy himself who made the decision during the closing ten days of the campaign to pull Democratic campaign punches. It was a decision that dropped the polls from a wide pro-Kennedy margin down to fractions, sent last-minute shivers through his strategists, and resulted in the closest election since the Woodrow Wilson-Charles E. Hughes race in 1916.

Just as the winning football team tries to stall the ball and take no risk of fumbles in the closing minutes of the game, Kennedy ruled that it was best to play it safe. He had read the political signs and figured he was ahead.

His instructions were to stick to the fundamental issues that had already gained yardage for the Democrats and take no last-minute gambles by injecting new issues or answering Nixon charges. This was one reason why Kennedy's last-minute vote appeal was uninspiring and repetitious.

He felt that Nixon was swinging wild and that the public realized many of his punches were landing wide. Kennedy felt that this was alienating rather than winning the independent voters which both candidates needed.

For example, Kennedy felt that Nixon's last-minute announcement, that he would send Eisenhower, Hoover and Truman to tour the Iron Curtain countries and then bring the leaders of these Iron Curtain countries to Washington, laid an egg.

Some of his supporters wanted him to point out that these same leaders of the Iron Curtain countries had been in New York City only one month before and that Eisenhower had refused to see them, let alone invite them to Washington as Nixon now proposed. But Kennedy believed the voters recognized Nixon's proposal as an election gimmick, so it was never answered.

Some Kennedy cohorts also wanted to pound home the expose of Don Nixon's $205,000 loan from Howard Hughes.

But the Presidential candidate ruled this out. His strategy was—as long as he was ahead, avoid the possibility of fumbles.

In the closing days of the campaign, however, Kennedy's political mileage slowed down to a walk; Nixon picked up dangerous momentum. It almost became another Truman-Dewey election.

Buying Obscurity

At the outset of the Michigan Senate Race, observers predicted that Sen. Pat McNamara, Democrat, just recovered from a cancer operation, was in for a tough fight. As the only AFL-CIO member in the Senate, he was running against Congressman Alvin Bentley, whose grandfather helped found General Motors and who spent a record amount of money in the Republican primary.

Early in the campaign Bentley had the Lou Harris Poll check his prospects. Harris reported that Bentley suffered from 69 per cent nonrecognition. Michigan voters did not recognize his name.

Thereafter Harris drenched Detroit and Wayne County with radio spots, TV shots, and all sorts of advertising. You could hardly tune in your TV or radio without hearing Bentley's name.

After that the GOP Congressman had Harris take another poll. This time Harris reported Bentley suffered 72 per cent nonrecognition.

In brief, Bentley was buying himself into obscurity. The votes on election night bore this out. Pat McNamara won handsomely.

Campaign Slips

Here are some of the last-minute Democrat slips, plus Republican slips the Kennedy forces passed up: after Ike's Commonwealth Club speech in San Francisco, the Democratic National Committee demanded and got the right of 30 minutes free network time to answer the President. It was worth thousands of dollars, but Kennedy forces never used it . . . Nixon kept repeating that if elected President he would veto Red China's admission to the United States. But there is no such veto. And Nixon as President could not have used it. The only veto in the UN is in the Security Council and the question of membership comes before the UN Assembly where it's decided on a straight vote with no veto possible. Most Americans didn't understand this and believed Nixon. Kennedy never corrected him . . . Nixon also seemed to believe that the Baltic states have their own presidents whom he wanted to invite to Washington. There are no presidents of the Baltic states.

Nixon Lost A Friend

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany couldn't engage in American politics, but there were times when he wanted to.

He started out as one of Nixon's best private boosters, ended up as one of his worst private critics.

The Vice President had had several conferences with the tough, much-revered leader of West Germany, and Adenauer hoped he would be elected President. He figured that Nixon would line up with Germany on all issues regarding Communism.

However, speaking in Buffalo's Polish Union Hall in an effort to win the American-Polish votes, Nixon made it clear that he favored the present borders of Poland which include a good slice of pre-war Germany — Upper Silesia and East Prussia, largely populated by Germans.

This not only did not win votes in Buffalo, which went overwhelmingly Democratic, but it made Chancellor Adenauer chew nails. From that point on he expressed private doubts regarding Nixon as President.

End Of Complacency

By John Crosby

Just as the 1932 election was a defeat, final and irrevocable, of Wall Street as a dominant voice in government, this election has been a defeat, though not nearly so decisive and perhaps, also, not at all irrevocable, of Madison Avenue.

Early in his campaign, Vice President Nixon made noises indicating he'd cut loose from President Eisenhower and run his own campaign. But then Madison Avenue took control, the "everything is okay" approach (to use Gov. Stevenson's phraseology), which is essentially Madison Avenue, became the war cry—if war cry is not too stern a phrase. Still, it was such a narrow defeat and there were so many factors that Madison Avenue may live to run again, worse luck.

What is the Madison Avenue approach exactly? Well, you ask the people what they want to hear by survey and by research and then you give it to them. You send out a research team to determine what image the toothbrush should have. Then you manufacture it just as the people say. Now, not only is this a perfectly terrible way to run a government but it isn't even a very good way to make a toothbrush.

Above every other consideration—this is what you might say is the Madison Avenue prayer—one must be liked. No distressing body odors. Or—as the NBC commercial which kept interrupting the returns—no decaying teeth. The girl in that commercial kept losing the boy—but in the end she won him. Madison Avenue gave her a happy ending but it couldn't manage one for Nixon.

Foreign policy was the number one issue in this campaign and in this field alone the Madison Avenue approach has been disastrous. Sen. Kennedy in his campaign faced the fact and tried—and probably succeeded—in making the electorate face the fact that our prestige has declined. Now we must face the fact that prestige and popularity are two quite different things.

We are not likely to be loved again as a nation in our lifetime. (If we are loved again, we will have slipped to a second class power and we don't want that, do we? Britain was not loved when she ruled the waves. But both of them were respected. Russia is not loved either but she is feared and that's not the answer either. Total terror binds your enemies into a coalition that destroyed Napoleon and destroyed Hitler and could destroy Khrushchev too.

Our foreign policies must be designed to be wise and just and enduring, not simply to be popular which they are not likely to be anyway. The Madison Avenue approach will not—to use one of Sen. Kennedy's favorite words—work. We cannot, for example, allow our assets to be seized in Cuba without stern measures—not for chauvinistic reasons, not for political popularity at home, or to defend Standard Oil's assets abroad—but simply because the seizure of assets is unlawful and an open invitation to every other dictator to seize our assets wherever they let loose. If we want a world of law and high principle, we cannot send a Gallup research team to Buenos Aires to ask the man on the street if that's what he wants. Because it probably isn't.

Just as our foreign policy must be more inner directed than it has been under the Republicans, so much domestic policy. The election of Jack Kennedy brings to an end an era of private need (and private greed) and opens an era of public need (and I devoutly hope not public greed).

Since the end of World War II, we have been filling up the vast emptinesses in our private larders left by the austerities of the great Depression and World War II, until in John Kenneth Galbraith's phrase we have almost drowned in a surfeit of nylon seat covers and plastic doorknobs. We have now all got, I think, enough toasters. We need to turn our attention to our neglected school system, our unplanned and decaying cities. The age of the megalopolis is dawning and they require more than supermarkets to make them habitable.

I can't help remembering the anecdote about the ward heeler who entered a room full of other ward heelers cheering the then little-known James J. Walker, who was running for the first time for Mayor of New York. "Jimmy Walker?" said the newcomer to one of the cheering ward heelers, "never heard of him. Will he make a good Mayor?" The other guy said, "Oh, he'll make a lousy Mayor. But what a candidate! What a candidate!"

There's no longer any doubt but that John F. Kennedy is a redoubtable candidate. I think he'll be a redoubtable President too.

Small Crowd Helps Observe Veterans Day

Mathias Speaks At Frostburg

FROSTBURG — John Mathias, local attorney, told a Veterans Day gathering of about 30 persons yesterday that Veterans Day is a day of sad recollections.

"It is a day of recollection for those who have given their lives for our country, a day of thanksgiving for our own good fortune, a day of prayer for the preservation of peace, a day of flag waving in pride of our country, a day of warning of the things necessary to preserve our way of living and finally a day of soul searching.

"Have we kept the sacred trust which these men left in our hands?" he asked his small audience.

Frank Powers, past commander of Farrady Post 24, served as master of ceremonies and placed a wreath at the foot of the monument to the servicemen who died in World War I. The observance was held at the monument at the east end of town at the entrance to Beall High School. Rev. Kenneth Morelock, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, gave the invocation and pronounced the benediction.

A firing squad from Farrady Post fired three volleys over the monument. Flags were lowered by the color guard as taps were played.

Veterans Day Ceremony Conducted At Keyser

KEYSER — Veterans Day was observed yesterday in Keyser with a concert by the Keyser High School Band under the direction of Nunzio Barbera, which began the ceremony at 10:15 a.m. This was followed by the Potomac State College R.O.T.C. under the direction of Lt. Col. Curtiss Oakes.

Joseph Stanislawczyk was in charge of the program which began with invocation by Rev. Kenneth Watkins, pastor of Grace Methodist Church, and a moment of silence at 11:00 a. m. for the dead.

Roll call was held for those persons who died in World War I, II, and the Korean War.

Flowers were then presented by the following organizations: Purple Heart, Gold Star Mothers, American Legion Post 71, Keyser and McCoole V.F.W. and Auxilaries, Forty and Eight Voiture 1212, Washington-Smith Post, Moose and the Elks. Mayor Richard Romig presented a floral basket on behalf of the City Council and the City of Keyser.

The Gold Star Mothers present were Mrs. Charles Timbrook, Mrs. Jonah Kelly, Mrs. Gay Sanders and Mrs. Sallie E. Oates.

The benediction was given by Dr. John MacLeod, pastor of the Keyser Presbyterian Church.

1,552 Articles Are Collected In Food Drive

WESTERNPORT — Annual food solicitation for the United Organizations to be given to the needy of the Tri-Towns area, was conducted recently by the Tri-Towns Boys and Girls Scouts under the direction of Alton Fortney.

Approximately 1,552 non-perishable articles was received in the house to house campaign. They netted 350 articles more than last year's campaign, which was the most successful ones held here, according to the personnel of the UO.

Twelve Scout units including boys and girls participated. In addition to canvassing the Tri-Towns they picked up food items at Beryl, Bloomington, Horse Rock, Keymont and Franklin.

The food was stored in the UO storeroom in the Walker Building, Second Street, Piedmont. It was placed on the shelves and sorted by the personnel and Senior Girl Scouts.

During the winter months it will be distributed in food baskets to the underprivileged persons who make applications to the United Organizations at their office in the Union Building, Main Street. Mrs. Mary Wilt and Mrs. Mary Hood are custodians of the storeroom.

Miss Helen Groves To Attend National 4-H Club Congress

KEYSER — Helen Groves, a freshman home economics major at Potomac State College, will attend the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, November 25-December 3. Miss Groves was chosen one of 23 students to represent West Virginia because she was state beef animal winner last year.

For the persons attending all expenses will be paid by the National 4-H Club. Students from 50 states and exchange students will be at this event.

Last year Miss Groves was one of two women to represent the state on the National Teen Board of the Farm Journal.

In loving memory of J. Frank Richardson, who passed away one year ago today, November 12, 1959.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
Down a road that's calm and peaceful,
Guided by God's loving hand,
He has gone upon a journey,
To a distant, brighter land.
And although our hearts are heavy,
With the sorrow we must bear,
It helps to bring us comfort,
Knowing he is happy there.
And the ones who think of him today,
Are the ones who loved him best.

Professors' Unit To Meet At Frostburg

Chapter There One Of Two In Md.

FROSTBURG — The local chapter of the American Association of University Professors will hold its next meeting on November 15 at 4 p. m. at Frostburg State Teachers College.

According to Dr. Thomas Baucom, president of the local chapter, the agenda for the coming session will include consideration of the following matters: status of sick-leave policy for faculty members in state teachers colleges; inquiry into a possible sabbatical leave policy; inquiry into insurance programs available to college faculties in the United States.

The purpose of the Frostburg Chapter is support of the Association's purpose: ". . . to facilitate a more effective cooperation among teachers and research scholars in universities and colleges, and in professional schools of similar grade, for the promotion of the interests of higher education and research, and in general to increase the usefulness and advance the standards, ideals and welfare of the profession."

Thirty-one state and regional conferences have been organized to facilitate the work of the Association, in addition to more than 620 local chapters on college and university campuses in 50 states.

Local chapters work with the national group in making studies in such areas as professional ethics, academic freedom, economic status of the profession, and retirement and insurance.

Towson State Teachers College has an active chapter, while the other Maryland teachers' colleges are represented in the national organization by "members at large" though no local chapters are yet in existence.

Miss Helen Groves To Attend National 4-H Club Congress

KEYSER — Helen Groves, a freshman home economics major at Potomac State College, will attend the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, November 25-December 3. Miss Groves was chosen one of 23 students to represent West Virginia because she was state beef animal winner last year.

For the persons attending all expenses will be paid by the National 4-H Club. Students from 50 states and exchange students will be at this event.

Last year Miss Groves was one of two women to represent the state on the National Teen Board of the Farm Journal.

In loving memory of J. Frank Richardson, who passed away one year ago today, November 12, 1959.

Today recalls sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
Down a road that's calm and peaceful,
Guided by God's loving hand,
He has gone upon a journey,
To a distant, brighter land.
And although our hearts are heavy,
With the sorrow we must bear,
It helps to bring us comfort,
Knowing he is happy there.
And the ones who think of him today,
Are the ones who loved him best.

Professors' Unit To Meet At Frostburg

Chapter There One Of Two In Md.

FROSTBURG — The local chapter of the American Association of University Professors will hold its next meeting on November 15 at 4 p. m. at Frostburg State Teachers College.

According to Dr. Thomas Baucom, president of the local chapter, the agenda for the coming session will include consideration of the following matters: status of sick-leave policy for faculty members in state teachers colleges; inquiry into a possible sabbatical leave policy; inquiry into insurance programs available to college faculties in the United States.

The purpose of the Frostburg Chapter is support of the Association's purpose: ". . . to facilitate a more effective cooperation among teachers and research scholars in universities and colleges, and in professional schools of similar grade, for the promotion of the interests of higher education and research, and in general to increase the usefulness and advance the standards, ideals and welfare of the profession."

Thirty-one state and regional conferences have been organized to facilitate the work of the Association, in addition to more than 620 local chapters on college and university campuses in 50 states.

Local chapters work with the national group in making studies in such areas as professional ethics, academic freedom, economic status of the profession, and retirement and insurance.

Towson State Teachers College has an active chapter, while the other Maryland teachers' colleges are represented in the national organization by "members at large" though no local chapters are yet in existence.

By TED TROXELL

Fort Hill had an easy time picking up its ninth win of the season last night at the Stadium, although in the process of beating Keyser by a 45-13 margin, the Sentinels gave up more points than had been scored against them all year.

Last night's contest, last for the Sentinels before the big Thanksgiving Day battle with cross-town rival Allegany, marked the resumption of the Fort Hill-Keyser series. The last time the two teams met was in 1950, when the Red Raiders scored their ninth straight win over the Golden Tornado.

The only other team to cross Fort Hill's goal line this year was North Hagerstown, a 27-12 victim of Coach Charlie Lattimer's talented eleven.

Keyser's first touchdown came with less than four minutes gone in the third period, after the Sentinels had piled up four first half TDs.

Bob Shewbridge, powerful Fort Hill fullback, tallied a pair of six-pointers in the second period, both on runs of 13 yards.

Shewbridge Intercepts

He also turned in the longest run of the evening in the final period when he intercepted a pass thrown out in the left flat by Keyser's Terry Turbin and ran it back 81 yards.

Fort Hill started off in typical fashion, driving 53 yards in ten plays following the opening kick-off for a touchdown, which was scored by halfback Delbert Helmick from ten yards out.

The second period was the most productive for the Sentinels. In addition to Shewbridge's two scoring runs, Dick Peck returned a Keyser punt 59 yards for a TD.

Peck, a real speedster, tucked in Ed Hawkins' punt on his own 41 and headed toward the right sidelines while his blockers were getting set up in front of him. The shifty halfback then cut back to his left and rambled all the way.

The second half opened with Keyser's Chuck Bradfield returnin the kickoff to the Tornado 37-yard line, from where the West Virginians went on to cross what had been a practically invulnerable goal line in just seven plays, foremost of which was a 39-yard dash off right tackle by fullback Floyd "Cork" Wilt. Peck brought Wilt down from behind at the Sentinel 21.

Hawkins neatly stole a Turbin-thrown pass out of the hands of two Fort Hill defenders at the six. Bradfield banged out two yards and Turbin, faking a pass, went up the middle for the final four yards.

The only damage suffered by the Sentinels was a blow to their pride, for they came right back and countered that score. Quarterback Manges, keeping, bucked over from six yards out, after Fort Hill had advanced that far mainly on the strength of a 20-yard pickup by Shewbridge and a halfback-to-halfback pass from Peck to Dave Clem that covered 20 yards.

Teams Trade TDs

After Shewbridge made it 39-6 with his runback of the pass interception, the two teams traded touchdowns to close out the scoring.

Keyser's Scott Biser got off a 48-yard run after taking a hand-off from Turbin, who faked beautifully on the play to momentarily bewilder the Fort Hill defense.

The Sentinels' final tally was registered on a pass from Paul Green to Clem that covered 45 yards. Clem hauled in the pass from the second string quarterback at about the 25, neatly side-stepped John Hamilton, and made his way into TD-land.

The Golden Tornado ended its season last night with a record of 5-5, and a 1-2 log against Cumberland teams, having beaten LaSalle, while losing to Allegany.

Susan Brady Writes Recalls 1903 'Wreck

Ricker Reminisces Saw Chip's Fights

By C. V. BURNS

A PICTURE that appeared on The Cumberland News sports page last Saturday attracted the attention of Susan Alice Brady, who writes an interesting letter in recalling the train wreck 57 years ago at Indianapolis which took the lives of 20 students, including 17 members of the Purdue football team.

The cut lines on this picture mentioned the fact that the recent plane crash at Toledo in which 15 California Poly football players died occurred within 300 miles of the scene of the 1903 tragedy.

Susan Alice Brady, 75 years young, writes as follows:

"The picture in the News of the train wreck of the Purdue football team brought back memories of hometown Lafayette. I lived for many years on the Purdue side of the Wabash, as I always said, for I am a true Hoosier.

"My aunt wrote me of this dreadful wreck while I was in college. Alford "Alf" Jamison, our cousin, was the coach of the Purdue "Boilermakers" of the Big Ten.

"My uncle, Dell Bartlett, a popular druggist, went along with the team as aide to the team's physician. Another cousin, J. Pierce, who was on the Lafayette Courier went along to take some pictures of the game, never dreaming he would take such tragic ones.

"My uncle and the doctor were on the observation coach. They were able to aid the injured ones so they would not suffer too badly until hospital help came.

"The team was on its way to Indiana for its big game which wasn't played that year, if memory serves me right."

ONE OF THE REAL slambang fighters of yesteryear passed on the other day when George Chip, 72, died in New Castle, Pa., hospital after being struck by an automobile.

Vic Ricker, operator of the Fort Cumberland Hotel Barber Shop, who promoted professional ring shows here in the past and brought many topnotch boxers to this section before he called it quits in April 1949, recalls many of the gruelling battles in which the middleweight champion of 1913-1914 participated.

On July 4, 1917, Ricker and Joe Carney journeyed to Youngstown, Ohio, to see Chip fight Mike Gibbons, brother of Tommy Gibbons. The latter is best remembered for his great 15-round battle with Jack Dempsey at Shelby, Montana.

"Chip was a hard hitter and Carney was so afraid that he might stop Gibbons, who was his idol," Ricker relates.

Gibbons was known as the "St. Paul Phantom" and he earned that nickname because he was one of the best boxers the ring has ever known and was so clever that he was hard to tag with a solid punch.

Vic assured Carney that Gibbons would not get hurt because he was too smart and his prediction came true as Mike went all the way in the 12-round no decision scrap.

Chip, who fought all the good ones in his day—Jack Dillon, Jeff Smith, Leo Houck, George K. O. Brown, Jimmy Clabby, Al McCoy, Harry Greb, Frank Klaus, Les Darcy, the Gibbons Brothers, Martin Burke, Frank Carbone, Bryan Downey, etc., was managed by Jimmy Dime, who handled a stable of good fighters.

Dime, who brought several boxers to Cumberland in the 1920s, once managed Babe Picato, Tony Ross, Tom McMahon, the Chip Brothers, Joe and George, and many others.

McMahon was the heavyweight who whipped Jess Willard at Youngstown in 12 rounds in 1914, the year before Willard stopped Jack Johnson at the 26th round at Havana, Cuba, and won the world title.

Joe Chip, brother of George, is the only fighter who ever knocked out Harry Greb and that was in 1913.

Ricker got an opportunity to see many fights around Youngstown because he made his home there, barbered in the Ohio city and served as aide to Mick Stambaugh, the fight promoter and manager.

He remembers when George Chip went to Sydney, Australia in 1916 and was knocked out in the 9th round by Les Darcy, the sensational middleweight scrapper from Down Under.

One of the greatest fights Vic ever saw was the Babe Picato-Rocky Kansas brawl at New Castle, Pa., in 1917.

"These lightweights went at it hammer and tongs for 10 rounds and I never saw two boxers emerge from a bout with so many cuts and welts on their face and body," Ricker said.

And do you know whom Ricker places highest on his list of all-time ring greats?

Terp Frosh Bow To Navy, 24-22

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Halfback John Sai shook the Maryland frosh with two long touchdown runs and the Navy plebes held on to take a 24-22 victory over the previously unbeaten Terrapin freshmen Friday.

Sai scored first on a sensational 75-yard gallop and then raced 40 yards just before the end of the first half with an intercepted pass.

Dick Earnest scored Navy's other touchdown as he went 10 yards in the second period.

Maryland, after a second period tally on a one-yard plunge by Ron Alexander, really went to work in the third quarter. The Terrapins scored twice, once on a 53-yard run by Tim Morgan with an intercepted pass and again on Ron Kalges' five-yard sweep.

With time running out and Maryland on the Navy five, Mike Funk attempted a field goal but it was no good.

58,000 May See Army Play Pitt

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A Pitt victory over the Army Cadets at the Stadium here Saturday may clinch a post-season bowl bid for the Panthers.

A crowd of 58,000 may be on hand for the game, many drawn by the colorful "band box review" which the Cadets will present about an hour before game time.

Nugget Wins Three

The Golden Nugget of Frostburg swept three games from Ruth's Tavern last night in an Allegany County Men's Shuffleboard League match. Sammy Leptic of Golden Nugget paced the scorers with 34 points. J. Small led Ruth's Tavern with 15.

Purdue Tests Minnesota In Feature Tilt

Unbeaten Missouri Battles Oklahoma

By JACK CLARY

One conference title and perhaps a share in four others are at stake Saturday as the 1960 college football season hits the "them that has, gets" stage.

Minnesota, the nation's No. 1 team in the latest Associated Press poll, probably has more of everything than anyone ever imagined and could use it to clinch at least a tie for its first Big Ten title in two decades. A victory over Purdue (2-4-1) would give the resurgent Golden Gophers (7-0) a share of the title. This, coupled with a win over Wisconsin next week, means the title and the possibility of a Rose Bowl bid.

The other half of that Rose Bowl duo should be Washington (No. 6). The Huskies (7-1) can wrap up their second straight Big Five title by beating California (1-1-1).

Second-ranked Missouri (8-0) is almost assured of returning to the Orange Bowl, but is eyeing the Big Eight title even more. The Tigers, playing defending champion Oklahoma (2-4-1), can gain at least a tie for the title with a victory and if second-place Kansas loses to Colorado. Should both be victorious, then the title is decided when they meet next Saturday. Missouri hasn't beaten Oklahoma, however, since 1945.

Game On Television

Also eyeing that Big Ten race is third-ranked Ohio State and fifth-ranked Iowa, both 6-1. They meet in a game that will be nationally televised (2:30 p.m. EST, ABC-TV). The victor here would snatch the title or a share of it if Minnesota falters in its remaining games.

Mississippi (No. 4) finds itself in a dogfight to hang onto the lead in the Southeastern Conference. Ole Miss is 7-0-1 over-all and 3-0-1 in the conference. But one misstep means disaster with 10th-ranked Auburn and Florida tied for second with 4-1 records.

Ole Miss Plays Vols

Mississippi meets Tennessee (5-1-1), while Auburn takes on Georgia (5-3), the defending SEC champ. Florida plays Tulane. Ole Miss and Auburn each have a conference game remaining but Florida winds up SEC play Saturday.

Duke, upset winner of previously unbeaten Navy a week ago, can gain a tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference title by beating Wake Forest (2-5). The seventh-ranked Blue Devils (6-1) should wrap it up against North Carolina next week.

Arkansas (No. 9) also finds itself embroiled in a furious Southwest Conference race. One slip and the Razorbacks are just about dead. They face winless Southern Methodist (0-6-1). Arkansas is 4-1 in the SWC while second-place Rice is 3-1. Rice meets Texas A&M (1-4-3).

Navy Faces Virginia

Navy, ranked eighth, seeks to extend the nation's longest losing string, Virginia's 24 in a row since 1957, when the two meet at the Naval Academy. It is the Middies last game before their traditional affair against Army, which also is idle after Saturday's game against Pitt.

Things are humming in the Ivy League where Yale, 7-0 over-all, and matching Princeton's 5-0 league mark, play the Tigers for what will undoubtedly be the title. Both are favored in windup games next week.

Virginia Military, 3-0 in the Southern Conference, plays The Citadel, 4-1 in second place VMI may have to wait until it meets Virginia Tech next week to clinch matters.

Moyer, Fernandez Fight At Garden

NEW YORK (AP)—Phil Moyer, the middleweight of the fighting Moyer family of Portland, Ore., aims for his fifth straight victory Saturday night in a television 10-rounder with Cuba's Florentino Fernandez at Madison Square Garden.

Despite his four consecutive wins—all this year—Moyer was rated an 8-5 underdog to the stiff-punching Cuban.

Fernandez has a record of 21 knockouts in 29 fights.

Moyer, 24, has a record of 21-3-1.

The bout starts at 10 p.m., EST, and will be telecast (ABC - TV) coast to coast.

Hi Dee Winner, 2-1

Hi Dee Club scored a 2-1 victory over the Frostburg Eagles last night in an Allegany County Women's Shuffleboard League match. J. Smith was high scorer for the winners with 21 points. Winnie Twigg paced the Eagles with 22. The Eagles will host Ruth's Tavern on Monday night.

Bald Eagle rapidly attained a commanding advantage while under stout restraint, increased his lead gradually through the first mile and was roused intermittently while holding the opposition safe. Harmonizing, badly outrun for a mile, responded to energetic handling and made up ground without seriously menacing the winner. Zabeg trailed for a turn of the course and raced well thereafter to wear down the others. Zadorny continued on willingly when set down for the drive. Hautain made a bid on the final turn and gave way. Farrney Fox failed to attain prominence. Santa Severa lacked a rally. Rio Marin raced kindly to be within striking distance for a mile, then flattened out. Prolific was through after a mile. Apostle II stopped badly. Puissant Chef wheeled at the start and unseated his rider. Jockey Garcia remounted and alowed Puissant Chef to gallop along behind the field.

Potomac State Seeks 9th Straight Tri-State Win

Unbeaten In Loop 3 Years; Baltimore Is Opponent Today

Potomac State College holds the distinction of never having lost a game in the three-year football history of the Tri-State Junior College Conference and the Catamounts will be shooting for their ninth straight triumph in that circuit when they play Baltimore Junior College today at 2 p. m., in the season finale at Stayman Field, Keyser.

Today Parents Day

Today will be observed as Parents' Day and fathers of the players will wear corresponding numbers and will be seated near the Potomac State bench during the game.

The Catamounts made their debut in the grid circuit in 1958 and beat Montgomery 29-8, Wesley of Dover, Del., 64-0 and Baltimore 13-6. Last year the Keyser school posted another 3-0 mark by disposing of Montgomery 26-7, Wesley 26-0 and Baltimore 32-6. This year, the Cats have taken Montgomery 21-18 and Wesley 24-6 and need another win today to keep their league record unblemished.

If Potomac State wins this one they'll finish with an overall record of 5-4. If they lose the Catamounts will windup the season below the .500 mark for the first time since 1957.

Coach Lough scouted the Baltimore eleven and has warned his team not to take the Monumental City team too lightly even though Potomac teams have bagged four in a row since the series opened in 1949.

Ends 23d Season

Today's game marks the close of the twenty-third year for Lough as head football coach at Potomac State. Since moving from Keyser High School to Potomac in 1935 his teams have won 91, lost 84 and played 10 tie games.

Officials for today's game will be John Shelton, Bob Pence, Roy Manges and Hubert Feeney.

Johnson Leads Mexican Open

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Howie Johnson of Houston, Tex., firing seven birdies and an eagle, shot a course record 63 Friday and took the halfway lead in the $10,000 Mexican Open golf tournament with a 36-hole total of 133.

Unheralded Bob Stone of Junction City, Kan., moved up to second with a 68 for 137 as the opening round coleaders, Billy Maxwell of Oceanside, Calif., and Canada's Al Balding, slipped back.

Maxwell had a par 72 72 shared third place at 138 with Dave Marr of Houston, Tex., who had a 70. Balding shot a 73 and had a two-day total of 139.

REPEATS — Manny Ycaza, the Panamanian pepper-pot jockey, who rode Cain Hoy Stable's Bald Eagle to victory in the Washington, D. C., International race at Laurel a year ago, duplicated the feat yesterday when Bald Eagle defeated Harmonizing by two lengths in the ninth running of the $100,000 classic. It was the fourth victory for a United States thoroughbred in the "Olympics of horse racing."

By TED TROXELL

Fort Hill had an easy time picking up its ninth win of the season last night at the Stadium, although in the process of beating Keyser by a 45-13 margin, the Sentinels gave up more points than had been scored against them all year.

Last night's contest, last for the Sentinels before the big Thanksgiving Day battle with cross-town rival Allegany, marked the resumption of the Fort Hill-Keyser series. The last time the two teams met was in 1950, when the Red Raiders scored their ninth straight win over the Golden Tornado.

The only other team to cross Fort Hill's goal line this year was North Hagerstown, a 27-12 victim of Coach Charlie Lattimer's talented eleven.

Keyser's first touchdown came with less than four minutes gone in the third period, after the Sentinels had piled up four first half TDs.

Bob Shewbridge, powerful Fort Hill fullback, tallied a pair of six-pointers in the second period, both on runs of 13 yards.

Shewbridge Intercepts

He also turned in the longest run of the evening in the final period when he intercepted a pass thrown out in the left flat by Keyser's Terry Turbin and ran it back 81 yards.

Fort Hill started off in typical fashion, driving 53 yards in ten plays following the opening kickoff for a touchdown, which was scored by halfback Delbert Helmick from ten yards out.

The second period was the most productive for the Sentinels. In addition to Shewbridge's two scoring runs, Dick Peck returned a Keyser punt 59 yards for a TD.

Peck, a real speedster, tucked in Ed Hawkins' punt on his own 41 and headed toward the right sidelines while his blockers were getting set up in front of him. The shifty halfback then cut back to his left and rambled all the way.

The second half opened with Keyser's Chuck Bradfield returnin the kickoff to the Tornado 37-yard line, from where the West Virginians went on to cross what had been a practically invulnerable goal line in just seven plays, foremost of which was a 39-yard dash off right tackle by fullback Floyd "Cork" Wilt. Peck brought Wilt down from behind at the Sentinel 21.

Hawkins neatly stole a Turbin-thrown pass out of the hands of two Fort Hill defenders at the six. Bradfield banged out two yards and Turbin, faking a pass, went up the middle for the final four yards.

The only damage suffered by the Sentinels was a blow to their pride, for they came right back and countered that score. Quarterback Manges, keeping, bucked over from six yards out, after Fort Hill had advanced that far mainly on the strength of a 20-yard pickup by Shewbridge and a halfback-to-halfback pass from Peck to Dave Clem that covered 20 yards.

Teams Trade TDs

After Shewbridge made it 39-6 with his runback of the pass interception, the two teams traded touchdowns to close out the scoring.

Keyser's Scott Biser got off a 48-yard run after taking a handoff from Turbin, who faked beautifully on the play to momentarily bewilder the Fort Hill defense.

The Sentinels' final tally was registered on a pass from Paul Green to Clem that covered 45 yards. Clem hauled in the pass from the second string quarterback at about the 25, neatly sidestepped John Hamilton, and made his way into TD-land.

The Golden Tornado ended its season last night with a record of 5-5, and a 1-2 log against Cumberland teams, having beaten LaSalle, while losing to Allegany.

Susan Brady Writes Recalls 1903 'Wreck

Ricker Reminisces Saw Chip's Fights

By C. V. BURNS

A PICTURE that appeared on The Cumberland News sports page last Saturday attracted the attention of Susan Alice Brady, who writes an interesting letter in recalling the train wreck 57 years ago at Indianapolis which took the lives of 20 students, including 17 members of the Purdue football team.

The cut lines on this picture mentioned the fact that the recent plane crash at Toledo in which 15 California Poly football players died occurred within 300 miles of the scene of the 1903 tragedy.

Susan Alice Brady, 75 years young, writes as follows:

"The picture in the News of the train wreck of the Purdue football team brought back memories of hometown Lafayette. I lived for many years on the Purdue side of the Wabash, as I always said, for I am a true Hoosier.

"My aunt wrote me of this dreadful wreck while I was in college. Alford "Alf" Jamison, our cousin, was the coach of the Purdue "Boilermakers" of the Big Ten.

"My uncle, Dell Bartlett, a popular druggist, went along with the team as aide to the team's physician. Another cousin, J. Pierce, who was on the Lafayette Courier went along to take some pictures of the game, never dreaming he would take such tragic ones.

"My uncle and the doctor were on the observation coach. They were able to aid the injured ones so they would not suffer too badly until hospital help came.

"The team was on its way to Indiana for its big game which wasn't played that year, if memory serves me right."

ONE OF THE REAL slambang fighters of yesteryear passed on the other day when George Chip, 72, died in New Castle, Pa., hospital after being struck by an automobile.

Vic Ricker, operator of the Fort Cumberland Hotel Barber Shop, who promoted professional ring shows here in the past and brought many topnotch boxers to this section before he called it quits in April 1949, recalls many of the gruelling battles in which the middleweight champion of 1913-1914 participated.

On July 4, 1917, Ricker and Joe Carney journeyed to Youngstown, Ohio, to see Chip fight Mike Gibbons, brother of Tommy Gibbons. The latter is best remembered for his great 15-round battle with Jack Dempsey at Shelby, Montana.

"Chip was a hard hitter and Carney was so afraid that he might stop Gibbons, who was his idol," Ricker relates.

Gibbons was known as the "St. Paul Phantom" and he earned that nickname because he was one of the best boxers the ring has ever known and was so clever that he was hard to tag with a solid punch.

Vic assured Carney that Gibbons would not get hurt because he was too smart and his prediction came true as Mike went all the way in the 12-round no decision scrap.

Chip, who fought all the good ones in his day—Jack Dillon, Jeff Smith, Leo Houck, George K. O. Brown, Jimmy Clabby, Al McCoy, Harry Greb, Frank Klaus, Les Darcy, the Gibbons Brothers, Martin Burke, Frank Carbone, Bryan Downey, etc., was managed by Jimmy Dime, who handled a stable of good fighters.

Dime, who brought several boxers to Cumberland in the 1920s, once managed Babe Picato, Tony Ross, Tom McMahon, the Chip Brothers, Joe and George, and many others.

McMahon was the heavyweight who whipped Jess Willard at Youngstown in 12 rounds in 1914, the year before Willard stopped Jack Johnson at the 26th round at Havana, Cuba, and won the world title.

Joe Chip, brother of George, is the only fighter who ever knocked out Harry Greb and that was in 1913.

Ricker got an opportunity to see many fights around Youngstown because he made his home there, barbered in the Ohio city and served as aide to Mick Stambaugh, the fight promoter and manager.

He remembers when George Chip went to Sydney, Australia in 1916 and was knocked out in the 9th round by Les Darcy, the sensational middleweight scrapper from Down Under.

One of the greatest fights Vic ever saw was the Babe Picato-Rocky Kansas brawl at New Castle, Pa., in 1917.

"These lightweights went at it hammer and tongs for 10 rounds and I never saw two boxers emerge from a bout with so many cuts and welts on their face and body," Ricker said.

And do you know whom Ricker places highest on his list of all-time ring greats?

Terp Frosh Bow To Navy, 24-22

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Halfback John Sai shook the Maryland frosh with two long touchdown runs and the Navy plebes held on to take a 24-22 victory over the previously unbeaten Terrapin freshmen Friday.

Sai scored first on a sensational 75-yard gallop and then raced 40 yards just before the end of the first half with an intercepted pass.

Dick Earnest scored Navy's other touchdown as he went 10 yards in the second period.

Maryland, after a second period tally on a one-yard plunge by Ron Alexander, really went to work in the third quarter. The Terrapins scored twice, once on a 53-yard run by Tim Morgan with an intercepted pass and again on Ron Kalges' five-yard sweep.

With time running out and Maryland on the Navy five, Mike Funk attempted a field goal but it was no good.

58,000 May See Army Play Pitt

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A Pitt victory over the Army Cadets at the Stadium here Saturday may clinch a post-season bowl bid for the Panthers.

A crowd of 58,000 may be on hand for the game, many drawn by the colorful "band box review" which the Cadets will present about an hour before game time.

Nugget Wins Three

The Golden Nugget of Frostburg swept three games from Ruth's Tavern last night in an Allegany County Men's Shuffleboard League match. Sammy Leptic of Golden Nugget paced the scorers with 34 points. J. Small led Ruth's Tavern with 15.

Purdue Tests Minnesota In Feature Tilt

Unbeaten Missouri Battles Oklahoma

By JACK CLARY

One conference title and perhaps a share in four others are at stake Saturday as the 1960 college football season hits the "them that has, gets" stage.

Minnesota, the nation's No. 1 team in the latest Associated Press poll, probably has more of everything than anyone ever imagined and could use it to clinch at least a tie for its first Big Ten title in two decades. A victory over Purdue (2-4-1) would give the resurgent Golden Gophers (7-0) a share of the title. This, coupled with a win over Wisconsin next week, means the title and the possibility of a Rose Bowl bid.

The other half of that Rose Bowl duo should be Washington (No. 6). The Huskies (7-1) can wrap up their second straight Big Five title by beating California (1-1-1).

Second-ranked Missouri (8-0) is almost assured of returning to the Orange Bowl, but is eyeing the Big Eight title even more. The Tigers, playing defending champion Oklahoma (2-4-1), can gain at least a tie for the title with a victory and if second-place Kansas loses to Colorado. Should both be victorious, then the title is decided when they meet next Saturday. Missouri hasn't beaten Oklahoma, however, since 1945.

Game On Television

Also eyeing that Big Ten race is third-ranked Ohio State and fifth-ranked Iowa, both 6-1. They meet in a game that will be nationally televised (2:30 p.m. EST, ABC-TV). The victor here would snatch the title or a share of it if Minnesota falters in its remaining games.

Mississippi (No. 4) finds itself in a dogfight to hang onto the lead in the Southeastern Conference. Ole Miss is 7-0-1 over-all and 3-0-1 in the conference. But one misstep means disaster with 10th-ranked Auburn and Florida tied for second with 4-1 records.

Ole Miss Plays Vols

Mississippi meets Tennessee (5-1-1), while Auburn takes on Georgia (5-3), the defending SEC champ. Florida plays Tulane. Ole Miss and Auburn each have a conference game remaining but Florida winds up SEC play Saturday.

Duke, upset winner of previously unbeaten Navy a week ago, can gain a tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference title by beating Wake Forest (2-5). The seventh-ranked Blue Devils (6-1) should wrap it up against North Carolina next week.

Arkansas (No. 9) also finds itself embroiled in a furious Southwest Conference race. One slip and the Razorbacks are just about dead. They face winless Southern Methodist (0-6-1). Arkansas is 4-1 in the SWC while second-place Rice is 3-1. Rice meets Texas A&M (1-4-2).

Navy Faces Virginia

Navy, ranked eighth, seeks to extend the nation's longest losing string, Virginia's 24 in a row since 1957, when the two meet at the Naval Academy. It is the Middies last game before their traditional affair against Army, which also is idle after Saturday's game against Pitt.

Things are humming in the Ivy League where Yale, 7-0 over-all, and matching Princeton's 5-0 league mark, play the Tigers for what will undoubtedly be the title. Both are favored in windup games next week.

Virginia Military, 3-0 in the Southern Conference, plays The Citadel, 4-1 in second place. VMI may have to wait until it meets Virginia Tech next week to clinch matters.

Moyer, Fernandez Fight At Garden

NEW YORK (AP)—Phil Moyer, the middleweight of the fighting Moyer family of Portland, Ore., aims for his fifth straight victory Saturday night in a television 10-rounder with Cuba's Florentino Fernandez at Madison Square Garden.

Despite his four consecutive wins—all this year—Moyer was rated an 8-5 underdog to the stiff-punching Cuban.

Fernandez has a record of 21 knockouts in 29 fights.

Moyer, 24, has a record of 21-3-1.

The bout starts at 10 p.m., EST, and will be telecast (ABC - TV) coast to coast.

Hi Dee Winner, 2-1

Hi Dee Club scored a 2-1 victory over the Frostburg Eagles last night in an Allegany County Women's Shuffleboard League match. J. Smith was high scorer for the winners with 21 points. Winnie Twigg paced the Eagles with 22. The Eagles will host Ruth's Tavern on Monday night.

5.40, 3.80, 2.80, 4.60, 4.00, 6.20 (3-9-1) start good for all but Puissant Chef won ridden out.

Bald Eagle rapidly attained a commanding advantage while under stout restraint, increased his lead gradually through the first mile and was roused intermittently while holding the opposition safe. Harmonizing, badly outrun for a mile, responded to energetic handling and made up ground without seriously menacing the winner. Zabeg trailed for a turn of the course and raced well thereafter to wear down the others. Zadorny continued on willingly when set down for the drive. Hautain made a bid on the final turn and gave way. Farrney Fox failed to attain prominence. Santa Severa lacked a rally. Rio Marin raced kindly to be within striking distance for a mile, then flattened out. Prolific was through after a mile. Apostle II stopped badly. Puissant Chef wheeled at the start and unseated his rider. Jockey Garcia remounted and alowed Puissant Chef to gallop along behind the field.

REPEATS — Manny Ycaza, the Panamanian pepper-pot jockey, who rode Cain Hoy Stable's Bald Eagle to victory in the Washington, D. It was the fourth victory for a United States thoroughbred in the "Olympics of horse racing."

Potomac State Seeks 9th Straight Tri-State Win

Unbeaten In Loop 3 Years; Baltimore Is Opponent Today

Potomac State College holds the distinction of never having lost a game in the three-year football history of the Tri-State Junior College Conference and the Catamounts will be shooting for their ninth straight triumph in that circuit when they play Baltimore Junior College today at 2 p. m., in the season finale at Stayman Field, Keyser.

Today Parents Day

Today will be observed as Parents' Day and fathers of the players will wear corresponding numbers and will be seated near the Potomac State bench during the game.

The Catamounts made their debut in the grid circuit in 1958 and beat Montgomery 29-8, Wesley of Dover, Del., 64-0 and Baltimore 13-6. Last year the Keyser school posted another 3-0 mark by disposing of Montgomery 26-7, Wesley 26-0 and Baltimore 32-6. This year, the Cats have taken Montgomery 21-18 and Wesley 24-6 and need another win today to keep their league record unblemished.

If Potomac State wins this one they'll finish with an overall record of 5-4. If they lose the Catamounts will windup the season below the .500 mark for the first time since 1957.

Coach Lough scouted the Baltimore eleven and has warned his team not to take the Monumental City team too lightly even though Potomac teams have bagged four in a row since the series opened in 1949.

Ends 23d Season

Today's game marks the close of the twenty-third year for Lough as head football coach at Potomac State. Since moving from Keyser High School to Potomac in 1935 his teams have won 91, lost 84 and played 10 tie games.

Officials for today's game will be John Shelton, Bob Pence, Roy Manges and Hubert Feeney.

Bald Eagle Cops International 2nd Straight Time

Harmonizing Trails Victor By 2 Lengths

Rider Of French Horse Is Tossed; $70,000 To Winner

By RAY AYRES
United Press International

LAUREL, Md. (UPI) — America's Bald Eagle, noted throughout his career for his stretch rallies, startled the crowd at Laurel Friday by going to the front at the start of the $100,000 Washington D.C. International and leading all the way to win the global classic for the second straight time.

At one point in the mile and one-half race, Bald Eagle was 10 lengths in front although that unexpected margin dwindled rapidly as the others in the field closed in on him in the stretch.

Bald Eagle streaked across the finish line two lengths ahead of Harmonizing, America's second representative in the field of 11 from six countries.

Then, making the best showing for Russia in three renewals of the International, came Zabeg and Zadorney in a race marred by a spill at the start.

Chef Unseats Jockey

Puissant Chef, winner of the Arc de Triomphe at Longchamps, reared at the start and unseated jockey Maxine Garcia, who came more than 3,000 miles to ride but wound up on the seat of his pants.

Hautain, a second French Thoroughbred, was fifth, followed by Farrney Fox of Ireland, Santa Severa of Italy, Rio Marin of Italy, Prolific of England, and Apostle 2nd of England.

The track, drenched with rain two days ago, dried out rapidly under a bright sun and was "firm" for the race. Bald Eagle, who set a track record of 2:28 in winning a year ago, this time required 2:33 flat to negotiate the mile and one-half.

He was the favorite of the crowd of 29,336 and paid $5.40, $3.80, $2.80. Bald Eagle picked up a winner's purse of $70,000 for Cain Hoy Stable. He has earned $398,085 this year and now must be considered a strong candidate for "Horse of the Year" honors.

Replacement Comes Second

Harmonizing, invited at the last minute as a replacement for the injured Sword Dancer, paid $4.60 and $4.00 and earned $20,000.

Harmonizing, ridden by jockey Johnny Ruane, was claimed for only $6,500 this year and then scored one of the major upsets of the racing season by beating Bald Eagle and Sword Dancer in the recent $100,000 Man O' War Handicap. He is owned by Mrs. Sadie King and Mrs. Jean DeMarco.

The Russians' horses, running as an entry, paid $6.20. The Soviets tried to claim a foul but by the time they made their intentions known, the race had been declared official.

This was the fourth victory for the United States in nine runnings of the International. The others were scored by Fisherman, Mahan and Bald Eagle a year ago.

Colts Favored Over Chicago Bears Sunday

Eagles And Giants Are Picked To Win

By JIM KENSIL

NEW YORK (AP) — Picking pro football winners might be as simple as plane geometry.

In plain English, it's like putting your money on the jockey instead of the horse.

So picking the quarterbacks, here's how Sunday's games will go:

Baltimore 28, Chicago 21 — Otto Graham says the Colts' Johnny Unitas could teach him something about signal-calling. Furthermore, Unitas passed for four TDs last month when the Colts beat the Bears 42-7 at Baltimore, and Colt defenders intercepted seven passes from the Chicago quarterbacks, Ed Brown and Zeke Bratkowski.

Philadelphia 24, Washington 14 — So who cares if the Eagles' Norm Van Brocklin never runs with the ball? He throws it often and accurately, and with a lot more experience than the Redskins' Ralph Guglielmi.

Green Bay 41, Dallas 7 — Green Bay's Lamar McHan and Bart Starr can forget passing and pitchouts. Just give the ball to Jim Taylor and Paul Hornung, and the Packer defense will take care of the weak Dallas attack.

Other picks: New York 17, Pittsburgh 7; Cleveland 31, St. Louis 17, and Detroit 27, Los Angeles 14.

The San Francisco 49ers have the week off.

Sunday in AFL, it'll be:

YMCA Open Swim Meet Postponed

Due to the concentration of effort for the Central Y.M.C.A. open house today and the shift of time in one of the high school football games, the open swimming meet scheduled today at the "Y" at 3 p. m. has been postponed.

The meet will be held Saturday, November 26, at 3 p. m., at the "Y" pool.

ALLEGANY TO PLAY BEALL HERE TODAY

Deaf School Gridders To Host LaSalle

Campers To Shoot For 11th In Row; Game Set At 1:30

Allegany High School's undefeated football team will make its appearance of the season in an afternoon game when it plays the Beall High School Mountaineers today at 1:30 o'clock in the Greenway Avenue bowl.

Coach Ed Schwarz's Campers have reeled off eight consecutive wins under the lights this season and they'll be putting a two-year 10-game winning streak on the line as they engage in their last game before the city and C. V. A. L. championship battle with Fort Hill on Thanksgiving Day.

AHS Won 13 Straight

Beall comes here with a 5-2 record and recently sewed up the Potomac Valley Conference title by winning four consecutive games.

This will be the fourteenth meeting of the teams since the revival of football at Frostburg in 1946 and Beall, although the underdog, will be striving to break a 13-game losing streak.

Coach Jerry Calhoun's team plays its ninth and final game with LaSalle on Thanksgiving Day in Frostburg.

LaSalle At Romney

LaSalle's Explorers journey to Romney today to meet the West Virginia School for the Deaf gridders for the first time since 1952. Game time is 2:30.

This will be LaSalle's ninth start on their 10-game schedule and a win would enable the Explorers to windup the campaign with a .500 record for the first time since 1954, regardless of what happens in the season finale at Beall on Turkey Day.

Coach Jimmy Manges' eleven has won four games and lost four and is expected to beat the Lions, who have won only one game in seven outings. It will be the last game of the season for Coach Donald Babcock's Lions.

In the series that had its inception in 1936, LaSalle has won six times against two victories for Romney teams.

Frostburg Squires Play Independents

The Frostburg Squires will play the Independents Sunday at 2 p. m., at Stitcher Field for second place in the High School Touch Football League.

The winner of this game will play the Allegany Hi-Y Club at a later date in the playoff finals.

Navy Harriers Beat Maryland

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A record-shattering performance by Jim Howard paced Navy's plebe harriers to a 26-33 victory over the previously undefeated Maryland freshman cross country team Friday.

Howard, from Alexandria, Va., erased the former plebe mark with a time of 14:31.1 over the 2.7-mile course. Brain Havey held the old record of 14:40.

Tom Krueger and Mike Saddis of Maryland followed Howard across the finish line in 14:44 and 14:44.3, respectively.

Royal Native Takes Garden State Feature

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP)—Under shrewd handling and perfect timing by Bill Hartack, William B. Mac Donald, Jr's queenly Royal Native won today's $58,200 Vineland Handicap at Garden State Park by a half length over Cain Hoy Stable's Make Sail. The Australian invader, Wiggle, 2nd, finished third some four lengths before the pacesetting My Dear Girl.

Mac Donald received a net check of $37,230 for the 150 4/5 it took Royal Native to rack up her ninth triumph of the season.

The winner paid $5.40, $3.40 and $2.40 as the choice of the 24,660 fans. Make Sail paid $7.40 and $4.40 and Wiggle, 2nd, paid $3.40.

Mountaineers Play In Oregon Today

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Oregon, minus two regulars, runs up against victory-hungry West Virginia on the damp turf of Multnomah Stadium Saturday in an intersectional football game.

Showers were forecast through Saturday. A crowd of 15,000 to 20,000 was expected for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff.

Bald Eagle Cops International 2nd Straight Time

Harmonizing Trails Victor By 2 Lengths

Rider Of French Horse Is Tossed; $70,000 To Winner

By RAY AYRES
United Press International

LAUREL, Md. (UPI) — America's Bald Eagle, noted throughout his career for his stretch rallies, startled the crowd at Laurel Friday by going to the front at the start of the $100,000 Washington D.C. International and leading all the way to win the global classic for the second straight time.

At one point in the mile and one-half race, Bald Eagle was 10 lengths in front although that unexpected margin dwindled rapidly as the others in the field closed in on him in the stretch.

Bald Eagle streaked across the finish line two lengths ahead of Harmonizing, America's second representative in the field of 11 from six countries.

Then, making the best showing for Russia in three renewals of the International, came Zabeg and Zadorney in a race marred by a spill at the start.

Chef Unseats Jockey

Puissant Chef, winner of the Arc de Triomphe at Longchamps, reared at the start and unseated jockey Maxine Garcia, who came more than 3,000 miles to ride but wound up on the seat of his pants.

Hautain, a second French Thoroughbred, was fifth, followed by Farrney Fox of Ireland, Santa Severa of Italy, Rio Marin of Italy, Prolific of England, and Apostle 2nd of England.

The track, drenched with rain two days ago, dried out rapidly under a bright sun and was "firm" for the race. Bald Eagle, who set a track record of 2:28 in winning a year ago, this time required 2:33 flat to negotiate the mile and one-half.

He was the favorite of the crowd of 29,336 and paid $5.40, $3.80, $2.80. Bald Eagle picked up a winner's purse of $70,000 for Cain Hoy Stable. He has earned $398,085 this year and now must be considered a strong candidate for "Horse of the Year" honors.

Replacement Comes Second

Harmonizing, invited at the last minute as a replacement for the injured Sword Dancer, paid $4.60 and $4.00 and earned $20,000.

Harmonizing, ridden by jockey Johnny Ruane, was claimed for only $6,500 this year and then scored one of the major upsets of the racing season by beating Bald Eagle and Sword Dancer in the recent $100,000 Man O' War Handicap. He is owned by Mrs. Sadie King and Mrs. Jean DeMarco.

The Russians' horses, running as an entry, paid $6.20. The Soviets tried to claim a foul but by the time they made their intentions known, the race had been declared official.

This was the fourth victory for the United States in nine runnings of the International. The others were scored by Fisherman, Mahan and Bald Eagle a year ago.

Colts Favored Over Chicago Bears Sunday

Eagles And Giants Are Picked To Win

By JIM KENSIL

NEW YORK (AP) — Picking pro football winners might be as simple as plane geometry.

The theorem: You can't win the National Football League title without a class quarterback.

The corollary: To select pro winners, pick the quarterbacks.

In plain English, it's like putting your money on the jockey instead of the horse.

So picking the quarterbacks, here's how Sunday's games will go:

Baltimore 28, Chicago 21 — Otto Graham says the Colts' Johnny Unitas could teach him something about signal-calling. Furthermore, Unitas passed for four TDs last month when the Colts beat the Bears 42-7 at Baltimore, and Colt defenders intercepted seven passes from the Chicago quarterbacks, Ed Brown and Zeke Bratkowski.

Philadelphia 24, Washington 14 — So who cares if the Eagles' Norm Van Brocklin never runs with the ball? He throws it often and accurately, and with a lot more experience than the Redskins' Ralph Guglielmi.

Green Bay 41, Dallas 7 — Green Bay's Lamar McHan and Bart Starr can forget passing and pitchouts. Just give the ball to Jim Taylor and Paul Hornung, and the Packer defense will take care of the weak Dallas attack.

Other picks: New York 17, Pittsburgh 7; Cleveland 31, St. Louis 17, and Detroit 27, Los Angeles 14.

The San Francisco 49ers have the week off.

Sunday in AFL, it'll be:

Los Angeles 35, Houston 28; Denver 21, Dallas 14 and Buffalo 24, Oakland 21.

YMCA Open Swim Meet Postponed

Due to the concentration of effort for the Central Y.M.C.A. open house today and the shift of time in one of the high school football games, the open swimming meet scheduled today at the "Y" at 3 p. m. has been postponed.

The meet will be held Saturday, November 26, at 3 p. m., at the "Y" pool.

ALLEGANY TO PLAY BEALL HERE TODAY

Deaf School Gridders To Host LaSalle

Campers To Shoot For 11th In Row; Game Set At 1:30

Allegany High School's undefeated football team will make its appearance of the season in an afternoon game when it plays the Beall High School Mountaineers today at 1:30 o'clock in the Greenway Avenue bowl.

Coach Ed Schwarz's Campers have reeled off eight consecutive wins under the lights this season and they'll be putting a two-year 10-game winning streak on the line as they engage in their last game before the city and C. V. A. L. championship battle with Fort Hill on Thanksgiving Day.

AHS Won 13 Straight

Beall comes here with a 5-2 record and recently sewed up the Potomac Valley Conference title by winning four consecutive games.

This will be the fourteenth meeting of the teams since the revival of football at Frostburg in 1946 and Beall, although the underdog, will be striving to break a 13-game losing streak.

Coach Jerry Calhoun's team plays its ninth and final game with LaSalle on Thanksgiving Day in Frostburg.

LaSalle At Romney

LaSalle's Explorers journey to Romney today to meet the West Virginia School for the Deaf gridders for the first time since 1952. Game time is 2:30.

This will be LaSalle's ninth start on their 10-game schedule and a win would enable the Explorers to windup the campaign with a .500 record for the first time since 1954, regardless of what happens in the season finale at Beall on Turkey Day.

Coach Jimmy Manges' eleven has won four games and lost four and is expected to beat the Lions, who have won only one game in seven outings. It will be the last game of the season for Coach Donald Babcock's Lions.

In the series that had its inception in 1936, LaSalle has won six times against two victories for Romney teams.

Frostburg Squires Play Independents

The Frostburg Squires will play the Independents Sunday at 2 p. m., at Stitcher Field for second place in the High School Touch Football League.

The winner of this game will play the Allegany Hi-Y Club at a later date in the playoff finals.

Navy Harriers Beat Maryland

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A record-shattering performance by Jim Howard paced Navy's plebe harriers to a 26-33 victory over the previously undefeated Maryland freshman cross country team Friday.

Howard, from Alexandria, Va., erased the former plebe mark with a time of 14:31.1 over the 2.7-mile course. Brain Havey held the old record of 14:40.

Tom Krueger and Mike Saddis of Maryland followed Howard across the finish line in 14:44 and 14:44.3, respectively.

Royal Native Takes Garden State Feature

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP)—Under shrewd handling and perfect timing by Bill Hartack, William B. Mac Donald, Jr's queenly Royal Native won today's $58,200 Vineland Handicap at Garden State Park by a half length over Cain Hoy Stable's Make Sail. The Australian invader, Wiggle, 2nd, finished third some four lengths before the pacesetting My Dear Girl.

Mac Donald received a net check of $37,230 for the 150 4/5 it took Royal Native to rack up her ninth triumph of the season.

The winner paid $5.40, $3.40 and $2.40 as the choice of the 24,660 fans. Make Sail paid $7.40 and $4.40 and Wiggle, 2nd, paid $3.40.

Mountaineers Play In Oregon Today

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Oregon, minus two regulars, runs up against victory-hungry West Virginia on the damp turf of Multnomah Stadium Saturday in an intersectional football game.

Showers were forecast through Saturday. A crowd of 15,000 to 20,000 was expected for the 1:30 p.m. kickoff.

Stock Market Prices Give Ground As String Runs Out

NEW YORK (UPI)—The string ran out on the stock market Friday as prices gave ground for the first time in nine sessions.

Virtually all the industrial groups were lower with most of the upside action concentrated among the retail chains and some apparel manufacturers.

The session was comparatively dull with volume off sharply as a result of the Veteran's Day holiday and the number of issues traded shrinking to 1,163, the least since Sept. 22.

The Dow-Jones industrial average dipped 3.40 to 608.61, rails lost 0.29 to 129.46 and utilities were nicked for 0.03 to 93.58. Volume came to 2,730,000 shares against 4,030,000 on Thursday.

Declines outnumbered advances by 532 to 434 with 197 holding unchanged. Ten new highs were recorded against 6 new lows.

One optimistic note in the business background, a 2 per cent gain in October retail sales, produced a general rise in the store section with Sears, Roebuck up ⅛, Woolworth ahead ½, American Stores 1¼ and S. H. Kress up 2⅞.

Several apparel and furniture manufacturers also claimed gains—Simmons 1⅜, Kayser-Roth 1⅜ on news it acquired a small apparel-maker, and Adams - Millis 2¼.

Among the industrials, steels were down a point or more for U.S. Steel, Youngstown and Jones & Laughlin. There was a report that operations in the Youngstown area would dip slightly next week. Motors fell as much as ½ in American and ⅞ in Ford. DuPont, up 8⅛ Thursday, lost 2½ to pace a soft chemical section.

Electronics, oils, drugs and aircrafts all dipped slightly.

Kayser-Roth with 47,500 shares led the most active list and was followed by Universal Match off ½, Boeing off ¾, Telautograph off ⅛ and Lionel off ⅛.

Stocks on the American Exchange Friday were mostly mixed in active trading.

Sapphire Petroleum led the market in turnover, trading on big blocks, the largest of which was 16,000 shares at ½ unchanged.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Firm Given Contract For Roofing Work

The Air Flow Roofing and Siding Company yesterday was awarded the contract by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to do roofing and spouting work on the library annex building on Washington Street.

The firm is headed by S. J. Smith and Dale Welch and is a local concern. They bid $645 to do the work.

Other bidders on the project were Alex J. Schute, $860, and G. A. Largent Construction Company, Inc., $884.

Peak Conquered

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) —A French expedition has climbed the 22,000-foot Phera Peak in the central Nepal Himalayas. The four men, headed by Robert Sandoz, are expected to return here in early December with their story.

Israel Protests

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Israel lodged a formal protest Thursday with the Security Council over the seizure of an Israel-bound freighter in the Suez Canal.

It came on the eve of elections to the council, in which the United Arab Republic is a candidate of the Arab bloc.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Soybeans and nearby wheat futures closed strong, but most other grains were sharply lower Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the last bell wheat was off ½ to up 1; corn off ¼ to ¾; oats off ⅞ to 1⅝, rye off ½ to 1; and soybeans up ¾ to 1⅛.

The government's Nov. 1 crop estimate, released after the close Thursday, was a major factor in Friday's trading.

Soybeans shot more than 2 cents higher at the opening bell. The production estimate on beans was revised downward instead of being raised, as many traders had expected.

The report lifted corn prospects to a level which would be a new record. It touched off selling in feed grains, and corn and oats fell to new lows for the season.

Nearby wheat futures firmed on commercial and export buying. Deferred contracts were quiet and steady.

Exporters said Poland bought 1,200,000 bushels of red and hard wheat. The West Coast sold white wheat to India and Chile.

Cash houses led the selling in corn. Most buying came on resting orders. Cash prices continued to slide.

Shorts bought oats after early liquidation, but prices remained weak. Cash houses bought December and sold March and May. Commercial interests bought May.

Rye weakened on liquidating sales. All contracts made new lows. The Winnipeg market was closed, but Canada announced a shipping strike on the Great Lakes was ended.

Outside markets were mixed.

Stock Market Prices Give Ground As String Runs Out

NEW YORK (UPI)—The string ran out on the stock market Friday as prices gave ground for the first time in nine sessions.

Virtually all the industrial groups were lower with most of the upside action concentrated among the retail chains and some apparel manufacturers.

The session was comparatively dull with volume off sharply as a result of the Veteran's Day holiday and the number of issues traded shrinking to 1,163, the least since Sept. 22.

The Dow-Jones industrial average dipped 3.40 to 608.61, rails lost 0.29 to 129.46 and utilities were nicked for 0.03 to 93.58. Volume came to 2,730,000 shares against 4,030,000 on Thursday.

Declines outnumbered advances by 532 to 434 with 197 holding unchanged. Ten new highs were recorded against 6 new lows.

One optimistic note in the business background, a 2 per cent gain in October retail sales, produced a general rise in the store section with Sears, Roebuck up ⅛, Woolworth ahead ½, American Stores 1¼ and S. H. Kress up 2⅞.

Several apparel and furniture manufacturers also claimed gains—Simmons 1⅜, Kayser-Roth 1⅜ on news it acquired a small apparel-maker, and Adams - Millis 2¼.

Among the industrials, steels were down a point or more for U.S. Steel, Youngstown and Jones & Laughlin. There was a report that operations in the Youngstown area would dip slightly next week. Motors fell as much as ½ in American and ⅞ in Ford. Du-Pont, up 8⅛ Thursday, lost 2½ to pace a soft chemical section.

Electronics, oils, drugs and aircrafts all dipped slightly.

Kayser-Roth with 47,500 shares led the most active list and was followed by Universal Match off ½, Boeing off ¾, Telautograph off ⅛ and Lionel off ⅛.

Stocks on the American Exchange Friday were mostly mixed in active trading.

Sapphire Petroleum led the market in turnover, trading on big blocks, the largest of which was 16,000 shares at ½ unchanged.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Firm Given Contract For Roofing Work

The Air Flow Roofing and Siding Company yesterday was awarded the contract by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to do roofing and spouting work on the library annex building on Washington Street.

The firm is headed by S. J. Smith and Dale Welch and is a local concern. They bid $645 to do the work.

Other bidders on the project were Alex J Schute, $860, and G. A. Largent Construction Company, Inc., $884.

Peak Conquered

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—A French expedition has climbed the 22,000-foot Phera Peak in the central Nepal Himalayas. The four men, headed by Robert Sandoz, are expected to return here in early December with their story.

Israel Protests

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Israel lodged a formal protest Thursday with the Security Council over the seizure of an Israel-bound freighter in the Suez Canal.

It came on the eve of elections to the council, in which the United Arab Republic is a candidate of the Arab bloc.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Soybeans and nearby wheat futures closed strong, but most other grains were sharply lower Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the last bell wheat was off ½ to up 1; corn off ¼ to ¾; oats off ⅞ to 1⅛, rye off ½ to 1; and soybeans up ¾ to 1⅛.

The government's Nov. 1 crop estimate, released after the close Thursday, was a major factor in Friday's trading.

Soybeans shot more than 2 cents higher at the opening bell. The production estimate on beans was revised downward instead of being raised, as many traders had expected.

The report lifted corn prospects to a level which would be a new record. It touched off selling in feed grains, and corn and oats fell to new lows for the season.

Nearby wheat futures firmed on commercial and export buying. Deferred contracts were quiet and steady.

Exporters said Poland bought 1,200,000 bushels of red and hard wheat. The West Coast sold white wheat to India and Chile.

Cash houses led the selling in corn. Most buying came on resting orders. Cash prices continued to slide.

Shorts bought oats after early liquidation, but prices remained weak. Cash houses bought December and sold March and May. Commercial interests bought May.

Rye weakened on liquidating sales. All contracts made new lows. The Winnipeg market was closed, but Canada announced a shipping strike on the Great Lakes was ended.

Outside markets were mixed.

SPLENDID! THEN PLEASE DON'T LET COMMANDER SAWYER SAY HE'S BUSY.
DON'T WORRY, MR. SILKI! ABSOLUTELY NOTHING COULD KEEP MY HUSBAND FROM A LOBSTER DINNER.
I'VE GOT THE SAWYERS ROPED, BESSIE. NOW IF WE CAN LURE THE AIR FORCE SECURITY OFFICER, WE'LL KNOW THEY SUSPECT NOTHING.
OKAY, AND JUST LEAVE IT TO ME TO MIX THEIR DRINKS.

Card Of Thanks

The family of the late Arthur E. Gurley wishes to express their sincere thanks and appreciation to all their friends, neighbors and relatives who were so kind to them during their recent bereavement. They especially wish to thank the pallbearers, those who sent flowers, those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral and Rev. Jacob Snyder. To all others who in any manner rendered assistance, they are indeed grateful.
MRS. ARTHUR E. GURLEY
AND FAMILY

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved mother, Irene G. King, who passed away Nov. 12, 1948.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear Mother,
That we do not think of you.

WILMA, WILBUR AND BILLY

Card Of Thanks

The family of the late Arthur E. Gurley wishes to express their sincere thanks and appreciation to all their friends, neighbors and relatives who were so kind to them during their recent bereavement. They especially wish to thank the pallbearers, those who sent flowers, those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral and Rev. Jacob Snyder. To all others who in any manner rendered assistance, they are indeed grateful.

MRS. ARTHUR E. GURLEY
AND FAMILY

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved mother, Irene G. King, who passed away Nov. 12, 1948.

In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true,
There is not a day, dear Mother,
That we do not think of you.

WILMA, WILBUR AND BILLY

Library Plans Contest For Naming Colt

Next week is Children's Book Week and to help focus attention on the observance, the Allegany County Library is urging all youngsters through the ninth grade to participate in a "Name Misty's Colt Contest," according to Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian.

Purpose of this contest is to enable boys and girls of elementary and junior high school age to suggest names for a colt born to Misty on Chincoteague Island, Va. on April 6. The fawn colored colt has four white stockings. The sire of the colt is named Wings.

All children who use the facilities of any of the branches of the Allegany County Library individually will submit names for the colt to the librarian on or before 6 p. m. Saturday, November 19.

A committee of judges, to be announced later, will select one name on the basis of its originality and aptness to be the single entry of the library.

That single name from the Allegany County Library will be submitted on an entry blank supplied by Rand, McNally & Company, together with no more than 50 words to complete the statement: "We believe . . . . . . is the best name for Misty's colt because . . . ."

From the names submitted by the libraries, a committee of judges will select on the basis of originality, uniqueness and aptness the name and statement which in their opinion are most suitable.

The library submitting the name and statement selected by the judges as most suitable will receive $1,000 to be used at the discretion of the librarian for the purchase of books for the children's department of the library. In the case entries from two or more libraries are judged equally suitable the prize will be divided equally among them.

Bonn Acts To Ease U. S. Dollar Pressure

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—West Germany took its first step Thursday to help ease pressure on the U.S. dollar. More moves seemed just around the coroner.

The Federal Bank cut the discount rate from 5 to 4 per cent in an effort to check the flow of foreign exchange into the country. West Gemany had been under mounting criticism for its tight-money policy which attracted capital from countries with lower interest rates.

West German gold and foreign exchange reserves have climbed annually by some $2 billion — reaching a record high of $7,378,000,000 last month—while America's reserve have dropped by $4 billion a year.

Plans are also maturing to allocate three billion marks — $714 million—in aid for underdeveloped countries. Half of this amount would be raised by German industry to contribute to the development of African-Asian countries.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

HOLLYWOOD—At last a good break for Susan Magness (ex-wife of Charles Chaplin Jr.) who has had some bad ones. Susan has been chosen to receive the Robert Francis Scholarship awarded annually to a promising player by Benno and Batami Schneider, famed team of drama coaches.

The scholarship is in memory of Bob Francis, young actor who was zooming to stardom under the tutelage of the Schneiders when he died. During their years of training new talent at Columbia, before opening their own school, Benno and Batami coached Kim Novak, Angie Dickinson, Barbara Bel Geddes and Joby Baker, last year's scholarship winner.

Getting back to Susan, she's now eager to resume the career she gave up when she married young Chaplin.

Wonder what Elizabeth Taylor thinks now that "Butterfield 8," which she bitterly opposed making, is practically a cinch to win her an Academy Award nomination? Not all critics are agreed on the picture, but they are of one mind about Liz's performance — sensational.

Yet it's gossiped that she had to be wooed into the role by MGM agreeing to absorb the losses suffered by Liz and Mike Todd Jr., in the smellorama movie. Also Eddie Fisher was given a big role in "Butterfield" and, best of all—it's cleaning up financially. Unlike "father," movie queens do not always know best.

From Miss L.O.P. in New York:

"Excitement of the election in New York kept people who normally go to bed at a reasonable hour up all night waiting for the final returns. There were any number of election night parties and, of course, the usual discussions. After it was over, the wise ones said whether Senator Kennedy was your choice for president or not, the American people must stand back of him and support him.

"Many theatrical artists, musicians, writers and others gathered at the home of Mrs. Tobe Davis. I hadn't seen the Begum Aga Khan since she made her fast trip to Hollywood and I had dinner with her, so we had quite a talk. I enjoyed meeting Dr. Ralph Bunche, who is a brilliant man. Art Buchwald, here from Paris, was carrying an American flag.

"Mrs. Isaac Stern, wife of the famous violinist, and good friend of Jack Benny, sat with Jimmy McHugh, and they concentrated on the election results on TV. Both of them are wild-eyed Kennedy-ites. Nice to see Mrs. Mary Lasker, Henry Ginsberg, charming actress Catherine Nesbitt, the Billy Roses, Ruth and Zachary Scott, Eleanor Berkson, Celeste Holm and many others.

"Many guests came from the theatre and Tobe served a hot supper until the dawn. Millie Considine sat with the gloomy crowd (she was for Nixon), but Bob carried the banner for Kennedy right along, as did Frank Conniff, of our paper."

I had thought Paul Henreid was too happy directing to turn actor again. But next week he planes to Paris to play the fourth starring part in "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" with Glenn Ford, Charles Boyer and Maurice Chevalier. Paul's desk was piled high with TV shows he was going to direct with June Allyson and for "Alfred Hitchcock Presents," when the call came from MGM to get out his make-up kit again. He was about to use the shows as an excuse to remain a director when he was told that MGM will soon return the company to Hollywood for interiors—so why not do both? So everyone is happy—including the income tax people.

How about "America's Outstanding Safe Driver," a good-looking young man named Alex Keilen, being offered the part of the taxi driver (??) in "High Heels?" It's a switch—and good for some publicity which I'm sure never crossed producer Jerry Wald's mind when he contacted Keilen.

Three months ago Keilen beat out nearly half-a-million competitors in the cross-country Telar test drive sponsored by the National Safety Council and the Du pont Telar anti-freeze division. If screen tests reveal he can act you'll see the safest motorist in America driving a movie taxi.

Labor Leader Sees Mandate In West Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A West Virginia labor leader has warned state Democrats that the party must come up with definite improvements for the state or face the voters' wrath in 1964.

West Virginia AFL-CIO President Miles C. Stanley said that if improvements are not made "the judgment will be just as severe four years from now as it was Tuesday."

He referred to Tuesday's general election which saw the Republicans lose control of state government after a four-year tenure.

Stanley said voters had given Democrats a definite mandate to provide a better economy and that the party will not be able to find any excuses for lack of action.

The AFL-CIO will keep close check on the actions of the Barron administration and the Democratic Legislature, Stanley said, to see if the party is attempting to carry out its pledges.

Labor supported the Democratic winners in the election.

Fire Damages Area Pig Pen

A fire early last night damaged a pig pen at Stoney Run about three miles west of Westernport.

The pig pen is on the property of Clifton Miller and the fire is believed to have been started by some children who were playing in the vicinity.

The blaze was extinguished by 16 men from Potomac Fire Company No. 2 from Westernport. Tri-Towns Company No. 1 also responded to the alarm which was received about 5:15 p. m.

Ham, Oyster Supper

Short Gap firemen and auxiliary will hold a ham and oyster supper today from 4:30 until 7:30 in the fire hall.

Bake Sale Today

A bake sale will be held from 3 until 8 tonight and after all masses tomorrow. Sponsored by the Christian Mothers Confraternity of SS. Peter and Paul Church, it will be in the parish hall.

Gas Operations Are Transferred

Supervision of the distribution properties of Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company's West Virginia operations have been transferred from Cumberland to Wheeling, Vice-President G. E. Wilson announced today.

The operational move was made to pave the way for the formation of Columbia Gas of Maryland, Inc., on January 1, 1961, the official said. Columbia Gas of Maryland will include only C. & A.'s present retail sales and service operations in Maryland.

All C. & A. local managers and offices in West Virginia—serving some 17,000 customers — will remain under the supervision of Elkins area manager J. E. Batdorf. He, in turn, will report to C. M. Taylor, Wheeling district manager for Manufacturers Light and Heat Company. Manufacturers and C. & A. are sister companies in the Pittsburgh Group Companies of Columbia Gas System.

C. & A. District Manager C. C. Robbins will continue to direct the company's Maryland operations, Wilson said.

Church Schedules Visitation Program

The Christian Stewardship Every-Member Visitation program of St. Paul's Lutheran Church opened Thursday with a buffet supper and orientation meeting Thursday in the fellowship hall.

Rev. John F. Sammel, pastor, and C. M. Sanner, a member of the vestry, conducted a training period for the 100 persons who will work as teams in visiting every member of the congregation.

A film strip, "Ye Are My Witnesses," was shown.

General chairman of the project is H. Lee Silcox and divisional chairman are Miss Alda Bishop, Mrs. Alberta Trieber, Calvin Keiter and J. Thomas Moore.

Committee heads are: H. C. Elder, and Charles L. Kopp, new member visitation; Mrs. Calvin S. Keiter and Roy Whitson, campaign literature; Mrs. Louise Griggs and members of Circle 5, dinner, and Mrs. Harry Utterback and Mrs. James R. Smith, publicity.

Special Service Planned Tomorrow

There will be a special service for colored persons of this area tomorrow at 3 p. m. at the Pentecostal Holiness Church on South Lee Street.

The service will be in charge of Rev. Horace A. Hawes, overseer for the Church of God colored churches in Maryland.

The special service is being sponsored by area Churches of God and it is planned to hold the meetings weekly. Additional information may be obtained by calling PA 4-3767.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Wave Before You Dye!

Take no chances with hair that you plan to dye. Always schedule your new permanent wave a week or two BEFORE a coloring treatment. Permanent waving inevitably affects hair color to some degree, but, on top of a dye job or just afterward, your new hair shade may be altered and badly distorted.

This is just one of the precautions you must consider for the sake of hair-coloring. There are more . . . but none is so difficult as clearing up the troubles that may arise if you don't take these common-sense warnings seriously.

An expert colorist won't treat your hair if your scalp shows irritation, cuts or abrasions. He'll tell you to heal the scalp first, then come back. How often does the home-colorist even realize the condition of her scalp? And it's a rare do-it-yourself damsel who gives her locks pre-conditioning with a good oil or lanolin cream before she dares to dye.

Preconditioning is imperative if you want your hair to be shiny, soft and springy, healthy enough to receive successful coloring. After color treatment, conditioning should continue regularly. Once or twice a month a gentle but thorough soaking in cream will banish those two banes of dyed hair, brittleness and breakage.

This dry and delicate nature of hair that has been dyed calls for extra tenderness every time you touch it. No longer can you whack away with a harsh hairbrush or try to cow your curls with a careless comb. Dyed hair mats easily, tangles without trying. It seems to want and to need hard brushing and combing. . . but don't give in to its obstinate ways. Easy does it; be patient and take your time. A cream rinse after shampoos will help you to combat snarls.

You'll have to keep open-eyes, too, to spy out color-changes in your hair. Hair can react differently at different times, even to the most foolproof, faithful color formula. If a color problem crops up, take it to an expert to solve. Your "permanent" color isn't really as permanent as all that you know. Not while hair grows at half an inch a month. Not while a new color can cover up the hair you want to change.

That's the beauty of hair dye . . . attracting women to be more attractive, as long as they take care instead of chances.

My latest charm guide, "Thirty Days to Charm," give you a beauty hint for every day of the month. Follow it closely! Watch your charm rating go up! To get your copy send 10c and a stamped, return envelope to "Secrets of Charm," % this newspaper.

Library Plans Contest For Naming Colt

Next week is Children's Book Week and to help focus attention on the observance, the Allegany County Library is urging all youngsters through the ninth grade to participate in a "Name Misty's Colt Contest," according to Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian.

Purpose of this contest is to enable boys and girls of elementary and junior high school age to suggest names for a colt born to Misty on Chincoteague Island, Va. on April 6. The fawn colored colt has four white stockings. The sire of the colt is named Wings.

All children who use the facilities of any of the branches of the Allegany County Library individually will submit names for the colt to the librarian on or before 6 p. m. Saturday, November 19.

A committee of judges, to be announced later, will select one name on the basis of its originality and aptness to be the single entry of the library.

That single name from the Allegany County Library will be submitted on an entry blank supplied by Rand, McNally & Company, together with no more than 50 words to complete the statement: "We believe . . . . . . is the best name for Misty's colt because . . . ."

From the names submitted by the libraries, a committee of judges will select on the basis of originality, uniqueness and aptness the name and statement which in their opinion are most suitable.

The library submitting the name and statement selected by the judges as most suitable will receive $1,000 to be used at the discretion of the librarian for the purchase of books for the children's department of the library. In the case entries from two or more libraries are judged equally suitable the prize will be divided equally among them.

Bonn Acts To Ease U. S. Dollar Pressure

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—West Germany took its first step Thursday to help ease pressure on the U.S. dollar. More moves seemed just around the coroner.

The Federal Bank cut the discount rate from 5 to 4 per cent in an effort to check the flow of foreign exchange into the country. West Gemany had been under mounting criticism for its tight-money policy which attracted capital from countries with lower interest rates.

West German gold and foreign exchange reserves have climbed annually by some $2 billion — reaching a record high of $7,378,000,000 last month—while America's reserve have dropped by $4 billion a year.

Plans are also maturing to allocate three billion marks — $714 million—in aid for underdeveloped countries. Half of this amount would be raised by German industry to contribute to the development of African-Asian countries.

Dorothy Neilson Has Birthday Party

Attending were Donna Miller, Joan Schriver, Donna Goff, Candace Cooper, Deane Mowbray, Roberta Keyes, Carol Ann Mason, Nancey Lee McCutcheon, Harry Miller, John Meyers, Allen McCarty, Frank McCarty, Mary Janice Barnes, Georgeanna Davis, Eunice Drew, Linda Ross, Nina Timney, Sharon Joy Kyle, Karen Sue Green, Carol Ann Penman, Marie Clark, Linda Lee Clark, Lorraine Clark, Calvin Ashby, Roberta Griffith, Bonnie Russell, Margaret Schramm, Marilyn Todd, Martha McCutcheon, Robert Green, Rose Mary Schriver, Ricky Neilson Pearl Neilson, Dave Drew, Mrs. Sarah Neilson, Mrs. Beulah Myers and Mrs. Ruth Miller.

Games were played and refreshments were served. Dorothy Frances received many lovely gifts from her friends and relatives.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Dorothy Manners

HOLLYWOOD—At last a good break for Susan Magness (ex-wife of Charles Chaplin Jr.) who has had some bad ones. Susan has been chosen to receive the Robert Francis Scholarship awarded annually to a promising player by Benno and Batami Schneider, famed team of drama coaches.

The scholarship is in memory of Bob Francis, young actor who was zooming to stardom under the tutelage of the Schneiders when he died. During their years of training new talent at Columbia, before opening their own school, Benno and Batami coached Kim Novak, Angie Dickinson, Barbara Bel Geddes and Joby Baker, last year's scholarship winner.

Getting back to Susan, she's now eager to resume the career she gave up when she married young Chaplin.

Wonder what Elizabeth Taylor thinks now that "Butterfield 8," which she bitterly opposed making, is practically a cinch to win her an Academy Award nomination? Not all critics are agreed on the picture, but they are of one mind about Liz's performance — sensational.

Yet it's gossiped that she had to be wooed into the role by MGM agreeing to absorb the losses suffered by Liz and Mike Todd Jr., in the smellorama movie. Also Eddie Fisher was given a big role in "Butterfield" and, best of all—it's cleaning up financially. Unlike "father," movie queens do not always know best.

From Miss L.O.P. in New York:

"Excitement of the election in New York kept people who normally go to bed at a reasonable hour up all night waiting for the final returns. There were any number of election night parties and, of course, the usual discussions. After it was over, the wise ones said whether Senator Kennedy was your choice for president or not, the American people must stand back of him and support him.

"Many theatrical artists, musicians, writers and others gathered at the home of Mrs. Tobe Davis. I hadn't seen the Begum Aga Khan since she made her fast trip to Hollywood and I had dinner with her, so we had quite a talk. I enjoyed meeting Dr. Ralph Bunche, who is a brilliant man. Art Buchwald, here from Paris, was carrying an American flag.

"Mrs. Isaac Stern, wife of the famous violinist, and good friend of Jack Benny, sat with Jimmy McHugh, and they concentrated on the election results on TV. Both of them are wild-eyed Kennedy-ites. Nice to see Mrs. Mary Lasker, Henry Ginsberg, charming actress Catherine Nesbitt, the Billy Roses, Ruth and Zachary Scott, Eleanor Berkson, Celeste Holm and many others.

"Many guests came from the theatre and Tobe served a hot supper until the dawn. Millie Considine sat with the gloomy crowd (she was for Nixon), but Bob carried the banner for Kennedy right along, as did Frank Conniff, of our paper."

I had thought Paul Henreid was too happy directing to turn actor again. But next week he planes to Paris to play the fourth starring part in "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" with Glenn Ford, Charles Boyer and Maurice Chevalier. Paul's desk was piled high with TV shows he was going to direct with June Allyson and for "Alfred Hitchcock Presents," when the call came from MGM to get out his make-up kit again. He was about to use the shows as an excuse to remain a director when he was told that MGM will soon return the company to Hollywood for interiors—so why not do both? So everyone is happy—including the income tax people.

How about "America's Outstanding Safe Driver," a good-looking young man named Alex Keilen, being offered the part of the taxi driver (??) in "High Heels?" It's a switch—and good for some publicity which I'm sure never crossed producer Jerry Wald's mind when he contacted Keilen.

Three months ago Keilen beat out nearly half-a-million competitors in the cross-country Telar test drive sponsored by the National Safety Council and the Du pont Telar anti-freeze division. If screen tests reveal he can act you'll see the safest motorist in America driving a movie taxi.

Labor Leader Sees Mandate In West Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A West Virginia labor leader has warned state Democrats that the party must come up with definite improvements for the state or face the voters' wrath in 1964.

West Virginia AFL-CIO President Miles C. Stanley said that if improvements are not made "the judgment will be just as severe four years from now as it was Tuesday."

He referred to Tuesday's general election which saw the Republicans lose control of state government after a four-year tenure.

Stanley said voters had given Democrats a definite mandate to provide a better economy and that the party will not be able to find any excuses for lack of action.

The AFL-CIO will keep close check on the actions of the Barron administration and the Democratic Legislature, Stanley said, to see if the party is attempting to carry out its pledges.

Labor supported the Democratic winners in the election.

Fire Damages Area Pig Pen

A fire early last night damaged a pig pen at Stoney Run about three miles west of Westernport.

The pig pen is on the property of Clifton Miller and the fire is believed to have been started by some children who were playing in the vicinity.

The blaze was extinguished by 16 men from Potomac Fire Company No. 2 from Westernport. Tri-Towns Company No. 1 also responded to the alarm which was received about 5:15 p. m.

Ham, Oyster Supper

Short Gap firemen and auxiliary will hold a ham and oyster supper today from 4:30 until 7:30 in the fire hall.

Bake Sale Today

A bake sale will be held from 3 until 8 tonight and after all masses tomorrow. Sponsored by the Christian Mothers Confraternity of SS. Peter and Paul Church, it will be in the parish hall.

Gas Operations Are Transferred

Supervision of the distribution properties of Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company's West Virginia operations have been transferred from Cumberland to Wheeling, Vice-President G. E. Wilson announced today.

The operational move was made to pave the way for the formation of Columbia Gas of Maryland, Inc., on January 1, 1961, the official said. Columbia Gas of Maryland will include only C. & A.'s present retail sales and service operations in Maryland.

All C. & A. local managers and offices in West Virginia—serving some 17,000 customers — will remain under the supervision of Elkins area manager J. E. Batdorf. He, in turn, will report to C. M. Taylor, Wheeling district manager for Manufacturers Light and Heat Company. Manufacturers and C. & A. are sister companies in the Pittsburgh Group Companies of Columbia Gas System.

C. & A. District Manager C. C. Robbins will continue to direct the company's Maryland operations, Wilson said.

Church Schedules Visitation Program

The Christian Stewardship Every-Member Visitation program of St. Paul's Lutheran Church opened Thursday with a buffet supper and orientation meeting Thursday in the fellowship hall.

Rev. John F. Sammel, pastor, and C. M. Sanner, a member of the vestry, conducted a training period for the 100 persons who will work as teams in visiting every member of the congregation.

A film strip, "Ye Are My Witnesses," was shown.

General chairman of the project is H. Lee Silcox and divisional chairman are Miss Alda Bishop, Mrs. Alberta Trieber, Calvin Keiter and J. Thomas Moore.

Committee heads are: H. C. Elder, and Charles L. Kopp, new member visitation; Mrs. Calvin S. Keiter and Roy Whitson, campaign literature; Mrs. Louise Griggs and members of Circle 5, dinner, and Mrs. Harry Utterback and Mrs. James R. Smith, publicity.

Special Service Planned Tomorrow

There will be a special service for colored persons of this area tomorrow at 3 p. m. at the Pentecostal Holiness Church on South Lee Street.

The service will be in charge of Rev. Horace A. Hawes, overseer for the Church of God colored churches in Maryland.

The special service is being sponsored by area Churches of God and it is planned to hold the meetings weekly. Additional information may be obtained by calling PA 4-3767.

Named Sears Manager

John M. West, former operating assistant to the manager of the Sears, Roebuck and Company store here, has been named manager of a new store to be opened at Rahway, N. J.

Trail Ride Tomorrow

Allegany Saddle Club will have a trail ride covering the Dan's Rock section tomorrow. It will leave the home of Miss Margaret Paddleford, Winchester Road, at noon.

Last Voyage

LIVERPOOL, England (AP) — The 30-year-old Cunard liner Britannic sailed Friday on her last round trip voyage to New York. The 27,700-ton vessel eventually will be sold for scrap.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Wave Before You Dye!

Take no chances with hair that you plan to dye. Always schedule your new permanent wave a week or two BEFORE a coloring treatment. Permanent waving inevitably affects hair color to some degree, but, on top of a dye job or just afterward, your new hair shade may be altered and badly distorted.

This is just one of the precautions you must consider for the sake of hair-coloring. There are more . . . but none is so difficult as clearing up the troubles that may arise if you don't take these common-sense warnings seriously.

An expert colorist won't treat your hair if your scalp shows irritation, cuts or abrasions. He'll tell you to heal the scalp first, then come back. How often does the home-colorist even realize the condition of her scalp? And it's a rare do-it-yourself damsel who gives her locks pre-conditioning with a good oil or lanolin cream before she dares to dye.

Preconditioning is imperative if you want your hair to be shiny, soft and springy, healthy enough to receive successful coloring. After color treatment, conditioning should continue regularly. Once or twice a month a gentle but thorough soaking in cream will banish those two banes of dyed hair, brittleness and breakage.

This dry and delicate nature of hair that has been dyed calls for extra tenderness every time you touch it. No longer can you whack away with a harsh hairbrush or try to cow your curls with a careless comb. Dyed hair mats easily, tangles without trying. It seems to want and to need hard brushing and combing. . . but don't give in to its obstinate ways. Easy does it; be patient and take your time. A cream rinse after shampoos will help you to combat snarls.

You'll have to keep open-eyes, too, to spy out color-changes in your hair. Hair can react differently at different times, even to the most foolproof, faithful color formula. If a color problem crops up, take it to an expert to solve. Your "permanent" color isn't really as permanent as all that you know. Not while hair grows at half an inch a month. Not while a new color can cover up the hair you want to change.

That's the beauty of hair dye . . . attracting women to be more attractive, as long as they take care instead of chances.

My latest charm guide, "Thirty Days to Charm," give you a beauty hint for every day of the month. Follow it closely! Watch your charm rating go up! To get your copy send 10c and a stamped, return envelope to "Secrets of Charm," % this newspaper.

County Man Faces Trial In Assault

Threatened Wife With Knife, Gun

A 51-year-old Mill Run Road man was arrested early yesterday morning at his home and was charged with assault with intent to kill his wife, authorities said.

Edward Whisenhunt was taken from his home on a complaint from his wife. He was later taken before Trial Magistrate Ned R. Hose, of Oldtown, who set bond at $500.

Police said Mrs. Virginia Whisenhunt of Oldtown told them that her husband threatened her with a butcher knife, and later got a gun and chased her from the house.

She claims she was cut on the hand during the argument. After running to a nearby field she hid from view in tall brush, Mrs. Whisenhunt told police. She said she got back to her home with the help of a neighbor.

Following the argument she obtained a warrant from Magistrate Hose, according to police, who made the arrest about 3 a. m. He was taken to the county jail.

When he appeared before Magistrate Hose, Whisenhunt procured bond and was set free pending a hearing on Monday at 10 a. m. in Trial Magistrate's Court here.

Investigating officers were Trooper George Robinett and Trooper Joseph Helmstetter.

Fewer Method Courses Urged For Teachers

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Tennessee educator told the Maryland State Conference on Education Friday that fewer professional education courses should be given to prospective teachers.

Dr. Henry Hill, president of George Peabody College in Nashville, Tenn., said he favored "seven semesters of subject matter and one semester of professional education for the high school teacher."

Dr. Hill delivered the keynote address at the fourth annual convention here.

"We educationalists err badly when we fail to urge academic respectability for all teachers," he said.

Cites Belief

Most states require at least a full semester of education courses in addition to a semester of practice teaching.

"I have an increasing belief in the value of what is sometimes called practicum," Dr. Hill said. He described this as "down to earth experiences of the candidate (for teaching) under skilled direction prior to taking full responsibility."

He said educators often are "accused of setting inelastic standards which require too much and which ignore thorough preparation by bright graduates of Vassar, Wellesley, Smith and Goucher, to use a few examples."

Dr. Earle Hawkins, president of Towson State Teachers College, in his report on teacher education, offered a rebuttal to Dr. Hill's remarks when he said "it is equally important to know how to teach as well as what to teach."

Is Not Enough

Adequate liberal arts courses are offered in the teachers colleges, he said, in addition to three other essentials — the philosophy and background of teaching, observation of teaching and the practical application of what the students have learned.

"Knowing your subject matter is awfully important, but not enough," Hawkins said.

Earlier, Jerome Framptom Jr., president of the State Board of Education, told the 300 representatives of local school boards and educators that an informed public is essential if public education in Maryland is to progress.

The two-day conference has a general theme of quality education. On the agenda are workshop sessions on teacher training, certification and recruitment.

Street Crews Are Ready To Battle Ice And Snow

The Cumberland Street Department has completed preparations for one of its biggest jobs — keeping streets open to traffic during the winter.

The first sign that bad weather was impending came recently when some 70 cinder barrels were placed at strategic spots on hilly sections of the city.

Each of the barrels has been filled with a mixture of cinders and calcium chloride, and a short-handled shovel has been attached to the container so motorists can scatter the abrasive in times of need.

Six salt boxes have been set out at such points as railroad crossings and bridges so traffic can be kept moving at such strategic points.

Another sign of approaching winter was the removal this week of some 20 benches from downtown streets. They will be painted and reconditioned at the Street Department warehouse this winter.

Stockpiled at the warehouse is a good supply of salt and calcium chloride.

Street Commissioner John J. Long reports that 35 tons of salt and 15 tons of calcium chloride are on hand and that more will be ordered if needed.

Also stockpiled at a Central Avenue dump are some 300 tons of cinders.

Snow plows have been sharpened and adjusted and are ready to be attached to Street Department trucks.

In readiness at all times at the City Warehouse this winter is an emergency truck, loaded with supplies of salt, and equipment to scatter it, and a snow plow. Crews are on call at all times.

Since it is impossible to clear all streets at once—there are some 67 miles of paved and another 20 miles of unpaved streets in the city—crews aim to clear major streets first.

Come next spring, other Street Department crews will have to dip into hundreds of catch basins to remove the accumulation of cinders.

Downey Heads U.S. 4-H Work

Mylo S. Downey, former assistant farm agent of Allegany County, has been named head of the 4-H club work in the Federal Extension Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

He was named to the new position by FES Administrator P. V. Kepner, following the step-up of Dr. E. W. Aiton to FES assistant administrator in charge of programs.

A native of Maryland and former resident of Washington County, Mr. Downey was Maryland state 4-H club leader for nine years before joining the Extension 4-H staff in 1954.

Earlier in his career he had served successively as a vocational agriculture teacher and an Extension county agent, having served as assistant to Ralph McHenry who was Allegany County farm agent for a number of years.

He holds a bachelor of science and master of arts degrees in agricultural education from the University of Maryland. In addition he has done graduate work in human development and leadership at the University of Maryland, University of Chicago, and Cornell University.

LaVale Resident Naturalized In Baltimore Court

A LaVale woman who formerly lived in Verdun, France, became an American citizen Thursday in Baltimore during a naturalization ceremony before Judge W. Calvin Chesnut of the U.S. District Court.

She is Mrs. Margaret Claire (Vaudois) Lowery, wife of Captain Richard Lowery, who is presently stationed in Korea with the Army.

Mrs. Lowery, who has been in the United States about four years, met her husband while he was stationed in that country.

The couple have two children, Eva Marie, four and Richard Jr., 14 months. She was among 200 persons who became citizens in the Baltimore ceremony.

Her husband, who graduated from Allegany High School in 1950, expects to return to the United States next April.

To Be Entertained

North Cumberland Homemakers Club will have all members of the Allegany County Homemakers Chorus as guests at its covered dish luncheon November 17. Fairview Methodist Church social room at noon.

The chorus will entertain with a few selections, and two members of the club will present a skit. Mrs. Catherine Grimes is dinner chairman.

Circuit Court Grants Divorces

Six divorces have been granted in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Melvin Knapp was granted a divorce from Mary E. Knapp. She was given custody of their three minor children. Anthony Daher, also known as Tony Francis, was awarded a divorce from Mary Daher, also known as Mary Francis. Mary Belle Simmons won a divorce from Sanford Wilson Simmons.

Delores E. Bennett was awarded a divorce from James E. Bennett and he was given custody of their infant child. Ruth Ann Van Meter was granted a divorce from Roy L. Van Meter and she was given custody of their infant son. Glenn M. Shugars was granted a divorce from Ruby W. Shugars and he was given custody of three of their infant children and she was awarded custody of the other two infant children.

3 Boys Face Hearing In Auto Theft

Three area boys who were arrested Thursday night in connection with the theft of a car in Frostburg and an ensuing wild chase by police are scheduled to appear in Juvenile Court Monday, authorities said.

They are being detained in the detention quarters of the county infirmary pending the hearing.

Tfc. J. V. Stakem said they took a car belonging to Edgar W. Shannon from a parking lot in Frostburg.

They drove to McCoole where they got gasoline which they failed to pay for. Police said they proceeded toward Westernport and forced another car off the highway at Franklin on Maryland Route 36.

The tag number of the car was given to police by the station attendant and the man whose car was forced off the road.

Trooper Stakem, who was in the Eckhart area at the time, proceeded toward Lonaconing and a roadblock was set up in Barton by Tfc. Robert Dishong.

While the boys were in Lonaconing, two got out of the car and went into a business establishment and the third boy went for another ride.

Trooper Stakem said he spotted the car, followed it through Lonaconing at a high rate of speed, and finally caught up with the driver after the car was wrecked near Valley High School.

While going through Lonaconing the boy was reported to have run through a stop light and forced other cars off the road. The boy struck two mail boxes, ran off the road and wrecked the car. He implicated the two others who were picked up in the business establishment, according to state police who were assisted by Lonaconing police.

Big 7 Funds Exceed Goal In CUF Drive

Two Units Report More To Come In

The Big Seven are already over the top in the current County United Fund campaign and additional contributions are still to come in from two of the units.

The Big Seven — which represent 8,037 employes of major Cumberland area industrial plants — have subscribed $120,516.82 toward the $352,666 goal, according to an audit completed here Thursday night.

This represents 105.5 per cent of the Big Seven's $114,366 goal.

The ABL Charity Fund, representing some 1,600 employes of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, has subscribed $17,500.

The B&O Railroad Employe CUF, which includes 1,261 employes of the B&O here, has subscribed $16,289 and more is to come in.

The Amcelle Employes Charity Fund represents some 2,000 employes of the Amcelle plant of Celanese Fibers Company, and had raised $18,700 toward CUF needs.

The Kelly Employes' Charity Fund, formed by 2,079 employes of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company here, has raised $30,146.82 toward the campaign.

The Works 7 Employes United Fund Chapter at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plant here, raised $16,460 among its 645 members.

The Western Maryland Railway's Charity Fund, with 450 employes of the railway, has contributed a total of $3,875 toward CUF needs.

The Westvaco Employes One-Drive Charity Fund at the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company has raised $17,546 and officials said more is to come in.

'Thank You' Visit Set By Mathias

GOP Representative To Tour Area Today

Charles McC. Mathias Jr., Republican victor in Tuesday's Sixth Congressional District contest, will pay a "thank you" visit to Western Maryland today.

The 38-year-old Frederick County attorney who defeated Democratic Rep. John R. Foley in the hard-fought battle, is scheduled to reach the Flintstone-Oldtown area at 11 a. m.

Mr. Mathias plans to arrive in Cumberland at noon, when he will meet J. Glenn Beall Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Republican Committee, and George R. Hughes Jr., co-chairman of the Republican campaign commitee.

The victorious candidate plans to reach Frostburg at 1:15 p. m. on his way for a tour of Grantsville, Oakland and Kitzmiller.

He will return by way of Westernport, Barton, Lonaconing and Midland on the way back home.

For his "thank you" visit, he has had his station wagon painted with large "Thank You's."

Enthusiastic support by Allegany and Garrett County voters contributed to the decisive victory won by Mr. Mathias Tuesday.

Mr. Mathias also won support from voters in his own Frederick County and held Rep. Foley to slim leads in Washington and Montgomery counties.

Holy Name Society To Attend Mass

The Holy Name Society of SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church will attend the 7 o'clock mass Sunday and receive Holy Communion in a body.

Rev. DePaul Ripko, OFM Cap., spiritual director of the unit, said vespers will be held Sunday at 7:30 p. m., followed by the fall meeting.

Kennedy's State Manager Leaves After Triumph

By LOUIS G. PANOS

BALTIMORE (AP) — Big Joe Curnane, his mission for John F. Kennedy accomplished, left Maryland today for Massachusetts.

Curnane, a 46-year-old undertaker with a hearty laugh, was a member of that small army of Kennedy liaison men assigned to each of the states before, during and since the Democratic National convention last July.

Because Kennedy ran in Maryland's presidential primary in his drive to the nomination, Curnane spent five months in this state—one month before the May primary and four before last Tuesday's election.

Maryland politics may never be the same.

It started last April, just after the 6-foot-2, 230-pound Curnane arrived from Everett, Mass.

Democratic local leaders, feuding among themselves but virtually all for Kennedy, were resentful.

Others were afraid the outsider might be one of those bright, young men who seemed to have overrun the national organization of every major candidate this year—newcomers unschooled in the protocol of precinct politics.

Curnane quickly dispelled both notions when three warring chieftains paid their first visit to his office in a Baltimore hotel.

"All right, boys," he greeted them, "You're all welcome here. But check your guns at the door so we can get down to business."

They did, and the three walked out as co-chairmen of Kennedy's Baltimore City campaign organization.

After Kennedy's primary victory over Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon and two obscure candidates, Curnane kept tabs on the Maryland delegation to the nominating convention in Los Angeles.

Although a member of the Massachusetts delegation to the convention, he sat with the Maryland group. His pocket bulging with notes on the political background and factional allegiance of each member of that group, he watched for signs of a possible Maryland bolt to another candidate on the second ballot, which never came.

Back in Maryland for the general campaign, he assured observers the regular party leaders were calling the shots.

"After all, I'm just here to watch, not to play the role of a carpet-bagger," he would wink.

Soon, however, neighborhood Democratic leaders began trooping in to see Curnane. There was the matter of Election Day "precinct money," an old Baltimore custom, they would say. It takes money to hire dispensers of sample ballots, drivers to transport voters to the polls and maintain the morale of precinct workers.

"Money?" Curnane would ask, as if he had never heard of the word. Then he would clamp down on his cigar and mournfully shake his head. "Why, back home they call me 'Short Money' Curnane."

One local boss haggled for half an hour with Curnane and they finally agreed on one-third of the boss' original request.

"You're sure you'd settle for that?" asked Curnane.

"Okay," said the exasperated boss.

"Okay," said Curnane, "but I haven't got it."

And so it went, with some party leaders so dissatisfied that one—a congressman, Rep. Edward A. Garmatz—issued a public statement complaining of the small allotment for his group.

Kennedy carried Maryland by more than 78,000 votes.

"I think we did all right," said Curnane as he prepared to board a plane for the flight to Massachusetts.

Asked what role he'd like to play next in politics, Curnane noted that the present administrator of the Veterans Administration is a Republican from Everett, Mass.

EUGENE R. OSTER

Selected Honor Man Of Company At Great Lakes

Eugene R. Oster, former resident, who is completing his boot training at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill., has been selected as honor man of his company.

This morning at 10 o'clock he will be presented a certificate of honor and an engraved mounted plaque during the recruit graduation ceremony.

After spending a 14-day leave with his mother, Mrs. Katherine Oster in Baltimore, he will report to Pensacola, Fla.

His selection as honor man was based on leadership, initiative, military bearing, sportsmanship, and high scholastic standing.

Sewage Pools Explained At Municipal Meet

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — The use of sewage lagoons was described at a meeting of the Maryland Municipal League Friday by a U.S. Public Health Service engineer.

The speaker, C.D. Spangler, said the lagoon is an economical, practical and not unattractive method of waste disposal for small communities that don't need or can't afford sewage treatment plants.

He said such a pond can serve also as a temporary measure for isolated areas or new subdivisions that aren't served by trunk sewers and where land is not suited for septic tanks.

The sewage lagoon, he said, is a pond three to five feet deep. The sewage pumped into it is broken down by bacterial and chemical reactions of the water into simple compounds that are absorbed by algae growing in the water, he said.

He said odors and mosquitoes are virtually nonexistent at sewage lagoons that have been tried successfully in many parts of the country.

A sewage lagoon costs on an average about $10 a person while mechanical treatment plants cost $42 a person, he said.

The size of the pond depends on the number of persons per acre who are served by it. Spangler cited an experimental lagoon project in Farmville, Va., that served up to 400 persons per acre.

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission expressed interest in the lagoons last September after hearing about the Farmville project but left action up to health authorities in Montgomery and Prince Georges counties.

Survey Reports Some Schools Inadequate

Suggests Northern High At Short Gap

Ridgeley's and Fort Ashby's six-year high schools are at the present time crowded beyond rated capacity, according to a 39-page survey compiled for the Mineral County Board of Education by two consultants at West Virginia University.

At Ridgeley, areas in the basement have been pressed into service by reclaiming excavated but unfinished space which was not planned originally for the uses to which it has now been put. The arrangement has helped greatly to meet in part the pressing needs for space at this school, the consultants said.

They pointed out that at Fort Ashby, use is being made of a cement block building some 80 yards from the main building to help care for the overflow, and the seventh grade classes spend only half the school day at the high school, the rest at the old elementary school in town.

Neither School Adequate

Neither school, even if the overcrowding were to be remedied, can provide the kind of educational program for students in grades 10-12 that modern social and economic conditions demand, the report declares.

Also, the enrollment trends of this part of the county and the current surge in home building would seem to promise a growth in secondary school enrollment for the entire area.

A northern senior high school (grades 10-12 at Short Gap appears to be the solution to the problem, according to the consultants. They said the location is central and should lend itself to efficient transportation that can be planned to carry pupils in both directions.

An unusually apt location is available in the area where 40-50 acres of most favorably contoured land would provide the kind of a campus that could be developed now with plenty of allowance for further growth.

The consultants point out that in view of the industrial development in the area, this would seem to be "a most important, foresighted move for the schools of northern Mineral County."

Would Release Space

The proposed reorganization of grades 7-12 for the northern section of the county would leave a junior high school at Fort Ashby of 160-175 pupils. The transfer of grades 10-12 to the recommended new senior high school at Short Gap would release space to accommodate more comfortably and adequately the 80 children presently housed in Fort Ashby Elementary's old building.

These would bring the total in the high school building to 240-255, figures more nearly in accord with its rated capacity of 270. The consultants consider this "a very good building" for junior high school purposes, and it can be expanded if the junior high school enrollment should come to exceed 270, a possibility quite likely with the next 10 to 15 years if the home building in the area proceeds at even the rate of the past 10 years.

Completion of the recommended plan for grades 7-12 for the northern part of the county will release space in Ridgeley High School sufficient to care for pupils of the seventh and eighth grades from Wiley Ford, and of the seventh grade at Short Gap, who can be better transported to Ridgeley than to Fort Ashby.

300 In 10 Years?

Currently the addition of these to the 7-9th grade pupils already at Ridgeley would add up to a junior high school of approximately 225. Over the next 10 years this would become a school of 275 to 300.

For the time being, while the elementary school population and its growth, particularly in the Carpenter's Addition area, are being studied and until firmer enrollment forecasts can be made, the high school building can also house grades five and six of Ridgeley Elementary, the consultants said.

The survey, now being studied by the Mineral County Board of Education, has not yet been accepted or rejected.

Political Course Off To Good Start

The Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday that 11 persons signed up as its Action Course in Practical Politics began here Wednesday. Enrollment is expected to rise to about 15 next Wednesday.

Less than half of those who turned up Wednesday night for the course were members of the Chamber. Several are from the Georges Creek section.

Morris D. Schepcaro, director of industrial relations for the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plant here, is instructor for the nine-lesson course.

Marine Color Guard

Street Crews Are Ready To Battle Ice And Snow

The Cumberland Street Department has completed preparations for one of its biggest jobs — keeping streets open to traffic during the winter.

The first sign that bad weather was impending came recently when some 70 cinder barrels were placed at strategic spots on hilly sections of the city.

Each of the barrels has been filled with a mixture of cinders and calcium chloride, and a short-handled shovel has been attached to the container so motorists can scatter the abrasive in times of need.

Six salt boxes have been set out at such points as railroad crossings and bridges so traffic can be kept moving at such strategic points.

Another sign of approaching winter was the removal this week of some 20 benches from downtown streets. They will be painted and reconditioned at the Street Department warehouse this winter.

Stockpiled at the warehouse is a good supply of salt and calcium chloride.

Street Commissioner John J. Long reports that 35 tons of salt and 15 tons of calcium chloride are on hand and that more will be ordered if needed.

A mixture of salt and calcium chloride is the first line of defense when sleet or light snowstorms hit.

Also stockpiled at a Central Avenue dump are some 300 tons of cinders.

Snow plows have been sharpened and adjusted and are ready to be attached to Street Department trucks.

In readiness at all times at the City Warehouse this winter is an emergency truck, loaded with supplies of salt, and equipment to scatter it, and a snow plow. Crews are on call at all times.

Since it is impossible to clear all streets at once—there are some 67 miles of paved and another 20 miles of unpaved streets in the city—crews aim to clear major streets first.

Come next spring, other Street Department crews will have to dip into hundreds of catch basins to remove the accumulation of cinders.

Downey Heads U.S. 4-H Work

Mylo S. Downey, former assistant farm agent of Allegany County, has been named head of the 4-H club work in the Federal Extension Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

He was named to the new position by FES Administrator P. V. Kepner, following the step-up of Dr. E. W. Aiton to FES assistant administrator in charge of programs.

A native of Maryland and former resident of Washington County, Mr. Downey was Maryland state 4-H club leader for nine years before joining the Extension 4-H staff in 1954.

Earlier in his career he had served successively as a vocational agriculture teacher and an Extension county agent, having served as assistant to Ralph McHenry who was Allegany County farm agent for a number of years.

He holds a bachelor of science and master of arts degrees in agricultural education from the University of Maryland. In addition he has done graduate work in human development and leadership at the University of Maryland, University of Chicago, and Cornell University.

LaVale Resident Naturalized In Baltimore Court

A LaVale woman who formerly lived in Verdun, France, became an American citizen Thursday in Baltimore during a naturalization ceremony before Judge W. Calvin Chesnut of the U.S. District Court.

She is Mrs. Margaret Claire (Vaudois) Lowery, wife of Captain Richard Lowery, who is presently stationed in Korea with the Army.

Mrs. Lowery, who has been in the United States about four years, met her husband while he was stationed in that country.

The couple have two children, Eva Marie, four and Richard Jr., 14 months. She was among 200 persons who became citizens in the Baltimore ceremony.

Her husband, who graduated from Allegany High School in 1950, expects to return to the United States next April.

To Be Entertained

North Cumberland Homemakers Club will have all members of the Allegany County Homemakers Chorus as guests at its covered dish luncheon November 17. Fairview Methodist Church social room at noon.

The chorus will entertain with a few selections, and two members of the club will present a skit. Mrs. Catherine Grimes is dinner chairman.

3 Boys Face Hearing In Auto Theft

Three area boys who were arrested Thursday night in connection with the theft of a car in Frostburg and an ensuing wild chase by police are scheduled to appear in Juvenile Court Monday, authorities said.

They are being detained in the detention quarters of the county infirmary pending the hearing.

Tfc. J. V. Stakem said they took a car belonging to Edgar W. Shannon from a parking lot in Frostburg.

They drove to McCoole where they got gasoline which they failed to pay for. Police said they proceeded toward Westernport and forced another car off the highway at Franklin on Maryland Route 36.

The tag number of the car was given to police by the station attendant and the man whose car was forced off the road.

Trooper Stakem, who was in the Eckhart area at the time, proceeded toward Lonaconing and a roadblock was set up in Barton by Tfc. Robert Dishong.

While the boys were in Lonaconing, two got out of the car and went into a business establishment and the third boy went for another ride.

Trooper Stakem said he spotted the car, followed it through Lonaconing at a high rate of speed, and finally caught up with the driver after the car was wrecked near Valley High School.

While going through Lonaconing the boy was reported to have run through a stop light and forced other cars off the road. The boy struck two mail boxes, ran off the road and wrecked the car. He implicated the two others who were picked up in the business establishment, according to state police who were assisted by Lonaconing police.

Circuit Court Grants Divorces

Six divorces have been granted in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Melvin Knapp was granted a divorce from Mary E. Knapp. She was given custody of their three minor children. Anthony Daher, also known as Tony Francis, was awarded a divorce from Mary Daher, also known as Mary Francis. Mary Belle Simmons won a divorce from Sanford Wilson Simmons.

Delores E. Bennett was awarded a divorce from James E. Bennett and he was given custody of their infant child. Ruth Ann Van Meter was granted a divorce from Roy L. Van Meter and she was given custody of their infant son. Glenn M. Shugars was granted a divorce from Ruby W. Shugars and he was given custody of three of their infant children and she was awarded custody of the other two infant children.

Big 7 Funds Exceed Goal In CUF Drive

Two Units Report More To Come In

The Big Seven are already over the top in the current County United Fund campaign and additional contributions are still to come in from two of the units.

The Big Seven — which represent 8,037 employes of major Cumberland area industrial plants — have subscribed $120,516.82 toward the $352,666 goal, according to an audit completed here Thursday night.

This represents 105.5 per cent of the Big Seven's $114,366 goal.

The ABL Charity Fund, representing some 1,600 employes of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, has subscribed $17,500.

The B&O Railroad Employe CUF, which includes 1,261 employes of the B&O here, has subscribed $16,289 and more is to come in.

The Amcelle Employes Charity Fund represents some 2,000 employes of the Amcelle plant of Celanese Fibers Company, and had raised $18,700 toward CUF needs.

The Kelly Employes' Charity Fund, formed by 2,079 employes of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company here, has raised $30,146.82 toward the campaign.

The Works 7 Employes United Fund Chapter at the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plant here, raised $16,460 among its 645 members.

The Western Maryland Railway's Charity Fund, with 450 employes of the railway, has contributed a total of $3,875 toward CUF needs.

The Westvaco Employes One-Drive Charity Fund at the Luke mill of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company has raised $17,546 and officials said more is to come in.

'Thank You' Visit Set By Mathias

GOP Representative To Tour Area Today

Charles McC. Mathias Jr., Republican victor in Tuesday's Sixth Congressional District contest, will pay a "thank you" visit to Western Maryland today.

The 38-year-old Frederick County attorney who defeated Democratic Rep. John R. Foley in the hard-fought battle, is scheduled to reach the Flintstone-Oldtown area at 11 a. m.

Mr. Mathias plans to arrive in Cumberland at noon, when he will meet J. Glenn Beall Jr., chairman of the Allegany County Republican Committee, and George R. Hughes Jr., co-chairman of the Republican campaign commitee.

The victorious candidate plans to reach Frostburg at 1:15 p. m. on his way for a tour of Grantsville, Oakland and Kitzmiller.

He will return by way of Westernport, Barton, Lonaconing and Midland on the way back home.

For his "thank you" visit, he has had his station wagon painted with large "Thank You's."

Enthusiastic support by Allegany and Garrett County voters contributed to the decisive victory won by Mr. Mathias Tuesday.

Mr. Mathias also won support from voters in his own Frederick County and held Rep. Foley to slim leads in Washington and Montgomery counties.

Holy Name Society To Attend Mass

The Holy Name Society of SS. Peter and Paul Catholic Church will attend the 7 o'clock mass Sunday and receive Holy Communion in a body.

Rev. DePaul Ripko, OFM Cap., spiritual director of the unit, said vespers will be held Sunday at 7:30 p. m., followed by the fall meeting.

Kennedy's State Manager Leaves After Triumph

By LOUIS G. PANOS

Curnane, a 46-year-old undertaker with a hearty laugh, was a member of that small army of Kennedy liaison men assigned to each of the states before, during and since the Democratic National convention last July.

Because Kennedy ran in Maryland's presidential primary in his drive to the nomination, Curnane spent five months in this state—one month before the May primary and four before last Tuesday's election.

Maryland politics may never be the same.

It started last April, just after the 6-foot-2, 230-pound Curnane arrived from Everett, Mass.

Democratic local leaders, feuding among themselves but virtually all for Kennedy, were resentful.

Some just didn't like the idea of an outsider barging in to take charge of things.

Others were afraid the outsider might be one of those bright, young men who seemed to have overrun the national organization of every major candidate this year—newcomers unschooled in the protocol of precinct politics.

Curnane quickly dispelled both notions when three warring chieftains paid their first visit to his office in a Baltimore hotel.

"All right, boys," he greeted them, "You're all welcome here. But check your guns at the door so we can get down to business."

They did, and the three walked out as co-chairmen of Kennedy's Baltimore City campaign organization.

After Kennedy's primary victory over Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon and two obscure candidates, Curnane kept tabs on the Maryland delegation to the nominating convention in Los Angeles.

Although a member of the Massachusetts delegation to the convention, he sat with the Maryland group. His pocket bulging with notes on the political background and factional allegiance of each member of that group, he watched for signs of a possible Maryland bolt to another candidate on the second ballot, which never came.

Back in Maryland for the general campaign, he assured observers the regular party leaders were calling the shots.

"After all, I'm just here to watch, not to play the role of a carpet-bagger," he would wink.

Soon, however, neighborhood Democratic leaders began trooping in to see Curnane. There was the matter of Election Day "precinct money," an old Baltimore custom, they would say. It takes money to hire dispensers of sample ballots, drivers to transport voters to the polls and maintain the morale of precinct workers.

"Money?" Curnane would ask, as if he had never heard of the word. Then he would clamp down on his cigar and mournfully shake his head. "Why, back home they call me 'Short Money' Curnane."

One local boss haggled for half an hour with Curnane and they finally agreed on one-third of the boss' original request.

"You're sure you'd settle for that?" asked Curnane.

"Okay," said the exasperated boss.

"Okay," said Curnane, "but I haven't got it."

And so it went, with some party leaders so dissatisfied that one—a congressman, Rep. Edward A. Garmatz—issued a public statement complaining of the small allotment for his group.

When one chieftain suggested these developments might result in a small Kennedy vote in his bailiwick, Curnane replied:

"The Kennedy express is moving and you'd better climb aboard before it's moving too fast for you to catch."

Kennedy carried Maryland by more than 78,000 votes.

"I think we did all right," said Curnane as he prepared to board a plane for the flight to Massachusetts.

Asked what role he'd like to play next in politics, Curnane noted that the present administrator of the Veterans Administration is a Republican from Everett, Mass.

EUGENE R. OSTER

Selected Honor Man Of Company At Great Lakes

Eugene R. Oster, former resident, who is completing his boot training at the U. S. Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill., has been selected as honor man of his company.

This morning at 10 o'clock he will be presented a certificate of honor and an engraved mounted plaque during the recruit graduation ceremony.

After spending a 14-day leave with his mother, Mrs. Katherine Oster in Baltimore, he will report to Pensacola, Fla.

Sewage Pools Explained At Municipal Meet

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — The use of sewage lagoons was described at a meeting of the Maryland Municipal League Friday by a U.S. Public Health Service engineer.

The speaker, C.D. Spangler, said the lagoon is an economical, practical and not unattractive method of waste disposal for small communities that don't need or can't afford sewage treatment plants.

He said such a pond can serve also as a temporary measure for isolated areas or new subdivisions that aren't served by trunk sewers and where land is not suited for septic tanks.

The sewage lagoon, he said, is a pond three to five feet deep. The sewage pumped into it is broken down by bacterial and chemical reactions of the water into simple compounds that are absorbed by algae growing in the water, he said.

He said odors and mosquitoes are virtually nonexistent at sewage lagoons that have been tried successfully in many parts of the country.

A sewage lagoon costs on an average about $10 a person while mechanical treatment plants cost $42 a person, he said.

The size of the pond depends on the number of persons per acre who are served by it. Spangler cited an experimental lagoon project in Farmville, Va., that served up to 400 persons per acre.

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission expressed interest in the lagoons last September after hearing about the Farmville project but left action up to health authorities in Montgomery and Prince Georges counties.

Legion Presents 50-Star Flags

K. Albert Wolfe, left, commander of Knobley Mountain Post 136, American Legion, of Ridgeley, is shown presenting 50-star flags to principals of public schools in nearby Mineral County. Accepting the flags are Melvin Heiskell, second from left, principal of Ridgeley High School; Charles N. Wimer, principal at Wiley Ford, and Albert L. Rogers, principal at Short Gap. The presentation of the flags, part of the Americanism program of the American Legion, took place at Ridgeley High School.

Survey Reports Some Schools Inadequate

Suggests Northern High At Short Gap

Ridgeley's and Fort Ashby's six-year high schools are at the present time crowded beyond rated capacity, according to a 39-page survey compiled for the Mineral County Board of Education by two consultants at West Virginia University.

At Ridgeley, areas in the basement have been pressed into service by reclaiming excavated but unfinished space which was not planned originally for the uses to which it has now been put. The arrangement has helped greatly to meet in part the pressing needs for space at this school, the consultants said.

They pointed out that at Fort Ashby, use is being made of a cement block building some 80 yards from the main building to help care for the overflow, and the seventh grade classes spend only half the school day at the high school, the rest at the old elementary school in town.

Neither School Adequate

Neither school, even if the overcrowding were to be remedied, can provide the kind of educational program for students in grades 10-12 that modern social and economic conditions demand, the report declares.

Also, the enrollment trends of this part of the county and the current surge in home building would seem to promise a growth in secondary school enrollment for the entire area.

A northern senior high school (grades 10-12 at Short Gap appears to be the solution to the problem, according to the consultants. They said the location is central and should lend itself to efficient transportation that can be planned to carry pupils in both directions.

An unusually apt location is available in the area where 40-50 acres of most favorably contoured land would provide the kind of a campus that could be developed now with plenty of allowance for further growth.

The consultants point out that in view of the industrial development in the area, this would seem to be "a most important, foresighted move for the schools of northern Mineral County."

Would Release Space

The proposed reorganization of grades 7-12 for the northern section of the county would leave a junior high school at Fort Ashby of 160-175 pupils. The transfer of grades 10-12 to the recommended new senior high school at Short Gap would release space to accommodate more comfortably and adequately the 80 children presently housed in Fort Ashby Elementary's old building.

These would bring the total in the high school building to 240-255, figures more nearly in accord with its rated capacity of 270. The consultants consider this "a very good building" for junior high school purposes, and it can be expanded if the junior high school enrollment should come to exceed 270, a possibility quite likely with the next 10 to 15 years if the home building in the area proceeds at even the rate of the past 10 years.

Completion of the recommended plan for grades 7-12 for the northern part of the county will release space in Ridgeley High School sufficient to care for pupils of the seventh and eighth grades from Wiley Ford, and of the seventh grade at Short Gap, who can be better transported to Ridgeley than to Fort Ashby.

300 In 10 Years?

Currently the addition of these to the 7-9th grade pupils already at Ridgeley would add up to a junior high school of approximately 225. Over the next 10 years this would become a school of 275 to 300.

For the time being, while the elementary school population and its growth, particularly in the Carpenter's Addition area, are being studied and until firmer enrollment forecasts can be made, the high school building can also house grades five and six of Ridgeley Elementary, the consultants said.

The survey, now being studied by the Mineral County Board of Education, has not yet been accepted or rejected.

Political Course Off To Good Start

The Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday that 11 persons signed up as its Action Course in Practical Politics began here Wednesday. Enrollment is expected to rise to about 15 next Wednesday.

Less than half of those who turned up Wednesday night for the course were members of the Chamber. Several are from the Georges Creek section.

Morris D. Schepcaro, director of industrial relations for the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company plant here, is instructor for the nine-lesson course.

Red Skelton Usually Manages To Get Last Laugh

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—Over the years, comedians like Red Skelton work out routines to use for almost every commonplace situation. The bits get them out of spots which could be embarrassing.

RED SKELTON

Because of their trade, comedians are supposed to be funny people. Some are, some aren't. But they all must continue to give that illusion. It would never do for a comedian to treat his public as Frank Sinatra, for example, does.

Red Skelton says the vast majority of people won't bother him. They'll smile or call a greeting, and he'll smile and wave back. But children aren't that inhibited. Red says it's a rare day that some child doesn't approach him with that dreadful dare, "Make me laugh."

"I have two stock gags for that situation," Red says. "I may say, 'Hey, look, you have two feet—one on each leg'. It's silly, but the children always laugh at it. Or I'll ask them if they had lunch yet. They'll say no, and I'll say, 'You should have a banana—they don't have any bones'. That's another one that somehow tickles the little ones."

The routine varies with adults, of course. Mostly, Red is accosted by grown-ups who ask for autographs.

"Whenever I autograph somethings for someone," he says, "almost inevitably somebody in the crowd will say, 'How about autographing a check next?' Then I always tell them a story about a show I did at Sing-Sing. After it was over, I signed autographs for the inmates and one man said, 'Red, when I get out I'll use that to forge a check'. I told him it was OK—I had no money in the bank anyway. So another man said, 'I'll make you some'. That really happened, too, and it always makes a hit with the autograph crowd."

"A comedian," he says, "has to know his fellow man so well that he can imitate him perfectly, without hating him.

"You have to understand what people like and dislike. The writers have a tendency to stick with a routine that is easy to write. You find yourself doing the same type of comedy, week after week. This wasn't so bad on radio—I used the 'I dood it' routines for years and it was fine.

"But it's murder on TV. You can't do the same kind of routine too often. Like Gleason and 'The Honeymooners' — he did it too often and the public got tired of it. If he did it every six weeks, it would be fine. The public would be hungry for it.

"All this talk about comedy," he said. "Look, I want you to know that I'm really not an authority on comedy."

His pretty wife, Georgia, laughs at that.

"No," she says, "you're not an authority. You've only been a comedian for 38 years, that's all. No authority! Ha!"

Because of their trade, comedians are supposed to be funny people. Some are, some aren't. But they all must continue to give that illusion. It would never do for a comedian to treat his public as Frank Sinatra, for example, does.

Red Skelton says the vast majority of people won't bother him. They'll smile or call a greeting, and he'll smile and wave back. But children aren't that inhibited. Red says it's a rare day that some child doesn't approach him with that dreadful dare, "Make me laugh."

"I have two stock gags for that situation," Red says. "I may say, 'Hey, look, you have two feet—one on each leg'. It's silly, but the children always laugh at it. Or I'll ask them if they had lunch yet. They'll say no, and I'll say, 'You should have a banana—they don't have any bones'. That's another one that somehow tickles the little ones."

The routine varies with adults, of course. Mostly, Red is accosted by grown-ups who ask for autographs.

"Whenever I autograph somethings for someone," he says, "almost inevitably somebody in the crowd will say, 'How about autographing a check next?' Then I always tell them a story about a show I did at Sing-Sing. After it was over, I signed autographs for the inmates and one man said, 'Red, when I get out I'll use that to forge a check'. I told him it was OK—I had no money in the bank anyway. So another man said, 'I'll make you some'. That really happened, too, and it always makes a hit with the autograph crowd."

"A comedian," he says, "has to know his fellow man so well that he can imitate him perfectly, without hating him.

"You have to understand what people like and dislike. The writers have a tendency to stick with a routine that is easy to write. You find yourself doing the same type of comedy, week after week. This wasn't so bad on radio—I used the 'I dood it' routines for years and it was fine.

"But it's murder on TV. You can't do the same kind of routine too often. Like Gleason and 'The Honeymooners' — he did it too often and the public got tired of it. If he did it every six weeks, it would be fine. The public would be hungry for it.

"All this talk about comedy," he said. "Look, I want you to know that I'm really not an authority on comedy."

His pretty wife, Georgia, laughs at that.

"No," she says, "you're not an authority. You've only been a comedian for 38 years, that's all. No authority! Ha!"
